Light Vote Expected In Tuesday's Primary Elections In Transylvania

Sample Ballots Are Carried In Times This Week

A fair vote is expected in Transylvania during the off-year Primary Elections next Tuesday.

Democrats will vote on three ballots, a local ballot including State Senator, House of Representatives, Board of Education and Sheriff; for Judicial officers; and for United States Senate.

Republicans will vote on two ballots, United States Senate and for Judicial officers.

Sample ballots can be found in the second section of this week's Times.

For the first time in history, Transylvanians will use voting machines. They will be in all precincts, and counting out will take only a very short time after the polls are closed.

Polls open at 6:30 next Tuesday morning, and they will close at 7:30.

Some observers say that the voting machines will cut down on the number of persons voting, however, officials feel that they will increase voting because of the novelty.

Instructional meetings have been held throughout the county, and they will be continued until election time.

Total registration in Transylvania is 11,334.

The breakdown is as follows:

Democrats — 6,735

Republicans — 3,708

Independent or no party — 835.

Approximately 670 voters are included in the 18 to 20 year old age bracket.

Candidates have been busy campaigning during the past few weeks, and interest seems to be primarily in the Board of Education race.

Two persons will be nominated from the following Democratic candidates: Eugene Morris, the incumbent; Jerry Cabe, Edward E. Killian, Sr., Bill P. Norris and Marius Wells.

Other candidates on the local Democratic ticket are:

For Sheriff: Milford Hubbard, the incumbent, and Will — Turn to Page Eight

Election Party, Both Local And State Returns, On WPNF

An Election Party will be held next Tuesday night over WPNF - Radio.

Returns will begin coming in around 7:20 o'clock, and the station will probably stay on the air until complete returns are in.

Local returns will be tabulated at The Transylvania Times office and will be broadcast by remote control over WPNF.

Statewide returns will be received on the station's teletype and will be put on the air immediately.

John I. Anderson, Executive Director of WPNF, urges all Transylvanians to tune in next Tuesday night to the station's informative Election party.

Other Programs

Schedule for the Farm and Home Hour on WPNF is as follows: Thursday, Station Program; Friday, ASCS; Monday, Jean Childers, Home Economics Extension Agent for Transylvania County; Tuesday, Station Program; Wednesday, Jerry Purser, County Extension Chairman.

The Rev. J. Paul Byron, Pastor of Sacred Heart Catholic Church of Brevard, is the speaker being heard this week on WPNF's "Morning Devotions" at 9:45 each morning.

During the month of May, WPNF will be broadcasting the Sunday morning worship services from Morningside Baptist Church in Brevard. The program is heard from 11:00 until 12:00 noon.

May is Mental Health Month and during this month there is a statewide focus toward a greater awareness of the facilities and services available through the Department of Mental Health.

When someone talks about mental health or a Mental Health Center, most people think of strait jackets and wild, "crazy" people.

That is wrong.

No one uses strait jackets any more, and by far most of the people who go to the Mental Health Center are normal, everyday people who have some problems and want professional advice.

The local Mental Health Center does have services for serious mental illnesses, but the majority of people who use the Center are coming for professional, personal advice, just like you would go to a lawyer for legal advice or to a doctor for medical problems.
