

HUNK ANDERSON FIRES THREE N. C. STATE PLAYERS

Tatum, Odell Smothers and Howard Bardes Dropped for "Best Interest Of Squad"

Anderson Refuses To Elaborate On His Latest Actions

All Three Seniors

Players Were Notified After Yesterday's Skull Practice

Nov. 2.—(U.P.)—Hunk Anderson, head football coach at North Carolina State college, today dropped three senior members of the football squad.

Anderson, whose team plays at the college of Eastern Carolina, said the players—Jess Tatum, 185-pound varsity right end, Odell Smothers, center from Winston-Salem, and Howard Bardes, 180-pound center from Winterville—had been dropped for the "best interests of the squad."

The players were notified of the news at today's skull practice. Anderson, who came to North Carolina State from Notre Dame, is said to have been in the gymnasium to elaborate on his action. His team has played hit-and-run football this season, winning five out of seven games. The season before the season began was the best since Anderson came to Raleigh three years ago.

Each of the trio has been in the starting lineup this season, and Anderson, who came to State from Notre Dame, has been a regular end this season. Smothers and Bardes also have been on the team.

Saturday, after scoring a six-point lead over the University of North Carolina during the first half of the state college eleven game and was defeated 21 to 14. Earlier in the season, Wake Forest and Davidson colleges, both former conference teams, defeated State. Manhattan college defeated State at New York city, 30 to 6.

Notes From The Gridiron

By HENRY SUPER
United Press Staff Correspondent
New York, Nov. 2.—(U.P.)—Marcel (Red) Chesbro, Colgate tackle, is a tough man. . . . During summers while in high school he worked on a farm. . . . One day one of his boss's horses became sick. . . . so Red said: "Let me take the horse's place. I can pull as much as any horse. . . ." He worked alongside the other horse and helped plow a whole field. . . . Ironically, Holy Cross' record was spoiled this year by Temple, the last team to defeat the Crusaders. . . . Holy Cross lost its last game in 1934. . . . Gus Dorais, Detroit coach, claims the element of luck is a bigger factor in the success or failure of a football coach than any occupation he can think of. . . . "In no other occupation," he says, "can I recall the best efforts of a man glimmering in a moment because of conditions he cannot control."

Yale hasn't missed scoring since the day Larry Kelley donned an Eli uniform in 1934. . . . since then, Yale has scored in 22 straight games. . . . Favorite past-time of some San Francisco fans is to hate "Slip" Madigan, St. Mary's football coach. . . . The association gathers behind the Gael bench and roars "Sit down, Slip," every time Madigan starts prancing up and down the sidelines, which is often.

Eight of Maryland's gridiron stars were 1935 baseball lettermen. . . . Notre Dame's colors are blue and gold. . . . St. Mary's are red and blue. . . . Yet to carry out their Irish nicknames they both wear green jerseys. . . . Frank Souchak, Pittsburgh end, is No. 1 man on his school's golf team.

Linscott Hall, substitute Army center, is a Sunday school teacher at the Point. . . . Ray Pinell, son of Babe Pinell, National league umpire and former Cincinnati infielder, is a freshman candidate at Notre Dame.

Olympic track stars are making good on the gridiron. . . . Forrest Towns, hurdler, is an end on Georgia. . . . Marty Glickman, sprinter, is playing with Cornell. . . . Sam Francis, shot putter, is with Nebraska. . . . Dimitri Zaitz, another weight man, is a guard for Boston college. . . . and Paul Amen, who was on the baseball team, is a Nebraska end.

with them. In the absence of a competent investigation, I shall not particularize; but I do feel that it is essential that I should take cognizance of a situation which, if it persists, not only will do immeasurable harm to the Legion but will undermine the faith of the people in the Legion and in our democratic form of government.

"The American Legion is opposed to communism. But there is nothing, . . . which even remotely implies that we should suspend the Constitution of the United States, violate the principles of our own organization, and use force or violence or intimidation to suppress any group.

"Our opposition to communism is based primarily on the fact that it seeks to overthrow our form of government by force or violence. Now, then, we can hope to accomplish our purpose if we resort to force or violence? When we do, we not only descend to the level of communists but we play squarely into their hands. We discredit our own cause. We prevent the law from taking its course. We give aid and comfort to the communist party in America by furnishing it with publicity it otherwise would not have."

Braddock Will Fight McCarthy In New Orleans

Hot Springs, Ark., Nov. 2.—(U.P.) Heavyweight Champion Jimmy Braddock will meet Jack McCarthy in an exhibition match at New Orleans November 16, Joe Gould, the champion's manager, said tonight.

Gould signed a contract for the bout with Martin Burke, New Orleans promoter.

Braddock has been taking health baths here for several weeks to cure arthritis which has troubled him and which caused postponement of a championship bout with Max Schmeling. He will start gym work this week in preparation for the exhibition.

Aces Play Franklin, Va. At Edenton On Friday Afternoon

Coach Holton Has Molded Working Team Around Brilliant Layton

Coach David Holton announced here last night that the Edenton Aces would meet the Franklin Va. High School eleven on Hicks field in Edenton for the season's first interstate game. The Aces will have many important responsibilities on their shoulders when they meet this fast Virginia eleven. First they will be fighting to keep the Hicks field record clean for not a single club large or small has been able to defeat the Aces on Hicks field since the State Championship outfit from Elizabeth City in 1933 handed the Aces the short end of the rope. The closest that this record has been endangered was in the Roanoke Rapids game this year when the Aces played the heavy Rapids team to a scoreless tie in a conference game played on a field of mud in a driving rain.

The Aces will try to uphold the reputation of the old North State against the invading Virginians, as well as the honor of their high school.

