

Edwards according to Act of Congress in the year 1863, by J. S. Thackeray in the Clerk's Office of the District Court of Confederate States, for the Northern District of Georgia

RICHMOND, June 11. The Star of the afternoon of the 12th says that along the entire line this morning, the rebels present a high bold front to us yesterday.

At Port Stephens, near the 7th Street road, the rebel line was crossed back half a mile. The skirmishers at 11 o'clock were in close proximity.

Prisoners taken say the force in the vicinity of Fort Stephens and De Russy number 40,000.

The Railroad between here and Baltimore is effectually broken up by the rebels.

RICHMOND, July 15th. The following was received today: We attacked a column of the enemy unopposed yesterday, on the march from Pontotoc, Miss., to Tupelo, making him to turn many ways.

We attacked him in position at Tupelo this morning, but could not force his position. The battle was a draw one, and lasted three hours.

Petersburg, July 15. The Chronicle of the 17th has dispatched from Baltimore to the 12th, which says: All quiet. The city is strongly defended. Business places, except drinking houses, are open.

Gunpowder bridge is in repair and will be repaired in a few days. No rebels are believed to be within 20 miles of Baltimore.

Gen. Tyler is certainly reported killed or captured.

The Clipper of Tuesday evening says, steadily we have it certain that troops sent for the emergency by Gen. Couch are gathering in front of the rebels, and that every day the rebel host lingers in this State, the greater a pill in front of Washington.

They have accepted the nation as a last resort and have come with the determination to succeed in the determination and they will not turn back without a thorough and lasting defeat.

The Chronicle says there was irregular skirmishing all day, and it was believed that the rebels were retreating to Harper's Ferry.

Lincoln's wife and several members of Congress rode to the front to watch the fight on Tuesday evening.

Couch and Hunter are reported to have formed a junction at Frederick, Md., Maryland, though it is held the lines in south Mountain, and the railroad and telegraphic communication between Washington and Baltimore after 12 o'clock on Tuesday.

Reparations, July 16. The Chronicle of the 14th has been received. The rebels continued retreating from Washington Tuesday night. The Federal cavalry followed in their rear on Wednesday, picking up some 20 or 300 prisoners.

The rebels were in large force at Blair's farm near Silver Spring. The Chronicle, editorializing, says with- in sight of the capital armed hosts are thundering defiance to the constituted authorities of the nation.

The Chronicle says Washington is the best fortified city in America, and sends a big howl much the finances of the country might suffer. Army and navy might go unprovided for and unpaid.

A dispatch from Grant's headquarters says the invasion of Maryland is looked on here as a farce. We know but very few of Lee's troops left here about day light on the 11th.

Old Abe is deep water. Mr. Lincoln has not told any one a little story since the resignation of Mr. Chase. So long as it is merely a question of the defeat of an army and the loss of the lives of five or six thousand Union soldiers, he can indulge a joke with the ordinary soldier.

He can even laugh at the failure of a pet scheme of his own, and then, but when events suddenly force him to see the power of a great combination opposed to his resolution, he appreciates that he is living in serious times.

It was supposed the rebels would re- cross to Virginia by Edward Noland's ferry. There was a cavalry skirmish near Bladensburg on Tuesday morning, in which the Federalists killed a lieutenant.

A hand car was sent through to Baltimore on Wednesday, and regular trains would run on Thursday. There was a bridge burned on the Washington and Baltimore road. Gunpowder bridge will take two days to be put in repair.

Atlanta, June 14. Two regiments of Yankee cavalry crossed the Chattahoochee at Milledgeville, six miles from Lewiston last night, and were met by Anderson's brigade of cavalry and driven back to the bridge head.

Appearance indicate that the feud in the "Republican party," so-called, is wide and deepening, and if the New York Herald is to be credited, it promises to lead to open separation and hostilities. The cause for the feud is the action of the Union League, which latter have elected in leading stripes, but Chase party, of which Fessenden, too, is a member.

The two factions have begun to come into collision in primary meetings. On the night of July 5th, a Republican meeting was held in Brooklyn, in which the feud was violent and criminations and imprecations as plentiful as blackberries. The Herald says:

"But the significance of this quarrel, breaking out at this time, is made known by the resolution during that the leaders in the Union League are now in favor of nominating some other candidate for the Presidency than Abraham Lincoln." When it is understood that the men all held positions in the Custom House, and are and have been adherents of Secretary Chase, the importance and significance of this contest is made apparent.

