Caroline Chatfield Says

People who blunder through life treading on tender toes, putting their finger on sore spots, never have grown up mentally.

DEAR MISS CHATFIELD: I have been disappointed in love and much to my embarrassment the facts have become generally known to acquaintances that have no heart for one in an unhappy plight. Not only am I in a mental agony over loss of a loved one, but I am constantly being laughed at as "a love-lorn." Can't you say something that will make the thoughtless show pity and at least refrain from making jokes at the expense of a aching heart? DISTRESSED.

ANSWER: Friend, have you ever been in a street crowd when a fellow slipped on a banana peeling? There always are some people who laugh on loud when they see him so down. Apparently they have no thought that he may have broken his head or injured his spine. Everybody that sees the man fall has the impulse to laugh but there are some who have enough consideration for his plight to hide their merriment. There is something funny about the other fellow's misfortune that could have overtaken us but didn't.

Have you ever observed how cruel little children are, until they learn to think? A child will poke fun at a cripple, tease a deformed child about his deformity, taunt a stupid one for the lonesome answer he gives the teacher. Just put a little child in the room with a grown-up who has a de-facing birthmark and he will stare, gape and finally ask questions about the defect. As children grow up they learn to consider other people's feelings, to hide their mirth at another's misfortune, to refrain from making comments that are embarrassing and humiliating. But—some people never grow up, except in height and weight. They don't learn to think. They have arrested mental development and carry over into maturity their childish reactions and behavior. Consequently they blunder through life making "bulls," treading on tender toes, putting their fingers on sore spots. These big people with little brains are a curse but we have to accept them as is, when we are unfortunate enough to be thrown with them. We can only make the occasions few and far between.

Human nature untamed is pretty depressing. It is hard and cruel and brutal. All the things that give sweetness and light to our lives are the result of taming of that wild nature. Courtesy, kindness, gentleness, consideration of the other fellow's feelings, the effort to put ourselves in another's place, to sympathize with his suffering, to say and do the things that heal it rather than aggravate it, these come with the education of mind and heart. One of the last things to fall before the softening influence of maturity is that primitive sense of humor which episodes when we see another in a misfortune that could have overtaken anybody—but didn't overtake us. CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

'SNEAK PREVUE' IS THE LATEST FILM TECHNIQUE

New Features Now Shown First Outside of Calif., Sometimes Abroad

By HENRY SUTHERLAND
UP Hollywood Correspondent

Hollywood, Jan. 11.—(UP)—"Sneak Previews," which drifted all over the United States last year to obtain better audience reactions than those Hollywood afforded, are becoming an international institution.

Improvement of overseas markets is the object of the trend, and while English producers are leaders in the movement Hollywood moguls won't be far behind.

Most striking example is offered by Stephen Pallos, general manager of London films, who brought "Fire Over England" all the way to Hollywood for its first public preview.

"American receipts now constitute 30 per cent of our grosses," he explained, "and we hope to raise that figure to 50 per cent. We intend to sneak preview future pictures in several sections of your country before final editing and release, in order to be sure of pleasing a maximum of American audiences."

Similarly Samuel Goldwyn revealed he resorted to the international preview before releasing "Beloved Enemy."

"We make pictures not only for the American market but for England and the continent," he said, "and it behooves us to consult tastes of all these lands. 'Beloved Enemy' was previewed in both England and Canada before release."

Cecil B. DeMille recently adopted the cross-country system of previewing with experimental showings of "The Plainsman" from coast to coast, but he did not take the picture abroad.

Another producer who has abandoned Hollywood and Southern California as a preview laboratory is David L. Loew, who releases through RKO. Loew said he will sneak his new Joe E. Brown feature, "When's Your Birthday," in several midwestern cities and in New York before turning it over to distributors.

Leo Carrillo will fly to Washington to serve as master of ceremonies at the Democratic victory banquet and ball Jan. 20. The celebration is to be sponsored by the California Democratic club of Washington which makes Carrillo a "natural" for the job. A descendant of an early Spanish governor, Carrillo is close to being native son No. 1.

Grace Moore II, a two-year-old filly, won the Copenhagen, Denmark, New Year's Handicap. Grace Moore I, film singer, has been informed. The nag was named for Moore by Theophilus Hansen, No. 1 Danish horseman, and owner of the Lanvagesgaard stables.

Still among the horsemen—Dave Bauer, Shirley Temple's favorite director, has purchased three two-year-olds, a colt and two fillies, which he named after pictures he memorized. The horses are styled "Connecticut Yankee" after the Will Rogers comedy, and "Bright Eyes" and "Little Rebel" for two Temple vehicles.

RKO-Radiomen strive to do the gallant thing by "Jubilee Jim" Fisk, old-time railroad stock manipulator, and the result is good for a chuckle. Doing a film version of Joseph Mathewson's book, they changed the title from "Rouben Barons," to "The Toast of the New York."

Grata Garbo is hoofing daily at Metro learning to do the quadrille for her role as "Countess Walewska." Napoleon is Polish sweetie, Val Rasetz, period dance expert, is her instructor, and the going is said to be heavy.

MARIAN MARTIN BUTTON-BRIGHT STYLE FOR TOT'S ALL-PURPOSE WEAR

PATTERN 9182

Buttons, buttons... who's got buttons? Why, little Miss Two-Ten, of course, and they serve as fasteners for the back of her cunning frock, and as bright ornaments on the bodice front. Ever so proud of her all-purpose model is this fashion-conscious kiddie, for she's the envy of her playmates in long or short party sleeves and brief, flared skirt that is crisp with full pleats. Same grand style for school, parties, play—is pattern 9182, and is equally fetching made up in wide variety of wear-well fabrics. She'll lock sweet as can be in flower-spangled percale, or checked gingham that is made to withstand hard wear. Brightly spring-tafted, dimity or dotted swiss would be good for party wear. Easily made with the aid of the complete diagrammed Marian Martin sew chart.

Pattern 9182 may be ordered only in sizes 2, 4, 6, 8 and 10. Size 6 requires 2 1/2 yards of 36-inch fabric.

Send 15c in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for each Marian Martin pattern. Be sure to write plainly your SIZE, NAME, ADDRESS, and STYLE NUMBER.

Be an early bird! Get your copy of our new Marian Martin pattern book now! It's chock full of sparkling easy-to-make spring fashions—frocks for kiddies, juniors, teens, as well as for mother. You'll find daytime and sports frocks galore! Party frocks, too, and smart styles for teens. Behold the new-season fabrics and ways to use them to best advantage. Book, 15c; pattern, 15c.
