Laugh Corner

Two ladies were discussing the art of gift buying. "I've decided to buy my husband a lawn mower for Father's Day." "That's nice," replied the other. "I got one for Mother's Day."

The maid rushed into the room and cried: "Hurry, ma'am, your husband's lying unconscious in the hall beside a large round box with a piece of paper clutched in his hand." "How exciting," enthused the lady, "my fur coat has arrived."

The auto salesman announced to his son that there would soon be a new baby in the house. "I suppose," said the little fellow, "that means I'll have to be traded in."

An ardent golfer was on the putting green when suddenly a woman came running up the fairway dressed in a wedding gown.

"How could you do this to me?" she cried.

"Listen," he said, never taking his eye off the ball, "I told you, only if it rained."

"Don't count us," said the lady to the officer making a road survey. "We'll be coming back in a few minutes when my husband admits he's going in the wrong direction."

Father to daughter: "Your boy friend approached me this afternoon and asked for your hand in marriage. I consented." "But dad," cried the daughter, "I don't want to leave mother."

"I quite understand," he replied, "but don't let me stand in your way to happiness—take your mother with you."
