The Rosman squad also assisted the Transylvania County Sheriff's Department, in directing traffic and at a funeral.

"Cooperation between the Transylvania Sheriff's Department, State Highway Patrol, Brevard Police Department and the Brevard and Rosman Rescue Squads was exemplary," says Chief Rowe.

"Everyone involved did a tremendous job and deserves the highest commendation. Particularly deserving are the personnel of the Police Communications Center who coordinated and directed all emergency communications during the snowstorm and afterward," said Chief Rowe.

This Book is For the Mountain Lovers On Your Christmas Shopping List

Written by a retired Air Force colonel, this is a readable account of adventures and misadventures of an urbanized couple on a "dream" farm in Transylvania County, near Rosman.

It is required reading for all who are retired, about to be retired, or who want to be retired; for all who love Western North Carolina, its climate and its people.

It is a restful, but often hilarious account of retired farm living as Marge and Cal Carpenter learn "the hard way" to do for themselves all the things they have been dreaming of doing on a farm. They get involved in cattle, chicken and horse raising; they try breeding wild Russian boars; they encounter a sex-changing chicken and come off second best with a setting hen. There's instruction on how to cure "real country ham," introduction to canning and freezing foods, and quick courses in do-it-yourself repairs on the farm.
