

THE FALL OF GOREZIA

And the Breaking of the Austrian Hold in Central Lines

IS VIENNA REPORT

Austrians, Fighting Desperately, Are Reported to Be Making Preparations to Give Up the City.

London, Nov. 20.—The fall of Gorezia and the breaking of the Austrian hold in the central lines are reported to Vienna. A dispatch from Zurich says that Italian infantry is preparing for the final and best assault on Gorezia. The Austrians, fighting desperately, are reported to be making preparations to give up the city and fall back to a new line which has been prepared for some time. The Austrian losses yesterday are said to have been eight thousand.

All news from Italian sources says that the Austrian line on Gorezia is nearly broken. The allies tonight claim that the Austrian troops in the face of various assaults have regained all their positions.

Throughout the night the Italians kept up bombardments of the city and the defenses leading to it. No less than 3,000 shells are reported to have fallen in Gorezia. All the buildings of the city have been reduced to ruins and are burning and the loss of life among the civilian population is reported heavy.

The Italians have gained a strong foothold on Monte San Michele, which commands the city. An official dispatch issued today in Rome announces the capture of the Austrian position between the summit of the heights.

Although official confirmation of the occupation of Monasteri by the Bulgarians has not been received, London has accepted it as probably true.

Serbian military officials observe here are regarded as steadily growing worse. The capture of Diery by the Bulgarians, has made the way for the Austrians, and the Serbian forces in the north are steadily giving way before the Austro-German armies.

The capture of five more Serbian towns and 2,800 more Serbians is announced today by the war office at Berlin.

Recent news dispatches from Athens say the Serbians are retreating before the Bulgarians in good order. They have lost no prisoners, and have saved all their artillery of value.

Bombardment of Ostend, Belgium, by British monitors is announced in this afternoon's official report from Berlin. The statement says the monitors were driven off by German coast batteries.

Artillery firing at various points last night and hand grenade fighting were announced by Paris war office.

The Central News correspondent at Bern, Switzerland, telegraphed today that the diplomats there understand a declaration of war on Germany by Italy is only a matter of hours.

The attack is said to have been without warning. The State Department was officially advised of the vessel's sinking by the consul at Harwich, England.

Republican Leader For Preparedness Good and Strong.

Washington, Nov. 20.—"I am for preparedness and I am for it strong. I am perfectly willing to co-operate in any non-partisan program for adequate national defense." With this statement today Republican Leader James E. Mann, of Illinois, was the first official announcement of the Republican attitude towards President Wilson's recent plans. The co-operation which the Republicans will give the Democrats, Mr. Mann said, however, must be of the sort that includes consultation of the leaders of the features of the program and not the kind that would require the Republicans to accept any proposals the President should make.

The statement by Mr. Mann followed closely on the heels of an announcement at the White House that the President had invited Mr. Mann and Senator Gallinger to confer with him in the general legislative program. The invitation was sent by the President in accordance with his policy of making the fight for preparedness along non-partisan lines. With Mr. Mann's support of military preparedness and the coming out of Speaker Champ Clark yesterday with an assurance that he believes in adequate defense, Representative Kitchin, majority leader of the House, is the only party leader in Washington who opposes strengthening military defenses of the nation.

VILLA NOW RETREATING

His Orders Were to Capture Obregon Dead or Alive

HAS ONLY 3,000 MEN

"Until You Have Captured or Killed Obregon, You Must not Return to Main Army," Villa Said.

Villa Said.

Douglas, Arizona, Nov. 20.—Villa's retreating army lost 600 dead and 900 wounded in one of the bloodiest engagements fought since the battle of Agua Prieta, when it was attacked yesterday afternoon at Alamo, Sonora, by Carranzista forces. Alamo is twenty miles north of Hermosillo. The battle raged for five hours, according to a report today from General Obregon. The Carranzista leader also claims the capture of two cannon, 6 machine guns, 400 rifles and several carloads of provisions and other war supplies. Obregon did not mention the Carranzista losses.

The Villa force was one of the two columns into which the northern leader's army has been united. This column was moving to attack Hermosillo, the capital of the State.

The other Column, under General Rodriguez, is entrenched at Cananea. The bulk of Obregon's army, numbering about 7,000 men, left Villa Verde this morning to attack Rodriguez. The latter has about 5,000 men.

According to Carranzista officials here, General Villa himself is moving eastward from his headquarters with about 3,000 men.

Major Sylvan, an officer of the Villa bodyguard, declared that Villa several days ago gave orders to the thousand men in this picked body to "Bring in General Alvaro Obregon dead or alive."

"Until you have captured or killed Obregon, you will not return to the main army," was Villa's final injunction.

Austra Wants Submarine Question Reconsidered.

Washington, Nov. 20.—Ambassador Page, at Rome, called the State Department today that he had been informed by the Italian foreign office that it had no reason to believe the submarine which sank the Ancona was other than Austrian. State Department officials said this made it certain that the United States would confine any representations it may make to Austria. Another development in the Ancona case today was the confidential intimation received by the State Department that Austria may inform the United States that it is not bound by the German agreement with this government on the submarine question. It is understood that Austria is contemplating asking the United States to consider the entire submarine question as new negotiations with that government. If Austria should make this demand, it is said it will be on the ground that international law does not expressly govern the case of warfare by submarines.

Frictions Between Departments of Justice and State

Washington, Nov. 20.—The second case of friction between government executive departments over alleged neutrality violations and bomb cases developed today. State Department officials showed resentment against the Department of Justice for making public a statement in which Austrian Consul-General Von Nuber at New York, was named as being implicated in the alleged plot.

