Crops That Convince.

Virginia-Carolina Fertilizer Co. We will convince you that you can grow your crops better and you won't have to buy any more fertilizer. See what Messrs. Fritz Kern, Durant, Miss, writes concerning the use of our fertilizer.

We want no prohibitive restrictions thrown around it. The North and West have had more than their share of it, and upon it they have fattened in prosperity.

The defeat of this restrictive legislation is as important as the organization of immigration movements, for if it becomes law, such organizations had almost as well go out of business.

Right now is the time to call a halt. A few more days and it may be too late.

Mrs. Caroline Marsh, of Fayetteville, is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Herman Jones.

Listen! and you will hear the wedding bells ringing soon.

"Salmagundi's" quotation from "Gray's History in a Country Churchyard" is not felicitous. The rude forefathers of the hamlet, who "jocund drove their teams afield," were not supposed by the poet ever to have gone out into the world, out of sight of the smoke of their cottage chimneys.

"Far from the madding crowd's ignominious strife, Their sober wishes never learned to stray; Along the cool, sequestered vale of life They kept the noiseless tenor of their way."

Some of the farmers of this section are busily preparing their lands for this year's crop, while others seem to consider it an odious task on account of the short crop of 1906; but I hope they will be inspired with new hopes for the future, and make of themselves ideal farmers of 1907.

The young people of our section seem to enjoy the Xmas holidays very much as there was a party nearly every night, but I think some of our boys did the old Irishman—broke off the point of their knife in a pint of whiskey.

Messrs. J. G. Geddie, A. B. Breese and D. L. Guy have gone to Richmond. I suppose they aim to take in the Jamestown Exposition. There are several other of our young men who intend going in a few days.

The "unwritten law," and it is credited to our country, that it has not been avowed enough at any time to write it into statute, has received several notable jolts throughout the country, and it is good that these have come from Southern States. It is a great dead beat, this "higher law" business, and every man subject to jury duty should be made to understand that it is a relic of barbarism and an expression of anarchy.

A FAYETTEVILLE AUXILIARY TO THE STATE LITERARY AND HISTORICAL ASSOCIATION.

We heartily commend the following letter from Mrs. Currie:

Glendale, Jan. 14th, 1907. Maj. E. J. HALE, Dear Sir:—Do you not think that this is the time of all others for the organization of an auxiliary to the State Literary and Historical Association in Fayetteville and surrounding country?

The objects of the association are as follows: "The collection, preservation and production of our State literature and history; the encouragement of public libraries; the establishment of a historical museum; the inculcation of a literary spirit among our people; the correction of printed misrepresentations concerning North Carolina, and the engineering of an intelligent, healthy State pride in the rising generation."

The work of this association will have special reference to the city of Fayetteville and the county of Cumberland.

Eligibility to membership: "All persons interested in its purposes are invited to become members of the association. The annual dues are one dollar."

Nearly every city in the State, and many of the smaller towns, are organizing associations of this kind, and why should not Fayetteville, who has such great cause to be proud of the history made by the noble deed of the ancestors of so many of the rising generation in her midst?

The hall of the market house is the ideal place for the historical museum, and under the skillful direction of the Civic Association, I am sure, a very soon become the pride of the city and surrounding country, and a place of real interest for the stranger in our gates to visit. A very generous portion of the hall could be reserved for the Confederate museum. The Daughters of the Confederacy would of course take special interest in this department and could hold their meetings there, and I am sure, the proximity to so many sacred relics of the Confederacy would add greatly to the interest of our meetings. Some one has said that, "to receive proper credit, we must keep our own accounts," and I hope that the good men of Fayetteville and surrounding country will join with the Civic Association and assist them in making our unique old market house not only a "thing of beauty," but a real joy and pride.

With the most cordial good wishes for the success and prosperity of Fayetteville and the good old county of Cumberland, I am

Very respectfully,

Mrs. J. H. CURRIE.

Superior Court of Bladen County. ELIZABETHTOWN, N. C., January 12, 1907.

The January term of Bladen County Superior Court was convened here last Monday and adjourned Friday afternoon.

Judge James E. Webb presided and Solicitor N. A. Sinclair represented the State.

Judge Webb made a most favorable impression on the local and visiting bar, and upon the people of the county by his fair and eminently fair ruling and charges, and his uniform willingness to aid, and the general expressions of a hearty and cordial approval of his return here to hold the March Term of Court.

Our new Solicitor held the first court of his term here and the people are delighted with his ability and conservatism, and the pleasant way he has of inflicting punishment upon the guilty, and the industrious way he goes about prosecuting the offenders of the law without being overzealous in the matter.

The criminal docket was almost cleared and several civil suits of long standing were disposed of.

