Attitudes III

When Mary Jane was talking to her husband about what Sammy took to school with him, Joe brought out that Sammy was learning things from the community, the church and other people in the town. So today let's consider what attitudes the student learns from the community.

The community's attitude about school is that it is one of our most important institutions. If we look at it from the money stand point we see that 51% of local taxes go for educational purposes. And this is in addition to State and Federal funds which are put into educating the child. But community action or inaction which defeated the school bond issue and allowed continuing use of school buildings which have been declared sub-standard and too old to be repaired extensively points to an attitude that is somewhat contradictory. If education is important is our attitude one of "We'll go this far but no farther!" And is this confusing to the student?

What is the community teaching the student about the use and abuse of drugs and alcohol? In 1970 I spoke to a woman about the young men and women under the influence of drugs seen sitting in a conspicuous place in town. She said, "I've been down-town every day and I didn't see them." Is our attitude one that says "If we don't look we won't see it—or it will go away?" In similar vein how many of our children are growing up with the attitude that to be a man a person must drink strong liquor? What do you think Transylvania's attitude is about this?

Much that is being done in Transylvania County shows an attitude of concern about the people. There are many public agencies and private organizations which are working hard to say "We care!" But how many of our people maintain an attitude about change which says "It was good enough for father, so it's good enough for me?" Is this attitude one which carries over to the student in the form of "My dad didn't finish school and he's doing all right!" This is an attitude which can lead to some of the many drop-outs which we see.

What is our community attitude about the rights of all people? We have no segregation in the schools, but we have only token integration when it comes to housing. What does this say to the student? Has your church made any attempts to integrate your congregation? And are we as concerned about the rights of the little fellow as we are about the rights of big business. One good sign was the Council's refusal to rezone an area of town near the airport.

What is the community attitude about what should be taught at school? There is knowledge that all students are not college bound; that some students need training for vocations, trades and skilled work. But is our community attitude one which urges the school authorities to change the school program or do we insist on the old "reading, writing and arithmetic" program? Can we change our attitude to one which demands that the school program really educates all those who can be educated?

Many of you can think of other attitudes which we might discuss. Talk them over with your friends and families. The attitudes which our children take today will determine what tomorrow will be.

Investment Courses Will Be Offered During Next Two Months

G. H. Farley, Director of Adult Education in Transylvania County, announces today two investment classes to be offered in October and November. The first class is scheduled for Mondays, October 11, 18, and 25 from 7:30 p. m. - 9:30 p. m. at the Learning Center located at the Brevard Junior High School. The second class will be at the same time and location on Mondays, November 1, 8, and 15.

The first class is designed for advanced investors and should be of interest to adults who have a basic understanding of the stock and bond market.

The session will deal with such things as economic indicators and interpreting their effect on building individual portfolios, how to interpret technical indications of the market, strategy for the aggressive investor. This session will also deal with the new issue market.

The second course is designed for investments for retirement income. This will make a comparison of the equity and debt markets as a source of retirement income. We will discuss in detail the bond market and how bonds trade in the market with an explanation of convertible bonds and municipal bonds. This session will also have information on Real Estate Investment Trusts and mutual funds.

These classes will be conducted by Robert C. McAfoos, a registered representative of the New York Stock Exchange and a Senior Account Executive with Interstate Securities Corporation in Asheville.

Some 1,400 youths will receive all-expense paid trips to the 50th National 4-H Congress and other 4-H events through the generosity of donors to the National 4-H Service Committee.
