Somebody Did Get Hurt. As the reporter was standing in front of the shoe store of Mr. E. H. Jennings on Hay street a few days ago, some one of inquiring mind asked why it had less width than the stores adjoining on either side.

The answer is easy to the "old inhabitant." It occupies the space formerly taken by a covered alley or gateway to the rear, over which projected a second story from the east or west, as the case might be. There were several of these alleyways on Hay, Person and Green streets, not one of which now remains.

An amusing story is told of this same archway on North Hay street. On that eventful day in March, 1865, when Sherman was crowding in on the devoted towns from the south, and Joseph E. Johnston was surily leaving it on the north, turning and fighting now and again, like a wounded lion, two "city fathers" were walking down Hay street. Just then General Hampton gathered up that little body of troopers in front of the old Fayetteville Hotel—the time he killed the Yankee horseman at very long range on Gillespie street—and stayed the advance of the Federal cavalry for a brief spell.

Shots were rattling, and in the air was the "ping" of minie balls. The two old burghers were not afraid exactly, but they thought shelter a good thing just then, and took refuge in that covered alley. Cautiously they would creep out, and dodge back, as the firing continued furiously; until one, looking with horror into the face of the other, exclaimed: "This thing ought to be stopped; somebody will get hurt!"—and somebody did.

The survivor of the two tells this story himself.

In the Merry Springtime. In the merry springtime the festive malaria microbes, seek forth determined to colonize every human organism. If this arch foe has invaded your system, allow us to suggest Byrd's Tonic. This remedy frees the blood from malaria microbes eliminates poisonous matter from the system, strengthens the nerves, and restores robust health. Byrd's Tonic is guaranteed. B. E. Sedberry's Sons.

A Marriage Ceremony Held Up.

The Wilmington correspondent of the Charlotte Evening Chronicle gives the following sensational story of a jur in the grove of hymeneal functions, as follows: "Justice G. W. Borsemann, of this city, who is second only to Squire Bales, of South Carolina, in the number and interest of the marriage vows which he has administered during the past year, had a most unusual experience in the line of his profession last night.

He had been sent for to officiate at the marriage of Miss Ella McCasley, 19 years old, of Masonboro township, and George Norris, who lately removed to Wilmington from Darlington, S. C. The wedding was to take place with more or less elaboration at the home of a friend at Ninth and Bladen streets.

The residence was ablaze with light; the bride and groom had donned their gowns, and the wedding supper had been prepared in an adjacent room. The justice was about to enter the parlor and take his station in front of an improvised altar, when some one tapped him on the shoulder, and quietly informed him that young Norris had another wife and one child at his home in South Carolina.

"Justice Borsemann had respect for the authority from which the information came, and forthwith an end was put to the proceedings. A consultation of the magistrate and bride and groom was held; and, although the young man denied the charge, and the bride reiterated her utmost confidence in him, it was decided to postpone the ceremony until Sunday night, at which time Norris said he would be present to defend himself against the imputation. The announcement made the guests, who departed, with invitations to be present at the postponed nuptials."

The Greensboro Normal School Closed.

At the meeting on Saturday the trustees of the State Normal College for Women, after a full discussion of the matter, decided to close the institution for three weeks, and many parties of the nearly five hundred students were leaving for home before night, though it will be a day or two before all can succeed in making their departure.

A design for a permanent building is to be considered at a subsequent meeting of the board of trustees.

A Raleigh correspondent of the Charlotte Observer gives the following readable paragraph about the fire: "The Governor returned this morning from Greensboro, and says work will begin as soon as possible to replace the buildings burned at the Normal Industrial College. The State Treasurer also returned this morning. He said that about 40 of the students have gone home, in order to get wearing apparel. A gentleman was telling about the conduct of his two daughters during the fire. One of these was as cool as a cucumber and, putting a bed-spread on the floor, emptied into it the contents of trunks, wardrobe, etc., tying all up into a bundle which she took down-stairs, adding to her own belongings some of those owned by fellow students. Her sister, widely excited, was jumping about and thinking about what she could take with her, and finally had to be taken out herself, attired only in her night garments."

Orator to the National Guard.

The following circular was issued on Saturday at Raleigh, from the headquarters of Adjutant General Royster to the North Carolina National Guard: "Section 16 of the Militia act, approved January 21, 1903, provides that a limited number of officers of the organized militia be authorized to attend and pursue a course of study at either the General Service and Staff College, Fort Leavenworth, Kan., or the Artillery School, Fort Monroe, Va. Commanding officers are requested to make recommendations without delay, limiting them to officers below and above grade of major, preferably lieutenants. It is desired that there be an expression of opinion that the officer recommended is mentally qualified to pursue the course of study at the school for which recommendation is made, and possesses the moral and physical qualifications which would enable him to use to the greatest advantage to the government the instructions he may receive."

GOOD WORDS FOR THE OBSERVER.

