Congressman Roy Taylor Announces For Re-Election

Congressman Roy A. Taylor of Black Mountain Tuesday announced his candidacy for reelection as Representative of the 11th Congressional District in Congress. He has forwarded his filing fee to the State Board of Elections in Raleigh.

REP. ROY A. TAYLOR

Mr. Taylor, 61, has represented the 11th District in Congress since 1960 and will be seeking election to his eighth term in the House. If reelected in November, he will be second from the top in seniority among North Carolina's 11 House members—ranking next to the dean of the delegation, Rep. L. H. Fountain. (Reps. Alton Lennon and Charles R. Jonas, both senior to Taylor, are not seeking reelection.)

Congressman Taylor now sits four seats from the Chairmanship of the full House Interior Committee. He would move up one position next January since one Committee member senior to him is not seeking reelection to the House. He is also a member of the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

During the past five years, Rep. Taylor has moved into a national leadership position as Chairman of the Interior Committee's Subcommittee on National Parks and Recreation.

The 25-member Subcommittee is chiefly concerned with conservation of the nation's scenic and historic resources and exercises direct jurisdiction in Haywood County into the Cataloochee section of the Great Smoky Mountains National Park; and purchase and development of the Carl Sandburg Historic Site at Flat Rock.

National legislation which originated in the Subcommittee directly affecting Western North Carolina includes the Wild and Scenic Rivers Act, under which plans are moving forward to add a portion of the Chattooga River in Jackson and Macon Counties to the National Wild and Scenic Rivers System; and the National Trailsways Act, which Taylor introduced, giving recognition and protection to the Appalachian Trail and other trails across the United States.

The Land and Water Conservation Fund, which makes matching funds for outdoor recreation available to states, counties and cities (including several Western North Carolina grants), originated in Taylor's Subcommittee.

He has supported the Appalachian Development Program from its inception and last year played a key role in a successful effort to extend the program four years. He has also been working closely with the Veterans Administration to expand the bed capacity of Ward E at Oteen Veterans Administration Hospital—where he was instrumental in securing a new 500-bed hospital a few years ago.

Approved Western North Carolina projects which originated in Taylor's Subcommittee include a 180-mile extension of the Blue Ridge Parkway to Atlanta; an almost-completed nine-mile access road from I-40

Family Medical Record Offers Important Health Guidance

By EVE WENGLER

Ever wish that you had a family health record, easy to read and complete with the facts you should have on hand? The National Foundation—March of Dimes, in conjunction with the American Medical Association and Woman's Day magazine, has devised an important new tool to make keeping track of a family's medical history simple and clear. It is a four-page form called the Family Medical Record and, when kept up to date, it becomes a valuable document upon which both the family and physician will depend. It provides a quick, comprehensive profile of each family member's health status as well as a record of possible contributing factors in certain conditions.

The Record, accompanied by an article by Dr. Virginia Apgar, the Foundation's vice-president for medical affairs, appears in the January issue of Woman's Day, currently available.

Ideally, the Medical Record should be started before a couple marries, so that when the woman becomes pregnant—or even before—her doctor will already have information about her health history and background and that of her husband, and their parents, sisters and brothers.

Since many conditions may follow a definite genetic pattern, awareness of a disease in one member of the family may alert a doctor to early symptoms in time to avert advanced disease or disability. The age of the family member when the disease first appeared is relevant to the type or severity of some disorders and should be recorded.

So should his or her line of work, since some occupations expose workers to environmental factors which affect health. For example, a brother-in-law's chronic lung condition might be related to asbestos inhaled in his work at construction sites; a sister's miscarriages might be related to her work involving anesthetics.

One woman to another: Dr. Virginia Apgar shows Karen Sinclair how the Medical Record will help her keep track of her family's health.

Child Health
Details of each child's birth should be carefully noted as should incomplete pregnancies brought about by miscarriage, abortion, or stillbirth. The form has instructions about when children should be vaccinated for rubella (German measles), diphtheria, tetanus, whooping cough, polio, regular measles, smallpox, and all the various boosters. It provides space for an immunization record; periodic physical examinations; medications; allergies; and a record of family illnesses.

"The importance of a Family Medical Record cannot be emphasized enough," says Dr. Apgar. "With it a family and its various doctors are in a much better position to maintain good health and plan for better medical care. A record of the health of the family as a whole demonstrates responsibility, and being responsible is an important part in the battle against congenital disease, periodic illness and birth defects."

A free copy of the Family Medical Record can be obtained by writing—together with a stamped, self-addressed envelope—to Family Medical Record, The National Foundation—March of Dimes, Box 2800, White Plains, New York 10603.

Dr. Apgar developed the widely used Apgar score, which rates newborn babies' respiration, muscle tone, re-
