

Sylvan Squares Will Dance On Thursday For Two Weeks

Due to a conflict with the Blue Devils football home games, the next two Friday night dances of the Sylvan Squares have been changed to the preceding Thursday nights.

"Since Thursday nights are class nights, we will join the class from 8:00 until 10:00 p.m., then Richard Silver will call an additional hour for club members and guests," the president says.

These dates are: September

24th to 23rd; October 8th to 7th

The beginners' class will begin on Thursday night, September 23rd, at the American Legion Hall, beginning at 8:00 p.m.

"Those of you who have received a letter of invitation, please keep this date in mind. If you have not received a letter and are interested, please call Horace or Sue Bradley, publicity chairman, at 853-9429 for information any time before this date," he continues.

On Saturday night, September 18th, the Pisgah Promoters will hold a graduation dance at the UMCA in Canton. Jo and Alvin Warren, club president, extend a hearty welcome to all Sylvan Squares to attend this gala event.

Those who attended the Sylvan Squares picnic last Saturday evening had a good time in spite of the rain. But, what would a picnic be without rain? "It is with regret we bid farewell to two of our members, Bob and Doris Smith. The officers and entire club wish you the best of luck in your new home and job", the officers conclude.

Attitudes

You will remember during the moon flights that the announcer would remark that the command capsule was in the right attitude. This meant that it was in the correct position or posture for the next step. When we have a certain mental attitude it means we think about the attitudes a child takes to school we are speaking of what position he has taken with regard to school.

Because your children learn their attitudes from the adults in their lives we need to think about attitudes in general. We form attitudes or the positions about people, about events, about behavior, about government action, about community activities, etc.

Let's think first about rules. There are various kinds of rules. Those we make at home, at school, at church, in meetings. Then there are the rules of the government which we call laws. The rules of ethics which are either specifics, such as professional ethics, or generalities such as general behavior one toward others. The rules of international nation. Again we could go on and on. The important thing is that for any or all of these rules we take some attitude.

One attitude which many people take toward rules is: rules are devised to help us get along together or to make it easier to get things done. The people who take this attitude will usually say — "I go by the rules!"

Another attitude might be: Rules are not made to cover all situations, so I will choose which rules I will follow. For example a man might adhere quite strictly to the rules of his profession, but fail to adhere to the rules of ethics in business.

Some people have the attitude that rules are made to keep us from doing what we want to do. This person might follow the rules but with reluctance and often with anger. We see this in those who will follow the rules of traffic in town and speed on the open highway, grudgingly slowing down for the next town's traffic regulations.

There are some people who have the attitude that: rules are made to be broken. These are the individuals who deliberately run stop signs, come late to meetings, fail to get to dinner on time, or even break governmental rules such as failing to pay taxes or stealing or setting fires. Then, too, there are those who say: rules are made to be broken—just don't get caught! Here we see the absence of a true ethical attitude and this changes the position because it moves the attitude from "breaking the rule is OK," to "the real crime or wrong is to get caught!"

Then there are a few people who seem to have taken the attitude "I don't need any rules made by anyone but myself."

Because in this segment we are thinking about what attitudes your child takes to school we need to give some concern as to what attitudes we take and how that attitude might be interpreted by the child. If the parents set rules of conduct in the home and pay no attention when they are broken, or break the rules themselves, the child will soon learn "rules are made to be broken." This is the attitude he will take to school.

If Daddy is saying, "It is the rule of this house that nobody shall take things that belong to another," yet he is bringing home paper, rubber bands and pencils from his employer — the child is going to learn that Daddy chooses to go along with some rules but not all rules.

If the parents are teaching rules are made to help us all get along together, or to get something done more easily, and they go with the rules showing the child that this a better way, the child will take this attitude with him to school.

What attitude about rules are your children taking to school today?