The Robesonian "Lumber Bridge Local." No doubt the Fayetteville Observer has a fine subscription list. It is at the hub, so to speak, of a large territory, and has exceptional facilities for collecting news and distributing it issues speedily. The paper is a wide awake news gatherer. It shows at all points the limited training of journalism. Many things ought to be left out, and only so much should be said about this and that occurrence, and many things should appear in the stark reticence of the fact with comment, not to mention other excellences which are among its attractions. The paper always gets a cordial reception by us. Whether we agree with it or not, and we do not at times, does not affect the truth about the excellence of the paper. We do not agree always with any paper published or any person in the wide circle of our acquaintances. But this is true, and might have been left unsaid.

Postmasters to Organize.

Under the call of W. F. Smith, postmaster of Charlotte, the postmasters of North Carolina will be invited to meet in that city on the 6th of February to form a State organization. The meeting will be held in the hall of the Manufacturers' Club, and H. A. Hopkins, secretary of the Michigan Postmasters' Association, and publisher of "Postmasters Everywhere," will be present to assist in effecting the organization.

Killed.

There is not an ache or pain that can be reached externally that cannot be "killed" in a few minutes by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Rub it on the affected part and the pain will soon disappear. Full 15 cent bottles at all drug stores.

New Steamboat Lines for the River.

Says the Wilmington Dispatch: A new steamboat company was organized this week at Elizabethtown. The stockholders are leading men at that place. The chief promoter and principal stockholder is Mr. A. E. Martin, of Fayetteville, who will be the general agent.

A line of boats will be operated on the upper Cape Fear river between Wilmington and Fayetteville in competition with the South Atlantic Company, which is now operating four steamers on the river, viz: City of Fayetteville, Highlander, Hurt and E. A. Hawes.

At a meeting of the directors of the new company in Elizabethtown Wednesday morning the plan was adopted to purchase the steamer Tar Heel from Mr. T. D. Love, of this city. The sale will be confirmed in Wilmington next Monday and the steamer will be put on a schedule by the new company. The Tar Heel is a comparatively new boat. She is 100 feet long, 20 feet wide and is considered the highest draught boat on the river. The purchase price has not been made public, but we understand the new company got a good trade. The name of the Wilmington agent for the line has not been announced.

Says the Wilmington correspondent of the Raleigh Post:

A new steamboat company was organized this week at Elizabethtown, N. C. Mr. E. A. Martin, of Fayetteville, is the principal stockholder and general agent. The company will operate a line of steamers on the Cape Fear river between Wilmington and Fayetteville in competition with the South Atlantic Company. The new company has purchased the Steamer Tar Heel from Mr. T. D. Love, of this city. The line will be in operation next week.

It was officially announced that Mr. T. D. Love, of Wilmington, the well known steamboat man, will operate a line of steamers on the Cape Fear and Congaree rivers between Georgetown and Columbia, S. C., a distance of two hundred miles. This is one of the most important river transportation ventures ever made in the Carolinas. The new line will open up one of the best farming sections of South Carolina, and will give to the people of that section a route to New York, using the Clyde Line, which runs to Georgetown. It will also give a water route from Charleston to Columbia via Georgetown. The business men of Columbia, feeling that the railroad rates on freight are excessive, started the movement to establish an all water route, and have guaranteed Mr. Love a large tonnage. The new line will be in operation in two weeks. Steamers from the Cape Fear river fleet will be used on the Georgetown and Columbia line.

A definite movement was begun in Atlanta yesterday for the erection of a monument to General Gordon. A central executive committee was organized, and sub committees will be appointed in every Southern city.

The Hazel Creek Lumber Company of West Virginia, has domesticated itself in this State, with its place of business at Saguaw, in Mitchell county, where it has large timber property. Its capital is $135,000. Swift & Company, also of West Virginia, domesticated in this State in due form last Saturday, with headquarters at Wilmington. Rumors have recently been current to the effect that the Norfolk and Southern R. R. had purchased the Washington and Plymouth road, which runs from Washington to Plymouth, connecting at that point with a steamer for Edenton, and thence north. The rumor seems well founded, for the Norfolk and Southern has secured an option on the road, and the sale will be consummated next week. When the Norfolk and Southern assumes control they will begin immediately to extend the road from Plymouth to Mackey's Ferry, a distance of eight miles, and the entire road-bed from Washington to Mackey's Ferry will be made a standard gauge.

ALBINO.

Correspondence of the Observer. It was interesting to me to read a few days ago of the albino boy shot by a son of Mr. B. R. Hank.

The change of color to white was but partial, the transformation not being completed. All creatures, from insects to mankind, are subject to albinism, the same being due to a disturbance of the pigment supply arising from nervous disorder. In seasonal changes, which are regular and recurrent in many sub-arctic species, like the fox, hare, ptarmigan, polar bear, fur seal, etc., temperature has much to do with promoting the same. There is a great variety of specimens of albinism and its opposite, melanism, in the Natural History of Washington. Illustrations of the effect of nervous condition upon the pigments of the skin are shown in typhoid patients, whose hair frequently changes to white, and of the result in cases of fright.

