

Hints From The County Extension Chairman

By - JERRY PURSER

Ornamental Plant Diseases

PINES - Fusiform rust and Eastern gall rust are now beginning to produce masses of powdery orange spores on the gall surface. These orange wind-blown spores infect new water and willow oak leaves. The fungus causes brown hair-like spore-producing structures 1/4-inch long on the lower oak-leaf surface. Spores produced on the oak leaves infect young pines during mid-summer. Galls on the limbs 10-12 inches from the trunk cause little damage to the pine tree but produce millions of spores to infect oak leaves. Galls on the man trunk can cause the tree to be stunted and bushy, or break off. The diseases do little damage to oak. These rust diseases are controlled on pines by: 1) do not plant infected seedlings, 2) prune off and burn galls on limbs.

NEEDLECAST is now occurring in Transylvania County. The older needles turn brown and drop off. The disease starts on the lower limbs and moves up the tree. Only the older needles are affected. The fungus overwinters in the dead needles on the ground. Control is usually not necessary as the disease rarely does significant damage to pine trees. Much genetic variation is susceptibility to needle-cast occurs within pine species. Some trees are very susceptible while others of the same species are very resistant.

JAPANESE AND CHINESE HOLLIES - continue to die. They typically die section by section until the entire plant is dead. From Clinic samples received over the past several months, 50 - 60% of this damage is due to nematodes. Nematodes can kill these plants, particularly if the plant is under other stress factors such as drought, excess fertilizer, etc. Another 25% is due to over-fertilization. Remember these hollies are not susceptible to Phytophthora root rot but they will drown in very poorly drained soil.

Spring is a good time to treat hollies and other woody ornamentals to control nematodes. Use Nema-gon or Fumazone as soon as the soil temperature 4 inches deep gets above 50 deg. F.

Senior Citizens Council To Meet On April 9th

The Transylvania County Senior Citizens will meet at 2:30 p.m. on April 9th at the Roman Methodist church. A number of important matters will come up for discussion:

1. Programs for the aging in South Carolina—Mr. Ellie Herick
2. Progress in Region "B" planning for the aging as it concerns Transylvania County—Gordon Kendall
3. Duke University conference on "Legal Problems of Older Americans:—Mr. Paul Goeiser
4. Expanding the Information/Referral service now in operation.
5. Demonstration of the "Help Box" on April 16th.

The public is cordially invited to attend these monthly meetings.

Hold Singing Saturday At Turkey Creek

The regular monthly singing will be held at the Turkey Creek Baptist Church, Saturday night, April 6th, beginning at 7:30 p.m.

The following groups have been invited to participate in the singing: The Leona Owen Trio and The Emmissaries of Brevard and The Guiding Lights from Boyleston Church.

Ruel Whitmire, Music Director, invites all lovers of gospel singing to attend and receive a blessing.

Agricultural Extension Service leaflet 189 - Federal Financial Assistance Available in a forestry land owners' kable to N. C. Landowners for Forestry Practices in 1974 will be at the County Extension Office prior to April 1, 1974. This leaflet cooperatively published with the N. C. Forest Service provides the forest landowner with details of the program.

Corn Diseases

Transylvania County is one of 16 counties across North Carolina being asked to set up a disease reporting network for Anthracnose, Southern Rust, and Gray Leaf Spot on corn for 1974. The information obtained from this program will help (1) keep agents and growers informed on the disease situation and spread (2) disputing rumors about various resistances, (3) obtaining information on over wintering and spread of the fungus, (4) determining the effects of culture practices on disease developments.

Transylvania County will monitor on a weekly basis fields of Pioneer 3369A corn.