Previously the Department of Justice and the Treasury Department had clashed over the activity of the agent of the latter department. It was alleged they were outside jurisdiction. State Department officials made it certain that they considered the Department of Justice overstepped its limits when it named Consul-General Von Nuber. It was stated that the duty of the Department of Justice was only to collect the evidence.

The passport cases came to the front again tonight when it was announced that Chief Bickel of the Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice, had departed suddenly for Atlantic City. It is understood he is to question Gustav Stahl and others serving sentences at passport frauds. It is believed Stahl and his accomplices had word to the department that they are willing to give evidence concerning anyone implicated in the case.

Unprecedented Cruelty of a Maryland Father

Easton, Md., Nov. 20.—A tale of cruelty unprecedented in the annals of this section is being unfolded to the grand jury in its investigation of charges against Frank Marshall, a farmer living near here, whose daughter Grace, now 28 years old was found a prisoner in a room 8819 in which she had been confined since she was sixteen years old. The woman is now nothing but skin and bones and devoid of mind. According to the information so far obtained, the girl was locked in the room 12 years ago for disobedience to her parents. She escaped by jumping out of the window; her leg was broken and she was taken back into the house and the leg was set; but the surgery was faulty and the limb now is four inches shorter than the other. Her mother died some time later and her father married again. A sister of Grace died and, it is said, the impression was given that the child was Grace. No one ever knew it was not until this week when an uncle of the girl from Wilmington, Del., visited the Marshall home. When he went to bed he heard groans from the room and on investigation he found the girl.

ONE NEGRO SHOTS THREE

One Shot in the Stomach, One Shot in the Hip, and One in the Knee.

Saturday night about 11 o'clock, when a bunch of negroes had gathered in front of Sidney McQueen's cafe, near the A. C. L. station, some difference arose between Bud Wright and Charlie Maynard, when Maynard whipped out a pistol and began to shoot. The first shot the ball struck Bud Wright in the pit of the stomach, the ball glanced around to Bud's right side and the doctor took it out on his right side under the arm. The second shot struck a bystander, Robt. McGro, in his left knee which made a painful but not a dangerous wound. The third shot at that time went wild. Wright and McGro were taken to the Cumberland Hospital where their wounds were dressed. About one-half hour later these men arrived at the hospital a third man by the name of Evans limped up to police headquarters with a pistol ball in his hip. He told the policemen that Charlie Maynard shot him when he met him in the street near a store on Haymount Hill and that he went to the police station to let them know who shot him. He left there going, he said, to the hospital, but he failed to find him there. Two policemen chased Maynard for a mile toward the 5th Mill, where he did the shooting of Wright and McGro, but he finally escaped.

GRIEF HITS GREEK

A Fight in the Greek Cafe Just West of the News-Office.

Saturday morning about 11:30 there was a great commotion in a Greek cafe just west of the News office, on Day street. A large crowd soon gathered to learn that there had been a fight between two Greeks. Jim Lewis the proprietor of the cafe, and his dishwasher, Nick Romanos, disagreed about an account. Romanos claimed that Lewis owed him $10 and he wanted his money. Lewis claimed that Romanos owed him $200 room rent. They kept on the dispute until they came to blows and the result was that Romanos had to be taken to the Cumberland Hospital for treatment, while Lewis was taken to the police station to give an account of his conduct. He gave bond in the sum of $50 for his appearance in court Monday morning at 10 o'clock. Romanos did not seem very seriously hurt.

FORTY-ONE TO NOTHING

Harvard Wins Over Yale By a Substantial Score

ONE-SIDED GAME

Forty-Seven Thousand Persons Separated Themselves From $2.00 Each to See the Game.

Boston, Mass., Nov. 20.—Forty-seven thousand persons separated themselves from $2.00 each for the privilege of sitting in the horseshoe stands in Soldiers' Field this afternoon where the Yale and Harvard gridiron gladiators met in their annual clash.

The score was, Harvard 41; Yale, nothing. Harvard ruled as 10 to 6 favorite in the betting that preceded the combat. There was considerable Yale money in sight, the rooters for the Shelvin-led Yale eleven feeling fairly confident that the big blue team might pass out another surprise to the already much surprised football world.

On form, Harvard seemed to be Yale's superior. Harvard's 1915 showing is far better than that of Yale. The Crimson squad outweighed that of Yale about 5 pounds to the man, but despite these handicaps there was in the Yale ranks a feeling that Shelvin may hypnotize his men into winning another victory.

The small army of "experts" gathered here couldn't see much chance for Yale, but with the memory of Harvard's victory over Princeton, and Yale's victory over Princeton fresh in their minds, they didn't express their opinion very loudly. Experting in football games has become too precarious of late for the dopes to do any instant prophesying.

Just before the battle, Shelvin gathered his men around him, bespoke them with his magnetic voice and then issued just two vital orders: (1) Follow the ball; (2) Stop Mahan. The Yalers felt that if Mahan could be stopped from making his wild dashes around the ends, or from tearing huge holes in the line, it would pave the way for a Yale victory. Mahan was the man that Yale feared in the Yale minds he gloomed as the real enemy.

And the Harvardites were told to halt line Minter Guernsey. He's the leading person, you know, the fellow who hoisted a 50 yard hoist over the goal posts last week. Haughton, 'twas whispered, has built up some plan, or some set of plans, intended to render him so combat the toe of the end Mr. Guernsey. The plan? Oh, that is the dark, deep secret that wasn't to be revealed until the footballing began in the afternoon.

Just fifteen years ago he got one finger cut off of that same hand by machinery.