It is the Cabinet quarrel, extending to the rank and file of the party, and only the commencement of the breaking up of the shabby crew, which can no longer be held together by even the adhesion of a powerful political leader.

Another illustration of the bitterness of the party quarrel is seen in the following remarks taken from a speech of Senator Sprague, of Rhode Island, on the 4th of July:

"Mr. Sprague, (Rep.) of R., rose for a personal explanation, and said: 'Mr. President. In a speech made in the House of Representatives some weeks since, General Blair, then claiming to be a member from Missouri, deliberately asserted that I had received some special privileges from Secretary Chase by which I had made, or would make, some two millions of dollars, and he referred to Mr. Aspinwall as witness. Postmaster General Blair used the Post Office Department to circulate the speech, and so made himself a party in its circulation as the Secretary of my Treasury and in its impementment of my personal integrity. I have heretofore treated this malignant charge of his with silent contempt, nor should I now notice it or its author, or the brother of its author, had not new currency been given to the same. Lies reiterated, if long continued, can gain credit, and by their repetition, and by the dissemination of notice, this, not that I imagine myself the real object of attack. My brother-in-law, and his wife, Julia, have meant to strike at the Secretary of my Treasury. They had some political ends to compass, and were not scrupulous in the choice of means. I should have been glad to see the man who would serve in another capacity, I will cheerfully comply with their wishes.'"

JOHN P. McLEAN. Plymouth, N. C., July 9, 1864. To the Editors of the New York Herald: (From the New York Herald.)

Change of titles in front of the enemy is being occasionally with artillery along the river.

Atlanta, July 15. Gov. Benning having full duties here are, of course, greatly diminished in interest at the present, and I should be very ill content to stay, but for my engagement on a life of General Jackson. Having been selected for this work by Mrs. J. and Gen. Ewell, his success, I have devoted myself to it for some months, as perhaps the most useful work I could undertake, both for the cause of Christ and our country. I have received from Mrs. J., of course, all the documents her husband has, and she has been extending the most liberal facilities to me for making the narrative full and correct. General Jackson's friends and comrades in arms likewise have been exceedingly kind, and I am convinced that I have a mass of material such as no other person has or can have for illustrating his life. I shall complete it in two very modest volumes. The first is already written and about to be published. It will appear in the Confederate States and London nearly at the same time. Having been already advertised in the latter will vote on the 4th of August next. The Confederate Ticket, FOR GOVERNOR, Z. B. VANANCE.

FOR THE COMMONS, G. A. D. McLean, Harnett, J. G. Shepherd, Cumberland, G. M. J. McDuffie, do.

TO THE VOTERS OF HARRITT COUNTY. AM county. At the solicitation of many soldiers in the army, as well as many friends at home, I announce myself a candidate for the House of Commons from Chatham County. I have received an excellent education from Rabbits, the American Hero, or the orator, or those who stay at home to make money out of the families of the soldiers; and occupy their spare time in abusing better men than themselves as disloyal. I stand fairly and squarely on the platform of Liberty and Union, as G. A. D. McLean, and W. W. Holden for Governor of the world; and I believe that without the election of such men to office we will never have a permanent peace. So far as the soldiers are concerned, I do not wish to appear to boast, but I will say that I have done as much for their families, or more, according to the means than any Va. in the County of Chatham.

FELLOW CITIZENS AND SOLDIERS: Yielding to the solicitations of friends in Cumberland and Harnett counties, I have consented to serve, if elected, as a member of the House of Commons of the next General Assembly of N. C. in the County of Cumberland. Confined to Camp life, it will not be in my power to see the people. It may be proper, therefore, to state that, if elected, my influence and votes will be cast in favor of such measures as in my judgment may be best calculated to insure the success of our arms and secure the independence of the South. It will be my constant aim to look always to the comfort and care of my brother soldiers, and I shall support every measure calculated to promote their interest and to encourage and cheer them in their arduous and patriotic service. Sympathizing with the people and soldiers, whatever influence I may have shall be exerted to restrain opposition and generation of party spirit, and to preserve the good feeling and harmony of the community. I will cheerfully and lawfully do my duty, and will promote the interests of my fellow-citizens, believing that the public interest is the capacity, and is therefore bound to yield a ready obedience to the law and to the will of the people, in compliance with their wishes, in every way consistent with the public good. I have served three years in the army, and if the people now desire me to serve them in another capacity, I will cheerfully comply with their wishes.