"Kills what you eat." The ancient says "pure road to wealth" was "to temper in all things, be economical always." Modern life, with its "rush methods" in business requires that "healthy" be added to the old adage. Every body knows how to be temperate and how to be economical, but few know how to keep perfectly healthy. Over-eating, irregular habits, neglect, etc., derange the stomach, liver, and bowels, causing indigestion, torpid liver, constipation, etc. Byrd's Tablets are nature's best ally when such conditions exist. In This Our "Highlander?"

Under the head "The Sale of the Highlander," the Wilmington Star quotes the following from the Columbian (S. C.) State: Secretary Watson of the Chamber of Commerce stated last night that the $12,000 steamer to be used on the line between Columbia and Georgetown, is now being caulked and braced and made ready for her ocean trip in tow down the coast, and that this work will be completed by the end of the week. The steamer will take the ocean from the port of Southport, N. C., at one, provided weather conditions are favorable.

Already many applications are being made by business houses who wish the distinction of bringing in the first cargo. It is probable that the boat will come up to Columbia on her maiden trip, loaded with a cargo of steamers from Pittsburgh. For the present at least and possibly for a year this steamer and others, if the business warrants it, will be operated to steamship connections at Georgetown.

The boat with which the Capital City will become an inland port is a handsome one, of 130 tons, capable of carrying 175 bales of cotton between decks, or 1,000 bags of guano. Her machinery is entirely new, carrying a 150 horse power marine boiler of 150 pounds pressure. She is a stern wheel steamer, 140 feet in length over all and 25 feet beam. Her draft is only 23 feet. On the upper deck are the captain's office, the drug room, the steward's quarters, four large state rooms and accommodations for 65 passengers. The rate of speed is 10 miles an hour against stream. At present the steamer bears the name "Highlander," but this will be changed. The line will be operated by men of long experience in river navigation, and all freight traffic will be quoted by those who have made river navigation matters a specialty for many years, thus avoiding all the troubles that would naturally come from inexperience.

An Interesting Visitor.

Mrs. M. A. Smith, of Los Angeles, Cal., is in the city, a guest of Mrs. Janie McKethan, on Cool Spring street. Mrs. Smith is a sister of Messrs. Ed and Henry Smith, and a native of this county, who moved to Texas 37 years ago, and for the last 18 years has been living in California. She is president of the two Angeles chapters of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, who she represented at the Charleston reunion. Mrs. Smith is a charming raconteur and tells many interesting stories of the civil war. Her former home was "Rose Hill," on the Silver Run, and the front yard of her place was a battle ground during the fight at Averasboro, many dead and wounded falling just without her door. Here she met, perhaps not cordially, Generals Sherman and Slocum, and also, previous to this skirmish, all of the Confederate Generals, of whom she has many delightful anecdotes, having entertained them for six days, and was also forced to entertain the Federals for the same length of time. Mrs. Smith's reminiscences would be a valuable addition to history.

The Concert.

The Lithaen Concert Company has been greeted by larger audiences, no doubt, but certainly none which showed a greater appreciation of good music and reading than did that of last evening. The personnel of the company is an attractive one, and no invidious comparison could be made, for each is an artist in her line. Every number on the programme was enored, and each encore responded to with charm and gracefulness. Mrs. Booth's contralto is loud and sweet; the soprano, Miss Jarvis, delightful, and evidencing thorough training; the violinist, Miss Helen G. Bennett is an artist, and when, in responding to an encore, she gave a little melody of "Yankee Doodle," "Dixie" and the National Hymn, was especially pleasing. As for Miss Keeler, she was worth the price of admission. She can tell a bear story almost as well as Mr. John Tillinghast, can arouse you a negro lullaby, give you the tragedy of Siekierwicz or the tenderness of Meredith, with equal truth in delineation; and certainly she can have no doubt that she pleased her audience, for they showed their appreciation by their laughter and applause.

And, be it said in passing, the audience of last evening was on its good behavior, and there was perfect order kept throughout the whole performance; that was a relief to a community which has suffered lately in public places.

Increases of the Bible in New York and Ohio. Biblical Recorder, quoting from The Examiner.

The New York World published last week a dispatch from Columbus, O., to the effect that "not more than 2,000 prisoners received in the Ohio State prison last year not one could repeat the Ten Commandments, though many professed to be sons of church members." This prompted the insatiable reporter to canvass fifty representative men in New York, among whom were bankers, business lawyers and city officials, and he found that only two of the number were willing to say they could repeat the Commandments. With the rising tide of interest in Bible study there is evidently wide-spread need of attention to the great truths which lie at the foundation of Christian character and conduct.