The Southern Cotton Association. Correspondence Observer.

Mr. Editor: The Executive Committee of the North Carolina Division Southern Cotton Association met at Maxton to-day. Present, A. J. McKinnon, Chairman; J. H. Currie, T. J. W. Broome, Committee, and State President C. C. Moore.

The committee will issue a letter to be published in all the weekly papers in the cotton producing counties of the State. This letter to appeal to the farmers to give financial support to the organization at once. It was ordered that a bureau of information be established in each county, and after the general nature on the cotton situation throughout the year. The committee was very enthusiastic over what had been accomplished in the past, and they expect to use all the energy and ability that they possess in the interest of this work throughout the State.

The committee discussed with considerable anxiety the danger that may come to the South by producing too much cotton this year, and after the National organization meets in Birmingham on the 17th, the officers of North Carolina division will make an active campaign with a view to avoiding this danger. In order to prepare for this the committee recommends that large acreage be sown in small grain and other forage crops, and larger acreage be prepared for corn, as to be certain that there is sufficient quantity of food stuffs produced on each farm to feed it if the people and stock in any way connected with the farm. Don't be afraid of having too much of these feed stuffs, there is always a good market for your door for any surplus you may make.

A. J. MCKINNON. (Signed) J. H. CURRIE. T. J. W. BROOME.

a new horse; look pleasing girls. We all hope for cool weather very soon.

BOBOLINK. The Commoner. The Sioux City Journal has an editorial based upon the claim that Mr. Bryan said: "Such a high honor as the presidential nomination is something that no American citizen should decline." The Journal's editorial is all very interesting to be sure. But the sentence quoted by the Journal was not employed by Mr. Bryan. He simply stated in Topeka what he stated elsewhere, that he was not ready to make an announcement on the nomination. Whether a nomination should be declined or accepted depends on conditions under which the offer is made. The platform is a matter to be considered, and the character of the organization is also important, and the general line to be pursued in the campaign can not be ignored. The platform ought to fit the issues; the candidate ought to fit the platform, and the party organization should be in harmony with the party's purpose.

HAYNE ITEMS. Hayne, N. C., Jan. 14, 1907. Mr. Frank Hayward, of Hillsboro, Utah, is home on a visit to relatives and friends. He has been engaged in the railroad business out there as conductor for several years.

After spending the holidays with their parents, Miss Eva R. Bullard and brother, Perry, returned to their schools, Miss Eva to the Baptist University at Raleigh, and Mr. Perry to the Medical College at Richmond, Va.

Misses Bertha and Ethel Howard spent Saturday and Sunday with their sister, Mrs. E. N. Bullard.

Master Brut Butler, of Hayne, recently visited his friend, Leslie Maxwell, of Steadman.

Mrs. Annie McLamb, of Roseboro, visited friends here last week, and also Mrs. M. M. McLamb.

Mrs. G. W. Bullard visited her mother at Roseboro last week.

Mrs. G. W. Butler spent Saturday night with her daughter, Mrs. G. T. Dular.

Robble Cooper, of Samburg, was killed at a saw mill near here last week. He was standing on the wrong side of the saw when it caught his coat and threw him onto the saw cutting him nearly to two.

SALMAGUNDI'S COMMENTS. CAMERON, N. C., Dec. 1, '07. MR. EDITOR: We note the scuffle going on in several towns for the possession of the proposed college site of the Methodist denomination for the education of women. Like these others, we have put our glib into it, and we are a Methodist from a religious standpoint. But we are not opposed to the education of women by any means provided they are taught to act their part as designed by the Supreme Architect of this universe. Many of them are shirking that duty originally assigned to them. Whether they can render a good excuse for short comings on the path of duty is a debatable question. We know that some villians wearing men's clothes, not all of them illiterate, and some of them posing as scholars and gentlemen, and some boasting a foreign title, but who in reality are imps of hell, are seeking whom they may devour. A precedent is on the statutes, or on record. No woman ever was so fortunate in the matter of education as mother Eve, especially in regard to her teacher, yet the captain of all these fortune hunters deceived her, and the same kind of snake has bitten thousands upon thousands of her daughters. We presume Adam was a sort of commonplace old fellow, and not as attractive as he might have been—he was just a diamond in the rough. All that glitters is not gold, and that is one of the lessons that our modern women need to learn. Will it be taught in that Methodist College. If mother Eve had been helping Adam, as she was intended to do, she would not have fallen into the transgression. We think Paul declares that Adam was not in it. Now we will not worry you readers with this problem any more just in now. President Roosevelt is agitating it in his messages to Congress and in his public speeches throughout the land, and on the subject his logic is sound.

