

FROM THE EDITOR'S CORNER

EDITOR JOHN ANDERSON

Palace Chief J. C. Rowe had a very pleasant surprise this week.

He serves as Captain of the Brevard Rescue squad and in that capacity he taught a 12-hour first aid course to seventh graders of Mrs. Lyda here at Brevard.

To show the Chief their appreciation, they sent him a package and a "thank you" card on Wednesday. A beautiful tie and handkerchiefs were enclosed along with a donation for $20 for the Rescue squad.

The Chief was impressed, and so were we with the thoughtfulness of these youngsters.

In the mailbag:

"I enjoy your newspaper immensely. Keep up the good work! It's very refreshing to read about everyday good things that people are doing for each other instead of the tabloid sensationalism most papers are practicing."

"I refer specifically to the article on raising funds for low income families in order that they may start their own gardens."

"Enclosed is my contribution to that effort."

We had a run on postal scales in the office during the past few weeks. But it isn't due to the Post Service.

It's due to the fact that many women, and men, are going on a new diet.

The vegetables and meats have to be weighed out very carefully, because the diet only permits 500 calories per day.

This new diet works. The wife has lost 24 pounds since March 21st. . . . And others we know have been just as successful.

We thank Dr. Robert L. Stricker for the run on the postal scales we have to sell.

Divorce On The Increase

In 1920 one in every seven marriages ended in divorce. In 1972 one in every three marriages ended in divorce.

Borrowed . . .

One small boy came up with this defense of his poor report card: "I was the highest of all the kids who failed."

Optimist: A woman who starts feeling around for her shoes when the minister gets to . . . and now, in conclusion . . .

Inflation hasn't ruined everything. A time can still be used as a surrendriver.

All some people have ready for a rainy day is a freshly washed car.

The guy whose troubles are all behind him is probably a school bus driver.

Joke of the week . . .

Husband: "In our six years of marriage we haven't been able to agree on anything."

Wife: "It's been seven years, dear."

And we also like . . .

The sick man, conscience-stricken at having summoned his doctor at two in the morning, apologized profusely.

"I'm sorry about the hour, Doc, and I know my house is somewhat out of your way, Doc."

"Oh, that's all right," reassured the doctor. "I have another patient who lives near you so I'll visit him and just kill two birds with one stone."

is a continuous problem which is detracting from the beauty of the Forest.

People who camp outside the developed areas like Yellow Gap and Headwaters Road, Cove Creek, Shining Rock Wilderness as well as all other areas are required to take their trash home with them. Do not bury trash - wild animals will dig it up and scatter it all over making a mess.

Funds are not available for clean up of non-developed areas. You can obtain a plastic bag from the Ranger Station on U.S. 276 to carry your trash out but it must be taken out of the National Forest. Your cooperation will help conserve the beauty of the mountains. Violators will be prosecuted.

One more note about this vehicle problem on closed roads. No motorized vehicles are allowed behind closed gates. There is a valid reason for every gate on National Forest Land. In most cases it is to conserve the soil and water resources.

Littering and campers' trash

News From US Forest Service, Support Is Asked

An interested citizen informed us last Sunday four jeeps had entered the Turkey Pen area which has been closed to motorized vehicles. We visited the area and found tracks leading to the top of a mound of dirt near the closed gate. They didn't make it so they tried again between the gate and a large Yellow Poplar tree. It didn't look like there was enough room to drive a jeep through there but they did. A sign on the gate said ROAD CLOSED. We waited about an hour for them to come back out and when they did each jeep driver was given a citation for entering an area closed to vehicular traffic by driving around a closed gate. The forfeiture of collateral for this offense is $25.00.

Community Counseling Service

All misbehavior (for children under 10) is the result of a child's mistaken notion about the way to find a place in his group (family, school, class) and to gain status.

When the adult is not aware of the meaning (goal) of the child's misbehavior, he responds by falling for the child's scheme (mistaken goal) and thus reinforces this unacceptable behavior.

The parent or teacher has to recognize misbehavior patterns and their hidden goals. Four goals have been identified that are the basis for all misbehavior of children under ten: 1) attention getting, 2) struggle for power, 3) revenge, and 4) using disability as an excuse (cop-out).

In subsequent articles we will look at case histories of these mistaken goals of behavior to help in recognizing them as they occur and know how to effectively deal with them.

Remember to be human is to desire to communicate (love, friendship) with other persons, to know and appreciate one's own worth, and to have a recognized place in a group (family, school, the world).

Also, encouragement from others is an absolute essential ingredient to human well being as we stumble and trip through life.

All of this is of supreme importance to the young child whose personality is greatly well formed by five or six.

If the parents or teachers can know and meet the child's real needs when there is unacceptable behavior, much good comes to the child's real needs when there is unacceptable behavior, much good comes to the child and much peace to the home and classroom.

See you next week on the big thing of attention-getting behavior.
