Law Is Quoted

Young Men Becoming 18 In '74 Must Register, Draft

All young men who reach age 18 during 1974 should plan this year on making their first contact with Selective Service, William H. McCachren, State Director of Selective Service for North Carolina, announced today.

"Even though we are not currently drafting for military service," McCachren said, "registration with Selective Service is still compulsory for all young men at age 18, so each young man should make certain that he complies with the law by registering."

McCachren stated that a young man has 60 days in which to register - 30 days before his 18th birthday and 30 days after. "This should provide adequate time for an 18-year-old or a near-18-year-old to register," McCachren added, "and his timely registration will prevent any problems that might otherwise result from a late registration."

Mr. McCachren further explained the processing of each new registrant this way: "Following registration, an 18-year-old registrant will be classified I-H until the year in which he reaches age 19. During the year he reaches age 19 he will be given a lottery - or draft - number from one to 365 (or 366 in a leap year) which is based on his date of birth. At about the same time, the Selective Service System will establish an Administrative Processing Number between one and 365, and all registrants who have lottery numbers above the Administrative Processing Number will remain in I-H, which means that they will not be subject to further Selective Service processing unless there is a major mobilization."

"All registrants, however, who have lottery numbers at or below the Administrative Processing Number will be reclassified into a class available for military service, unless they submit information to their local boards which would qualify them for a deferment or an exemption," McCachren added that all registrants who remain in a class available for service will be subject to induction during the year they reach age 20, provided inductions are resumed.

"If a registrant in a class available for service is not inducted during the year he reaches age 20 - his year of prime vulnerability - he will be placed in a lower category of vulnerability for induction, and reclassified into I-H."

Mr. McCachren stated that 18-year-old young men in Transylvania County who have not yet registered may do so with the individuals or at the places, indicated below:

For Personal Reasons

Jack Mitchell Resigns Secondary Road Position

John R. Mitchell has resigned as the 14th State Highway Division representative of the Secondary Roads Council.

Mr. Mitchell, owner of Brevard Travel Agency Inc., and Mitchell-Bissell Company in Roseman, was appointed to the Council by Gov. Jim Holshouser August 18, 1973. He said he had resigned for "wholly, totally personal" reasons.

"It had nothing to do with anything pertaining to the highway job whatever," he said.

A spokesman at the governor's office said last Friday there had not been time to select a suitable new appointee to the Council from the 14th Division, which comprises 10 western counties, including Transylvania.
