

14 Transylvanians Win College Honors

Dr. Branson L. Thurston, dean of Brevard College, has announced the students achieving highest academic honors and placed on the Dean's List achieved an academic average of 3.5. An additional 76 students achieved an academic average of 3.0 during the fall semester, placing them on the College Honor Roll.

Students receiving these high academic honors present an interesting study in the geographical representation of the Brevard College student body. Among those named for academic honors were students from Ontario, Canada, Tervuren, Belgium, Juneau, Alaska, and Hong Kong. Some 12 states are represented, with the most honor students from North Carolina.

In announcing the Dean's List and Honor Roll, Dr. Thurston stated, "It is always a pleasure to recognize students who have achieved at a high academic level."

The students on the Dean's List and Honor Roll at Brevard College represent the high academic standing of the college, and its commitment to a quality education. We are very proud of these fine young men and women who through self-discipline and study have achieved this recognition."

Students from the Transylvania County area making the Dean's List are: Deborah Elizabeth DeBord, Christine Gomez, Sonia Elaine Ingraham, Dagmar Ilse Klimek, Dolores Anita Harrington, Timothy Lee Monteith, and Bobby Harold Woods, all of Brevard.

Students making the Honor Roll from Transylvania County are: Philip Ronald Cavinder, Rachel Cathey Daniels, Don Pete Lance, Linda Gil Monteith, Carol Foynn Wheeler, all of Brevard; Billy Keith Wilson, Pisgah Forest; and John Harvey Wilson, Rosman.

Gustafson Rites Held On Sunday

report the committee will file with the Government Accounting Office on January 31 are mostly from North Carolina, but among those from other states are Evelyn Lincoln, former secretary to President Kennedy who wrote in her book about the White House that Sanford was Kennedy's choice for Vice President in 1964; John Seigenthaler, publisher and editor of the Nashville Tennessean; Jonathan Daniels of Hilton Head, S.C., author and retired editor who served in the White House with Presidents Roosevelt and Truman; and J. B. Fuqua of Atlanta.

Contribution totals show $13,146 in the period ending August 31, $49,195 in the period ending December 31, and $7,931 since January 1.

Sanford, now president of Duke University, is expected to make a decision and announcement on becoming a candidate for the Democratic Party's presidential nomination during the early spring of 1975.

State Of Appalachian Arts To Be Discussed

BOONE — The Appalachian Consortium will hold an open meeting Wednesday, Jan. 29, on the state of the arts and design in the Southern Appalachian Mountains.

The meeting will be held at the Lees McRae College library in Banner Elk at 11 a.m., and interested organizations and citizens are invited to attend.

Mrs. Mary B. Ragan, program director, N. C. Council of the Arts, will be the featured speaker.

The program will open with a 12-minute film, "Design for the Arts," which recently was produced by the National Endowment for the Arts. The film deals with the visual impact of everything from buildings to street signs.

The N. C. Council of the Arts has awarded the Appalachian Consortium a $5,000 grant to begin an "Artist-in-Residence and Traveling Exhibit" program. At the meeting, plans for the utilization of this grant will be made.

Borden Mace, executive director of the Appalachian Consortium, says that the major objective of the meeting is to consider the state of the arts in the mountains, particularly the visual and performing arts.

"The mountain region has fewer arts councils than any other section of the state. We would like to remedy this and establish a means of bringing artists of all types into our communities.

Representatives from the Winston-Salem Arts Council, and N. C. Council of the Arts and artist Leon Stacks of Blowing Rock will attend the meeting.
