Tiny Bark Beetles Killing Pine Trees In Transylvania

Tiny bark beetles are killing pine trees in Transylvania County. County Ranger Clark Grissom says that pine timber attacked can be a total loss unless quick action is taken to salvage the infested trees. There is a double benefit from quick salvage: Cash income plus control of the breeding insects.

Winter is the best possible time of year to control the menace, as the beetles are inactive during the cold months. Most noticeable are dead and dying trees. Green infested trees with small resin gobs on the bark at beetle holes and looking like popcorn indicate beetles in the larvae (or worm) stage feed on the inner bark. This cuts off the growth prosses of the tree Grissom said.

Removal of the infested trees will prevent further losses next spring and summer. However, some infested trees are almost impossible to recognize. Therefore, to succeed in control, it is advised trees from around the dying infested trees.

Assistance in recognizing southern pine beetle infestations is available if needed by calling Grissom at 883-9385. Help can also be had in finding buyers for wood to be salvaged.
