Chamber Of Commerce Directors Hear Bill Ives

Chairman of the Transylvania County Board of Commissioners Bill Ives gave the directors of the Brevard Chamber of Commerce a progress report on his administration and plans that the commissioners have for the future at the Chamber's regular meeting Tuesday night in the library.

"We have had to make some changes since taking office last December," Mr. Ives stated, "Some popular, and some unpopular. But in all instances we have acted in what we thought was the best interest of the people of Transylvania county."

He then outlined various projects that the commissioners have implemented, and he then revealed several hopes that they have for the future.

"We want to do what you, the people of this county, want us to do, and we want to spend your tax money where it will best serve you. If the majority of the people want more money spent on schools, then we will spend more. Or, if you feel that we are spending too much on schools, we want to know that too," Mr. Ives remarked.

He concluded his informative talk by encouraging the Chamber members, and of the people, to let them, the Commissioners, know what they can do to better serve the people of this county. "We maintain a fulltime secretary in our office in the court house, and we want to be accessible when the people need us," he concluded.

After his remarks, Mr. Ives opened the floor for any questions, and there were several.

In other business, Dr. Milton Massey, chairman of the steering committee for the Festival of the Arts, stated that things were shaping up nicely for the Festival, which will be held here in several weeks, July 22-28. He encouraged everyone to participate in every way possible to make the big project a success.

It was reported that the Chamber now has a total of 174 members, as compared to 152 at this time last year. The financial report also indicated this growth.

As stated in June, this is a reduction in the tax rate of 5c, but overall the total tax collection will be up over the previous year. Most of the additional funds being collected will go toward education and new projects, such as the library, the new jail and the county office building. The other substantial increase in expenses is due to the $5,000,000 school bond issue. This will require an increase of $180,000 this fiscal year.

Two supplemental appropriations were approved and funds for these are available in the 1972-73 budget. A $6,000 appropriation from revenue sharing funds was approved.

Public Hearings To Be Held On Development Ordinances

The County Commissioners plan to hold three public hearings in the near future on ordinances to control the development of Transylvania County. These ordinances are for the most part directed at large scale developments. Anyone wishing copies of any ordinance is requested to call or come by the office of the County Commissioner.

The first to be considered is an Erosion Control Ordinance. A public hearing on this will be held at 7:30 p.m., July 17th, in the courthouse. This ordinance regulates the manner in which the land must be protected to prevent extensive erosion.

A public hearing will be on the creation of a Department of Inspections on July 24th, at the regular Commission meeting. This department will be charged with the enforcement of all ordinances dealing with construction. This construction would mean anything from building roads and dams through electrical and plumbing inspections of homes.

The third ordinance that will be considered is a subdivision ordinance, whose title is self-explanatory. The ordinance is a result of many weeks of work on the part of the Transylvania County Planning Board. The public hearing on the subdivision ordinance will be held at 7:30 p.m., July 30th, at the court house.
