Q. My 17 year old daughter has been disabled since birth. She and I are collecting monthly Social Security benefits on my deceased husband's earnings record. Is there any way my daughter's monthly benefits can continue after she reaches 18 even though she will not be attending school?

A. If her condition is severe and she remains in your care, you and your disabled daughter's Social Security benefits may continue after her 18th birthday. Call or visit your Social Security office about 6 months before your daughter's 18th birthday to apply for childhood disability benefits.

Q. Since my father died, I've gotten monthly Social Security survivors benefits. I will turn 18 next year and will be graduating from high school. Can I continue to receive my checks if I go to college after graduation?

A. Yes, you may continue to receive survivors benefits until 22 as long as you are a full-time student and unmarried. You should receive a notice when you think of prescriptions, think of VARNER'S, adv.

Q. I am not eligible for a monthly Social Security check, but I did sign up for Medicare. I am being billed every 3 months for my medical insurance premiums. Since I receive a Veterans Administration pension, can I arrange to have my Medicare premium deducted from it?

A. Yes, for several reasons. Even though you are still working you might be eligible for some Social Security checks. It all depends on your earnings. And, you could be missing out on valuable protection under the Medicare program.

Q. I am not eligible for a monthly Social Security check, but I did sign up for Medicare. I am being billed every 3 months for my medical insurance premiums. Since I receive a Veterans Administration pension, can I arrange to have my Medicare premium deducted from it?

A. No. The premium may be deducted only from Social Security, railroad retirement, and civil service annuity checks.

Brevard College Library Now Displaying 10 Nativity Scenes

The Brevard College Library is displaying seven nativity scenes from far and near. The public is invited to view the di-plays.

Each creche is very unique. They range from hand-made ceramic figures to German hand-painted wooden carvings. There are Appalachian mountain corn - shuck characters, primitive Paraguayan Indian pottery images, and abstract wooden statues, as well as Italian and American conventional nativity figures.

On display also an informative "Moravian Christmas" feature board.

Christmas would not be complete without a tree, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Disher of Brevard donated a 10-foot Christmas tree which has been decorated by the library staff, assistants and faculty members.

The public is invited to view the di-plays.

Pay Taxes Now And Save Two Per Cent, Says Tax Collector

Taxpayers are urged to pay their property and personal taxes now.

According to Tax Collector Vernon P. Fullbright, a penalty of two per cent goes into effect on January 1st.

Mr. Fullbright states: The 1971 N. C. General Assembly has re-written and modernized the property tax law of this state known as the Machinery Act. The revision went into effect on July 1, 1971.

This means that your current real and personal property taxes are due and payable NOW, and that you will be assessed a 2% penalty if you wait until after the first of the year to pay.

Tires are much more easily cut on wet roads, notes Liberty Mutual Insurance Company. If you should get a flat tire, pull as far off the road as possible and set up some type of flare or reflective device so that on-coming traffic will see you.

Art Now Being Exhibited In Coltrane Building

By John Williams
Currently on exhibit in the gallery of the Coltrane Art Building are numerous drawings of much variety. This drawing show is made up of works done this semester by freshmen art students.

a well known campus landmark. The right wall holds many small gems. A very clever geometric design is surrounded by an interesting patterned leaf, a dark and somber maze, and an intricately shadowed still life.

As a whole, the works show some interesting and fine examples of art. There are soft, swirly abstractions, harder geometric forms, and, to please the realist, some very fine sketches. All works show much work and effort with many being highly detailed and truly clever. All show a developing talent, and, indeed, some are very commendable.

The only suggestion for improvement is that the works be labelled as to title and artist, for many would be curious to know who did the works. The exhibit shows some very fine budding talent among the freshmen art students. Your challenge is to form your own opinion.

It would be impossible to mention each of the many works individually, but there are several which are sure to please the amateur viewer. Take for example the two sketches of different views of a still life based on a newspaper box. The person who must see something familiar in every work will appreciate the sketch in the middle of the right wall. Yes, that's
