Use Of 4-H Campsites For Camps or Retreats

All of the State 4-H Camp facilities are available for 4-H groups that want to have retreats - either for individual club groups or county or area groups. Betsy - Jeff Pen 4-H Center is equipped for year-round use and we would like to encourage our Extension groups to apply early for use as the facility is available on a first-come-first served basis and other groups are getting their request in quite early. This facility is booked up usually several months in advance. Applications are made with the Director, Rusty Preston at Betsy - Jeff Pen.

We can make any of the other four camps available during the early fall and spring if you so desire. PLEASE let us know early so we can plan to have these facilities left available for your use, such as having water on, leaving equipment in usable condition, etc.

The cost would be determined by the size of the group and the specific needs - whether the group would prepare own food, etc. Generally we would have to charge a minimum of $25 for any group. The daily rate for three meals and lodging would be at a minimum of $7.00 per person with a minimum of 50 people if the cooks were provided by the camp. Groups using facilities and providing own food would expect to pay $2.00 per person for lodging and use of other facilities. If interested in these facilities, please contact Fred Wagoner.

4-H Safety Projects

Ours, like no other, is a society that depends on wheels, private automobiles, bicycles, taxis, trucks, motorcycles and buses. At an early age, youth enter the traffic environment as bicycle operators and pedestrians - and later as automobile drivers. Preparing youth for safely entering the wheel-expressway is one objective of the 4-H traffic safety program. Starting at the age of eight, a safety belt activities booklet and a safety belt game focus attention on being safety conscious at an age when attitudes and behaviors are forming. It is an opportune time to establish good safety habits.

The bicycle care and safety projects for youth from 8-19 years of age incorporate fun into learning bicycle care, maintenance and safety.

The car and you and its mechanical operation are projects that introduces the 14-19 year old to the automotive world. The special interest automotive care and safety program provides active learn-by-doing experiences in what makes a car stop and go, operating costs, record keeping, maintenance and parts identification and safety.

For teens with a driving license, the auto skill driving contest provides an opportunity for display of driving skill and knowledge test of the automobile and highway safety.

Detailed information on these 4-H traffic safety projects and activities and assistance in organizing safety programs is available at the County Extension Office, P. O. Box 786, Brevard.

Senior Youth Of Methodist Church Is Now Selling Candy

The senior youth group of the First United Methodist Church will be selling candy in co-operation with the Brevard Junior Woman's Club for the National Kidney Foundation.

The candy, mostly taffy, is in reusable banks and is priced at $1.00 each. All profits from the sale of this candy will be going into a scholarship fund for North Carolina youths who wish to enter the field working with kidney diseases.

Kidney disease is the fourth largest killer, killing more people than automobiles each year. These candy banks will make nice gifts or Halloween treats, and it is hoped the public will support these young people in their efforts, the leaders state.

made available. These publications include: Food - Nutrition "Teens Entertain"; "Commodity Marketing"; Engineering-Woodworking Unit 4, "The Craftsman"; and North American 4-H Snowmobiling.

Several other publications are in various stages of development. Information will be carried on these as soon as target dates for publication are determined.

On The Road 'Lib'

More dual facilities are being provided at truck stops, because of the influx of women drivers, according to the Labor Digest. The trend is toward mixed teams, some are husbands and wives, and some are not.

Several weeks back we took a glimpse at revenge. This is the third of four big steps downward into discouragement.

Today we will look at what a person can do.

It is not what happens to him. His interpretation will follow how he has been accustomed to seeing himself, others and the world. If he sees others as users of power to successfully put him down, he will fight back in revenge before he completely gives up. When a parent sees actions in his child that are meant to hurt others, that parent must get on the alert. He should start changing things and in his relationship with his child. The child is in real danger of deep, long term trouble.

A child is relatively powerless, but he is clever. He knows a thousand ways to hurt others. He can steal. He can hurt himself so others will suffer from the guilt they should feel. He can wet the bed, destroy property, use physical violence on others, fail his school work. He can disappoint his parents in all sorts of things about which he knows the parent is greatly concerned. Later in life he can run away, misuse drugs, enter a bad marriage.

The deeply discouraged child seeking to hurt others need to be appreciated for what he is and not for what he could or should be. He needs to know that his parents and teachers hear his cries for recognition and approval. He needs to know that he can express his feelings about life. He needs the big people to attend to his deeper problem of discouragement and not just to his acting out. He never needs to be compared to others, or ever told that someone is disappointed with him.

Further, he needs a model of parents' and teachers' good modeling. He has to see that big people power don't use that power to hurt others even when they are hurt. He needs a model of forgiveness and compassion. He must see that frustration and injustice can be dealt with through kindness, long suffering, and problem-solving. He needs to see the power of love.

Children who do well get praise and appreciation. Children who do poorly in anything need encouragement. They need to be given "heart," which is the root meaning of the word. "Cour" means heart in French. Revenge, hurting others, flows out of self-hatred and a hatred of the ways of the world.

Permissiveness can be just as destructive to healthy development as the punishing, authoritarian approach. Our children can be kept from descending to deep levels of discouragement by parents who understand, love and know how to reach out to their children.

New Faculty Members Praise Student Body

Five new faces are smiling from behind their teachers' desks. This year we have added teacher aides, too. We would like to welcome all new faculty members to our school. Now, for a little background information:

We welcome our new carpentry and bricklaying teacher from Ft. Myers, Florida, Mr. Steve Gentry. He was formerly employed by the U. S. Government. He attended Appalachian S. U. He says he enjoys teaching at Rosman most of the time. By the way, to lots of the girls' dismay, he is married.

Our new math teacher is Mrs. Peggy Lovvorn, from Raleigh. She teaches Algebra I, II, Geometry, and General Math. Mrs. Lovvorn received her education at North Carolina State University.

Our Band instructor, Mr. James Jackson, is from Sarasota, Florida. He is a graduate from Florida Southern College. He also teaches elementary music at Pisgah Forest. His hobbies are fishing and playing golf. He likes teaching at Rosman and had this to say, "The students at Rosman have a lot of spirit and pride for their school."

Mrs. Vikki Jackson is from Sarasota, Florida, too. She was an Assistant Director at Fame Center, a kindergarten for migrant children. She is a graduate of Georgia College. She is teaching the eighth grade here. Mrs. Jackson enjoys sewing, music, and cooking. She thoroughly enjoys teaching at Rosman and had this to say, "R.H.S. has a great bunch of the students are real nice."
