McKinley's Bigued Statement.

The following is the statement which Observer dispatches told last week ident McKinley had signed:

President McKinley had eigned:

I vegret that the suggestion of a third term has been made. I doubt whether I am called upon to give it notice; but there are now questions of the gravest importance before the administration and the country and their just consideration aboult not be prejudiced in the public mind by aven the suspicion of the thought of a third term. In viow, therefore, of the reiteration of the suggestion of it, I will say now, once for all, expressing a long settled conviction, that I not only am not and will not be a candidate for a third term, but would not accept a nomination for it, if it were tendered ms.

My only ambition is to sorve through my second term to the acceptance of my sound term to the acceptance of my country, whose generous indulgence I so deeply appreciate, and then with them do my duty in the ranks of private citizenship.

Messra, McKerthan, Rankin, Satton Messra hickortian, Rankin, Satton, Brown, and perhaps other young gentlemen, who have, indeed, acted gentlemanly, came out from Fayetteville last week and spent several days in tent life upon the banks of Mr. N. Shaw's millpond to fish. We learn they fully enjoyed the camp life and the fishing, acceptionary the fact they did not notwithstanding the fact they did not catch as many fish as they desired. There was too much water, and they did not know at the start how to fish to the greatest advantage in the pond. They are fine boys, and we will not be sorry to have Fayettsville to send an-other equally as desorous a bevy when a fishing excursion is to be made this way.

The town of Fayetteville is at last trying to get its eyes open to itseduca-tional needs. If its leaders had fiddled on this string more years ago when trying to build itself up, its stage of prog-ress today would be more satisfactory. Steps have been taken to convert the Donaldson Academy property there into a high grade classical school for boys. We would advise the town to boys. We would advise the town to take this step immediately. As soon as Red Springs Seminary is ent loose from her moorings, and we hope it will not be long before it is done, there is a project, we happen to know, to found a similar school for boys. There are several places ready with their money to start it right now.

Col. Jos. B. Starr, Fayotteville, N. C.
My Dear Col. Joe: I observe a communication from Fayetteville to our Messenger, of this city, in which allusion is made to a meeting of citizens of Fayetteville with a view to the rehabilitation of the Donaldson Academy. Its mention revives so many pleasant memories of days that are past that, had I known of it in time, I would have so much desired and would have been inclined to attend, hoping to meet some of the school boy friends of my early days.

Well as all an recall you are the only one I know so nnested with the Donaldson Academy in 1835-36. There are others, doubtless, whom I have forgotten. It would have been pleasant to meet you and talk over happenings in the days of Auld Lang Syne.

In early December, 1835, Ned Hall and I were sent to Fayetteville to be under the care and superintenden Rev. Mr. Colton, then principal of the academy. With his family, we boarded at Mr. McGary's, the proprietor of the "Farmers and Pianters," (or some similar named) Hotel, near to the house of Hall & Johnson, who were then doing a very large and successful business. Early in 1836, Mr. Colton moved to

The Plant of the Fayetteville Steam Laundry, which has recently been installed in its home on Hay street, is now one of the most complete in the State. When Messrs. Ledbetter Brothers bought out the old laundry four years ago, they came in possession of an old plant with a small business. A Lively Chase With Mosthemas.

On Thursday last Deputy Sheriff Raynor, who had a warrant for Charlie Hall, a negro man charged with carrying a concealed weapon, learned that he was at his home on Haymoust. He went to the house and found Hall there, who, on seeing the deputy sheriff, jumped out of a window and excaped into the swamp of Glenyille pond.

Mr. Raynor came back to town and got the bloodhounds, which he soon had hot on the negro's trail. He came almost up on the man when he suddenly disappeared, as if swallowed up by the ground, leaving nothing but his hat behind to remind the deputy that he ever existed.