Looking back over the record of the 1936 edition of the Aces you'll find David Holton first appearing on the scene at a late hour to succeed a former schoolmate and team mate as coach. You'll see only a few regulars returning to school as the squad had been hit hard by graduation, but the quantity of candidates are better than usual with the quality untested. Holton goes to work and molds a mottier working combination that is fast and shifty with one Melvin Layton as the spearhead of the attack. The team slowly begins to roll along and by time the season opens the Aces are a nice working team for the experience they have.

They open by crushing Windsor by a heavy score and holding Roanoke Rapids to a scoreless tie. The following week in their annual game with the Jackets they were at their peak. They played an alert heads up game all the way into to lose in the final minutes of play by one point margin. The next week the Aces start climbing again as they take up right where they left off and take a fighting Williamston team who is trying for their first conference

Edward VIII To Strut His Stuff

Edward has met parliament he must take the oath of allegiance to the Protestant religion before he reads from the throne the speech his cabinet has prepared; secondly, as the king has no consort there will be only one throne on the dais, for the first time since the death of Queen Victoria; and, third, as the coronation is not until next May, the King will not wear the crown, which will be borne before him into the house of lords by a peer and taken out before him when he leaves.

Queen Mary will not attend, but the King's three brothers will motor in from their country homes and stand at the right of the throne.

En route to Westminster, the only other occupant of the coach of state will be the Duke of Beaufort, master of horse.

While no incidents are anticipated, the commissioner of police is taking no chances. For the first time in history, each alternate pair of policemen lining the route will have their backs to the royal procession, thus facing and scrutinizing the crowds.

The King reaches the house of lords at 11:45 a. m. and the ceremony, oath, reading of the speech and disrobing is expected to take 30 minutes.

Sacrifices Entire Family

Human sacrifice to a Hindu god, involving the death of a whole family of seven persons has been carried out at Villupuram, India. The police discovered the bodies of a man and his wife, together with those of five children, at the foot of a sacred hill temple. Before the clay idol of the elephant god were found broken coconuts, burnt camphor and other offerings, apparently indicating that the family had performed a sacrificial ritual before offering themselves. It is thought that the father killed his family and then committed suicide

PIGEONS As a Business or Hobby

We are all interested in some kind of hobby, ours being pigeons we will try to give you readers of The Daily Independent an idea of how pigeons are kept.

In large cities fanciers keep their birds on the roofs of tenement houses, in the attic of their homes, but we people in small cities have yard space sufficient to hold an individual loft for our pets.

All that is necessary to keep a flock of pigeons is a small house with a fly pen. We will give the dimensions of a pigeon loft for 25 pairs of pigeons, for smaller flocks the size may be decreased.

Go into your yard and find a small plot of land and construct a house 18 inches off the ground, eight feet square, facing the south, southeast or east; build the interior seven feet high in front and six feet in the rear which will give plenty of head clearance, putting enough double nests on each side to accommodate 25 pairs of birds which will be 25 pairs of nests. Instead of building nests, you can use one orange or egg crate for each pair of birds. By all means make the house tight so as to prevent drafts. After the house is completed build to the front of it a wire pen eight feet square to give the birds sunlight and exercise. On each side of the wire pen place a running board eight inches wide and cover the ground of the wire pen with sand and gravel.

Joe Ryneska, the team's great fullback, was among those injured in its hard-fought game Saturday with North Carolina, but Coach Hunk Anderson said today that he believed the injured men would be able to play by Saturday.

Charlie Gadd, No. 1 quarterback, also was hurt in the second half and he had to be helped from the field. Gadd has done a swell job the past three games in guiding the Wolves.

Dan Piloseno, right guard, and Cowboy Robinson, left halfback, monogram men who missed the Carolina game because of injuries sustained against V. P. I., also will join the squad this week.

Eddie Entwistle, also injured in the V. P. I. game, and Ren Hook, injured in practice two weeks ago, are not expected to play. Both are monogram backs.

State will have but four drills at home this week as it plans to leave Thursday night for Boston, getting to the Massachusetts city in time Friday for a final workout there.

Boston is a new foe on the State schedule. The team is coached by Gil Doble, who is serving his first year at Boston. Doble was coach at Cornell before Carl Snavely, former Carolina mentor, took over the coaching reins there this fall.

BOSTON COLLEGE IS NEXT IN LINE FOR WOLFPACK

Hunk Anderson Will Take Wolves On Their Second Northern Trip

College Station, Raleigh, Nov. 2. North Carolina State's Wolfpack hopes to be in top shape for its inter-sectional game Saturday afternoon with Boston college at Boston.

The Wolves suffered several injuries in its hard-fought game Saturday with North Carolina, but Coach Hunk Anderson said today that he believed the injured men would be able to play by Saturday.

Joe Ryneska, the team's great fullback, was among those injured. He was hurt in the second half. Ryneska was State's most consistent ground gainer and he also played a fine defensive game. He scored State's touchdown.

Charlie Gadd, No. 1 quarterback, also was hurt in the second half and he had to be helped from the field. Gadd has done a swell job the past three games in guiding the Wolves.

COMING EVENTS CAST...

Coming events cast their shadows before. So do elections. That is why there is no more interesting topic today than politics. Discussion of candidates, platforms, administration policies and who will win, can be heard on every side. As the 1936 election casts its shadow over the Capitol, United Press political writers are swinging into action. National surveys are being made; intimate background knowledge is being gathered on political situations in crucial states; interviews with political leaders are being obtained. Every side and phase of the swiftly changing political picture is being covered in the traditionally objective, accurate United Press manner. This is one of the many factors recognized by dominant newspapers as making the United Press the greatest world-wide news service.
