Transylvania 4-H Clubs

Last year nearly 200,000 youth were enrolled in the 4-H horticultural program. Immediately we can picture huge mounds of tomatoes, potatoes or squash as we try to comprehend how much fresh produce this must be. But not necessarily the case!

Supervised by the Cooperative Extension Service and sponsored by Allis-Chalmers, the program means many other things to a large group of those enrolled. To some youngsters the program is a window sill flower box bringing real life nature to a high-rise apartment. And to others it is a campaign against environmental pollution as they participate in community beautification activities as part of the horticultural program. And even those who plant gardens may be growing flowers or ornamentals rather than vegetables.

The 4-H horticultural projects means many things to many youth and might be "right" for you! Contact your local 4-H office today for more information. Teens Learn To Be Smart

Consumers

Youths today have more to spend than ever before. It is estimated that in 1970 boys and girls between the ages of 9 and 19 spent nearly 21 billion dollars.

They bought 50 per cent of the soft drinks consumed—90 per cent of the single photograph records—44 per cent of all cameras—27 per cent of the cosmetics—and 9 per cent of the new automobiles.

Where and how do they learn to make wise buying decisions? How do they decide what is the best quality for their money's worth?

Over a million and a quarter teenage boys and girls are finding that an excellent place to get buying know-how is by participating in the 4-H consumer education-home economics program, sponsored by Montgomery Ward, and supervised by the Cooperative Extension Service.

The program encompasses all phases of consumer education in projects directly related to the home, such as clothing, foods, home improvement and home management, family life and personal development. If you're having decision-making problems as a consumer and are between nine and 19, perhaps the 4-H consumer education program is for you—contact your local 4-H office for more information.

4-H TV Science Club Series

Transylvania County 4-H'ers are currently participating in a drive to enroll their fellow school mates in a 4-H TV Science Club Series, which begins in February.

The series consists of ten 30-minute programs, all dealing with different science areas. Some of the areas included are: Science of Fire, Science of Animals, Science of Physics, and Science of Astronomy. The series will be shown on Channel 13 WLOS-TV in Asheville.

Any boy or girl in the 4th-8th grades can join in the fun. The manual gives an outline of the experiments used in the 10 science areas, and will be given to club members enrolling in the series. There is a complete list of materials needed and procedures used to carry out at home the experiments shown on television.
