

THE OLD GRAY UNIFORM.

We had the pleasure of reading last week, a letter written from Charleston during the confederate Reunion there some weeks ago, by Mr. A. W. Grandy, brother of Sheriff N. G. Grandy, of this town, giving an interesting account of the meeting, the inspirations of comradeship and the memories of that great conflict in which Southern heroes maintained a bloody conflict for four long years in defence of their homes and families against the world in arms.

Mr. W. O. Grandy is an old Confederate Veteran, a native "Tar Heel," born in Camden county. He entered the Confederate service as a volunteer in Capt. Duke's Company, of Camden, upon the first call to arms, was captured at the Battle of Hatteras, as a prisoner of war, and when released on exchange, he entered the service again with a Virginia company from Norfolk and Portsmouth, being in Norfolk on business when the Virginia company was made up.

Mr. Grandy is now an old man, but reminiscence of the old war times when he meets his old war-worn comrades he is like the old war-horse that snuffs the battle from afar. He was young again at Charleston, and it does one good to see the old spirit that breathes through his burning words.

He never fails to attend the Confederate reunions, and always attends in his old grey Confederate uniform pierced by bullets that often brought him to the verge of death. This uniform is perhaps the only one preserved so that it can be worn. And it has come to be a recognized witness in its open bullet holes of that bloody time that tried the souls and bodies of Southern heroes who fought and pledged their lives for the defence of their homes and families. Mr. Grandy always attends the Confederate Reunions, always attends in his well preserved old Confederate grey uniform, and thus uniformed, he is always assigned a place at the head of the column, in the line of the procession.

While marching, thus conspicuous, he was given a special salutation by General John B. Gordon, President of the association of Confederate Veterans, at Charleston, an honor that the old man cherishes with special gratification.

God bless the grand old Veteran! bless him in health and happiness, in his goings and comings, in basket and store, in his domestic and social relations, may he attend many more re-unions with his old comrades, in his well worn grey uniform, may he continue to march with it at the head of the column, and when his eventful life ends may he rest in Abraham's bosom in the consciousness of duty done in a sacred cause, whose purpose God in his wise but inscrutable Providence overruled.

NO RIGHT TO ULICNESS.

The woman who is lovely in face, form and temper will always have friends, but one who would be attractive must keep her health. If she is weak, sickly and all run down, she will be nervous and irritable. If she has constipation or kidney trouble, her impure blood will cause pimples, blotches, skin eruptions and wretched complexion. Electric Bitters is the best medicine in the world to regulate stomach, liver and kidneys and to purify the blood. It gives strong nerves, bright eyes, smooth, velvety skin, rich complexion. It will make a good-looking, charming woman of a run-down invalid. Only 50 cents at Alex. Wadsworth Drug Store.

THE FILIPINO FIGHT.

"As we predicted," to use the copious language of a distinguished contemporary, the Filipino war has just begun, and the preparations for war with all its expense and slaughter has just begun. Gen. Otis has called for thirty thousand more troops for a war to be conducted under a tropical sun, in mountain fastnesses, jungles and morasses, where mosquitoes grow, under favorable circumstances, to the proportions of a good sized bumble bee, and where the rains are a constant pour down for half the year, where guerilla soldiers can molest an army of regular soldiers beyond their powers of endurance. They "cry peace, peace, but there is no peace." Burning towns and bereaved households testify to the flagrant existence of war. They may have peace jubilees, but they are a delusion and a fraud. It should be a festival of the solemn kind, a penitential festival for peace. Mr. McKinley has evidently miscalculated. He doubtless thought that he would be laurel-crowned with a hero's badge without a hero's peril. He now learns too late, the lesson that a despised foe may be an implacable enemy. Did he ever read Esop's Fable of the Farmer and the mouse? If not he'll find it very interesting reading. He has involved our country in a war for expansion that no one can see the end thereof.

Our life is a school book and we shut it up before we have learned half its lessons. An early lesson and a wise one is to "beware the entrance to a quarrel." President McKinley is young man yet, and we suppose he has not gotten through the "first reader," of his curriculum. altho Marcus Aurelius Hanna lifted him by the unmentionables into a cushioned seat in the Blue Room of the White House. Hanna's first lesson in the arts and trickeries of corrupt Republican politics, was to do all he could to humiliate the Southern people, because they were "rebels" when Aurelius was a boy in pants, because they had no friends at the North, because they were the down dog in the fight for their homes and families and because the Northern fanatics would believe any slander that might be manufactured about them, and because the decent white Southern men, who were Democrats, thought themselves above, beyond and superior to republican, negroes, scalawags, carpet baggers and low white "lewed fellows of the baser sort."

HIS LIFE WAS SAVED.

