Brevard Policeman Completes Breathalyzer Supervisor Course

OFFICER S. A. TALMADGE

Patrolman Stephen Alfred Talmadge, of the Brevard Police Department, has recently completed the Chemical Tests for Alcohol Technical Supervisor School, sponsored by the State Department of Community Colleges and given by the Adult Education Division of the Davidson County Community College at Lexington.

Patrolman Talmadge was already a certified Breathalyzer technician before attending this latest school. The completion of this course qualified him to serve as technical supervisor or other Breathalyzer operators and administer a Chemical Tests for Alcohol section. His course also covered maintenance of the Breathalyzer equipment.

A Brevard native, Officer Talmadge is a graduate of Brevard High School and attended the University of North Carolina for two years.

He was employed by the Chapel Hill Police department while attending college. He served as a security guard at Sky City for nine months after returning to Brevard and before joining the Brevard Police Department.

He received his basic Chemical Tests for Alcohol training at Haywood Technical Institute while with the local police department.

Officer Talmadge is married to the former Lynda Galloway of Brevard. They live on Park View Drive.
