Program Announced

Think of a world in which just about everybody but you is a giant 12 feet tall. It's a world in which the bottoms of most windows are just above the top of your heat, a world in which you climb to get into a chair and once there your feet dangle far from the floor, a world in which dogs are the size of full grown horses!

Frightening isn't it?

Imagine that for all your life you have known just a few of the giants and they have cared for you, clothed you, fed you, given you constant attention and protection.

And then, without your understanding, everything changes. You are dropped off, placed in a room with some 25 strangers, all your size, and just one unknown giant. Everything is new, your world's upside down. No one seems to care for you or give you the attention you want, you need.

A frightening experience at the least?

Welcome to the world of the five year old as he enters school. It's brand new and full challenging experiences. It's a world in which the child who was the center of all attention in the family is now just one more in a crowd. It's a place in which everything is too big or too loud, no one seems to understand or is willing to listen. It's like being completely lost in a huge city of they try to understand arithstrangers.

This is one of the most important and difficult times in the life of a youngster, a time when he needs all the help he can get. Transylvania County is fortunate to have many residents willing to offer a helping hand to children as they begin their school career. Volunteers are assisting in schools from one of the county to the other.

From T. C. Henderson to Penrose Elementary mothers, grandmothers, college students can be found gently and patiently giving students the boost they need to make them feel taller in a strange new world.
