O dear what is to be done? (But I reckon they are only in fun,) The Favetteville ladies do want to know, How it is, I manage things so ?-To look and work. - knit and sew,-

And many things that are so low, And then come out, and look so neat, As any girl that walks the street. They say I'm very proud and haughty, That I hold my head so high and lofty And when I chance to come to town,

They thought I surely was deranged,

I walk as though I spurned the ground.

But since, their minds have sadly changed,

I do not wish to mention names; Although I care not who it shames. Then tell me, aunty, do,-pray do-Is she a Virginia lady too? But instead of being what they thought, They proved me to be what I ought. Well of this charge let me consider-. I'm thankful that I am not a widow, For, if I were, it's very true, There'd be but little chance for you.

Now to the Carolinian, these lines are sent, Unless some Providence should prevent; And if the Editor choose to spurn them-I hope his Devil will not burn them. For if they do not suit the times, I'll hang them up with other rhymes.
