THE PRESIDENT IN A SORRY PLIGHT

Our dispatches yesterday evening contained the statement of the President's secretary, Mr. Loeb, that the President would make no further statement concerning the Tillman-Chandler charges. That leaves him in a sorry plight; for he cannot now throw himself upon his presidential dignity and say that he may not enter into a dispute with senators, or others below him in official position. He forfeited that privilege when he violated the proprieties of his office and the spirit if not the letter of the law the constitutional convention from in endeavoring to influence legislation in a way not prescribed by the constitution

Senator Tillman gave out on Sunday night another statement in addition to that of Saturday, which will be interesting. It includes a portion of Senator Chandler's statement referred to by Mr. Tillman, as follows :

MR. CHANDLER'S STATEMENT.

"On Saturday afternoon, March 31 1006, a friend of mine came into my office and told me of the White House conference of that day, in which an understanding as to a limited court review had been reached with Senator Long and others, and he told me that the President wished to get into communication with the Democrats, and would shortly ask me to come and see him. While he was talking, a messenger boy arrived with a letter to me from Mr. Loeb, as follows :

" 'The White House,

" 'Washington, March 31, 1906 "''My Dear Senator Chandler:-The President requests me to say that he would be glad to have you come to the White House to see him at 8:30 application of the Legislatures of twoo'clock to-night. Will you please let thirds of the several States, shall call the bearer know whether you can come?

" 'Very truly yours, WILLIAM LOEB, JR., Secretary to the President.

"I told the messenger I would be there. At the time and place ap- cation may be proposed by the Conpointed, the President said to me that gress. he wished through me to get into communication with Mr. Tillman, Mr. Bailey and other Democratic Senators. He stated his purpose slowly and carefully and exactly. The substance of his statement was this :

"That he had reached the conclusion that the best plan for railroad rate legislation was to expressly grant a court review, but to distinctly limit it to two points-an inquiry whether the Interstate Commerce Commission had exceeded its authority, and, second, an inquiry whether the constitutional rights of the carrier eges. had been violated. WHAT PRESIDENT SAID.

Foraker as trying to injure or defeat the bill by ingenious constitutional arguments, but that he had come to a complete disagreement with them.

"He made this point emphatic by excellent Red Springs Citizen. It repetition ; said that he would go has been very gratifying to this writhus far and no farther, and that his ter to watch the progress of the Citidecision would be unalterable. He said that he wished to ascertain whether there could be united action in the Senate among the friends of the bill, so that it could be surely passed without injurious amendment, and he named various Republican Senators who he thought were the friends of the bill, but said that it would take nearly all the Democrats to carry the limitation and defeat all obmoxious provisions.

"After the President had made his statement I replied that I had reason to believe that most of the Democrats in the Senate would sustain his limitation of the court's powers, but that I was sure that Mr. Bailey and Mr. Tillman would insist upon coupling with the limitation some restriction upon the power of the courts to issue injunctions against the orders of the commission. Before I had finished my statement on this point the Presiint interrupted me, saying that I need not explain further, because hc was warmly in favor of some such restriction.

"That evening I saw Mr. Tillman and told him what had occurred."

WHAT CHANDLER SAYS OF THE CHARGES.

The New York World publishes the following statement made by former Senator Chandler to its Washington corresopndent :

"I regret exceedingly that it has become necessary for me to place my word against that of the President of the United States. I realize what it means to me at this the close of my life to be branded by the President of the United States as a deliberate and unqualified falsifier.

"I have prepared in writing a state ment which I shall make public perhaps within the next forty-eight hours and perhaps not until later. But whenever the statement is issued I want it understood that I shall not rest under the imputation cast upon me by the President. My statement issued will deal with these matters better than I can at this time.

"Just at present I do not want the on of the country diverted from the great question of railway-rate For the present, then, it is immederial and a minor matter er or not I am a falsifier. I e in my many years of public life said a great many strong things on a great many matters and put on re-cord a great many things about matters, and it yet remains for one of these to be disproved.

The President has, I believe, acthonest he will be more respected than on impulse. He knows only the c statement read him by Senator dge. He knows nothing of what a mid before or after it.
