MORE ABOUT THE MILK MILL.

The Ashlev-Bailey silk mill at this place has aroused a national interest in the labor discussions of the day. At first it was said it would prove a failure. Now when it has proved a success, it is not the Southern white labor that is wrought up against it, but the whites of the North.

This strange attitude is explained in the following article from the Savannah Times of January 15th:

The employment of negroes in a silk mill in Fayetteville, N. C., is the occasion of bitter articles in some of the public prints of the North which are published in towns in which there are silk mills. In Paterson, particularly, the feeling against the owners of the Fayetteville mill is very pronounced. seems that the owners of this mill are residents of Paterson, and were at one time engaged in manufacturing silk in that city. It may be that they still have an interest in Paterson silk mills.

At any rate, they conceived the idea of establishing a mill in North Carolina and employing negro boys and girls as operatives, not because they preferred negro labor, but because they got it for about half what was being paid in

It seems that the Fayetteville mill is making so much more money than the Paterson mills that, at least, one mill in Paterson has had to shut down. That fact led one of the Paterson papers to feelare that a Paterson man had been the means of taking the bread out of the mouths of the white boys and girls chairman of the committee on Military of that city—that he was filling his pockets by making negro boys and girls of North Carolina work for starvation wages and sending Paterson boys and girls to the poor house. It was said that in the North Carolina mill there was a negro overseer who stood over the negro boys and girls with a rawhide whip and forced them to perform tasks beyond their ability and strength. No doubt this story of an oversee with a whip is all fiction. Such a thing would not be tolerated in North Caro lina. It may be that the parents of some of the children have given the foreman permission to correct them for offenses repeatedly committed, but it is that the negro boys and girls in the North Carolina mill are just as sure of protection from brutality of any sort from mill employers or overeers as are the operatives of the mills of Paterson.

andy Mandy in Balrigh.

The Raleigh News and Observer of Saturday gives the following interesting account of a Fayetteville negroe's experience in the capital city:

Andy Handy, a leading colored citizen of Cumberland county, appeared in the mayor's court yesterday afternoon as prosecutor in a case that at-tracted a good deal of attention among Raleign's colored population. He said that after being paid off for his service in the Legislature for two days, and starting for the depot he was approachhotel waiter, coming around the corner | stole $16 000. of the Park Hotel who hurriedly asked him to change five dollars. He promptly handed the negro $4.75 and was looking for the other twenty-five cents, holding as he supposed the bill in his hand, when the Raleigh darkey darted off and ran. He found that the bill he held was a Confederate note. He identified a negro working in the Raleigh Savings Bank, and caused his arrest.

The case was tried before His Honor Mayor Powell. The Fayetteville darkey was represented by Captain Edwin R. MacKethan, Representative from Cumberland, and the Raleigh darkey by Mr. Wm. B. Snow. With the true Cumberland spirit Capt. J. B. Smith, Sergeant-at-Arms of the Senate, was By cable to the Observer.

also present to help out the flim-flam-med darkey. After twenty-five witnesses were examined the Raleigh darkey proved a complete alibi and a good character and the case was dismissed.

"Handy Ardy" returned last night to Comberland, regretting the loss of his $4.75, but chiefly regretting that he had been flim-flammed by a Raleigh