Mr. J. E. Lilly, a prominent citizen of Hannibal, Mo., lately had a wonderful deliverance from a frightful death. In telling of it he says: "I was taken with Typhoid Fever, that ran into pneumonia. My lungs became hardened. I was so weak that I could not even sit up in bed. Nothing helped me. I expected to soon die of Consumption when I heard of Dr. King's New Discovery. One bottle gave great relief. I continued to use it, and am now well and strong. I can't say too much in praise of this marvelous medicine is the surest and quickest cure in the world for all Throat and Lung trouble. Regular size 50 cents $1.00. Trial bottle free at Alex. Wadsworth Drug Store; every bottle guaranteed.

AARON THOMAS.

A worthy old negro man departed this life at Powell's Point, in Currituck county on Thursday, June 1st, 1898, and the people of Currituck propose to erect a marble monument to his memory. His name was Aaron Thomas. He departed at 82 1/2 years, and had lived a worthy life at Powell's Point where he was born. He was polite, kind and respectful and had the respect of all the community. He had always voted the Democratic ticket with his white neighbors, and to the jeers, threats and protestations of the negro Republican voters, he had but one reply—that the best white men and the most of them voted the Democratic ticket and they knew best what was best for the country. Every time that there was an election he came, elbowed his way through the crowds of negroes that

JOHN J. INGALLS.

Some men are called "all round" men. Some men are called "one idea" men. The latter are called "men with a hobby," and sometimes called "cranks." The first named are commended for their versatility, their adaptability, their mansidedness and general utility. But some of the "all round" men, are many sided in meanness, cussedness and shamelessness. The most conspicuous of the latter description, and the most debased, is that purposefully obstructed him, and quietly deposited his Democratic vote. He did so to the last. The last vote he gave was in November of last year. He was never a slave, but was always well-behaved and had the respect and good will of all who knew him.

It will heal your lungs, and make them strong for another winter. 50c. and $1.00; all druggists. Write for catalogue and full particulars. F. J. LITTLE & CO., Philadelphia, Pa.

We are delighted to hear that the noble people of Currituck county intend to honor the memory of the good old colored man. They honor themselves in honoring him, and they do us honor in sending a request to us by one of their best citizens that I would prepare a suitable inscription for his monument, which I will do to the best of our poor ability.

In his late excellent speech in Boston, Ex-Governor Northen, of Georgia, said the South had been derelict in failing to erect a monument to the slaves who had been so faithful to the helpless families of the Confederate soldiers who were absent from their homes in the military service of the Confederacy. It is a just complaint, but Currituck is doing its duty to a faithful negro man, who, tho, not a slave, was a black man with his race instincts and was faithful to his white friends, not only when the old slave was faithful, but after the war, when the slave was led by the carpet bagger and the low white men, to antagonize the Democrats and the white men. He, old Aaron Thomas, turned a deaf ear to the syren voice of the deceiver, and clung to the white man and to the Democratic party that they represented, and amid jeers and peril, clung to it and them without waiver to the end.

HOT AND COLD.

We have to do what is not our wont, in this issue. Elsewhere we have spoken in terms more emphatic than elegant, of words written by one John J. Ingalls, about our home in the South, in which we likened him to a man who fires your house at midnight, and we likened him to all the wild beasts of evil omen that we could recall, but we had hardly ground off the point of our Faber, when we read another article written by the same J. J. Ingalls that disarmed us in the middle of our madness.

The first reference is to his recommendation of the San Domingo incendiary negro Ouviture as a model for the emancipated negroes of the South, as a logical solution of the race problem at the South, and the last is to his clear and forcible article on the trust question. For the first, he is an object of detestation and horror to every decent white man in the South. For the last, he is entitled to commendation for ability. Taken both together he is himself a problem of humanity which has one solution and that is, that J. J. Ingalls is one of those unfortunate specimens of humanity that is every thing by starts and nothing long, who is vena and full of acrimony, envy, hatred and malice, whose virtue is a marketable factor, that he has no fixed principles, and will serve an enemy as quick as a friend and can betray either with equal facility. Let no such man be trusted.

Secret of Beauty

is health. The secret of health is the power to digest and assimilate a proper quantity of food. This can never be done when the liver does not act its part. Do you know this? Tutt's Liver Pills are an absolute cure for sick headache, dyspepsia, sour stomach, malaria, constipation, torpid liver, piles, jaundice, bilious fever, biliousness and kindred diseases.

Kansas "statesman out of a job," yecept John J. Ingalls. He is an ex-Senator of the United States, defeated and turned out of his place by a Kansas woman of doubtful reputation, a frequenter of prize fights for the pelf that is in them for himself, a shameless prostitute for pay, a national incendiary, a disturber of the peace, a promoter of race conflicts, an enemy of two races, who might live in harmony in the consciousness of their relations, but for him and such as him. If the doctrine of temporism was true, then it would legitimately follow that John Brown's spirit, after rearing around, had finally settled in the body of John Ingalls, for a final rest. The first John and the last John are kindred spirits. The first was hanged at Harper's ferry and the last should personate the character of the Toussant L. Overture, whom he recommends for the South as a settler to the negro problem, and should go to Georgia, and, if he escapes there, should come to North Carolina.