But why do the several towns covet the prize of the college. Sanford claims railroad facilities, good water and salubrious air; Fayetteville claims as much, and her advocate, Mr. Myrover, goes a step farther, and we are not mistaken, claims that a larger city is more favorable to intellectual development. Now, if that holds good, the college ought to go to Gotham or the Windy City, because we need the best results. But what does history teach us? Is it not true of our country that our greatest men were country born and bred? When Hannibal was menacing the Roman Empire did not his vanquisher come from plowing in the fields? We believe, to get the best results all around, the Methodist College should be located in the depth of some pine forest, where pure water gushes from a sandhill spring.

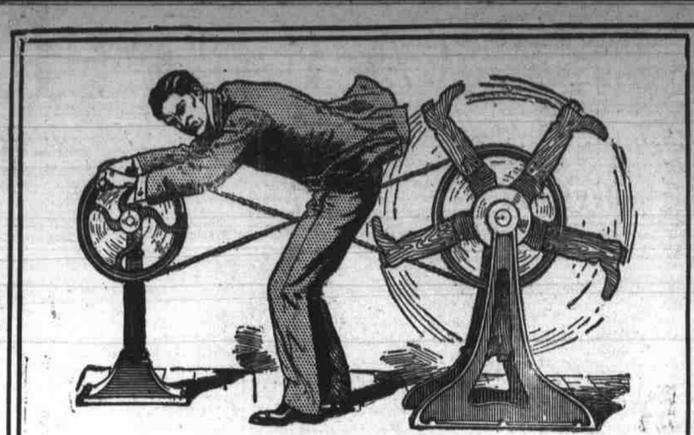

"Far from the city's madding throng,"

But each of the contestants would like to get the college for the reason that they believe that they would be benefited financially. It is human nature to vote for protection when it is coming toward them. Will that nature ever be eradicated? We will venture the assertion that never till man's mind is converted to the christian religion.

We must call your attention to one of Beecher's (Henry Ward) observations. Polygamy in Utah has been a national topic for more than half a century. Beecher went out there about thirty years ago to see for himself. When he returned a neighbor inquired: "How about it now, Henry?" "Well," said the great congregationalist, "if the new dispensation don't save them, we'll have to cut their heads off." So with the lovers of (or, those that lust after) gold and silver. If the doctrine of Jesus Christ don't save them their heads will have to go. Now, don't misunderstand us, and some gentlemen "go gunning for us," because we claim that a gentleman will never mistreat a lady—only devils are deceivers.

Now, there is a lesson in the above few lines, that, if heeded, is worth more than all the colleges that were ever established in town or country.

How to Avoid Appendicitis. Most victims of appendicitis are those who are habitually constipated. Orino Laxative Fruit Syrup cures chronic constipation by stimulating the liver and bowels and restores the natural action of the bowels. Orino Laxative Fruit Syrup does not nauseate or grip and is mild and pleasant to take. Refuse substitutes. McDaniel's Drug Store (O. O. Sanders Prop.).

This man bought a supply of tobacco without acquainting himself with the distinctive taste of SCHNAPPS Tobacco, which has the cheering qualities that gratify his desire to chew, and at less expense than cheap tobacco.

SCHNAPPS has been advertised in this paper so that every chewer has had an opportunity to get acquainted with the facts and know that drugs are not used to produce the cheering quality found in the famous Piedmont country blue-cured tobacco, and that SCHNAPPS is what he ought to chew. Still there are chewers who accept other and cheaper tobaccos that do not give the same pleasure.

Some day they'll get a taste of the real Schnapps—they'll realize what enjoyment they've missed by not getting SCHNAPPS long ago—then they'll feel like kicking themselves.

SCHNAPPS is sold everywhere in 5 cent cuts, and 10 and 15 cent plugs. Be sure you get the genuine.

Will this message reach mankind and be understood and appreciated? We hope so.

As ever, SALMAGUNDI.

P. S.—We must congratulate "Scribble" on his article published in the last OBSERVER. Few men have ever packed as much truth in so small a space. But, as we told you some time ago, when he talks, he says something. His introduction to Tar Heel is just superlative. Teddy and our good Gov. Glenn favor the admission of good emigrants to our State and nation. Oh, psah! who could beat our granddaddy except his grandson? Nobody else ever has done it. Lo! the poor Indian, lost to sight but to memory dear! If light is right we will bear that banner aloft, above the fog, where all may see.

WARM TO BE PLEASANT AT THIS SEASON OF THE YEAR. Mr. R. S. Entzinger was in Gulfport and McHenry on business this week.

J. C. Culbreth was in McHenry on "business" last Saturday.

Misses Carmie and Annie Culbreth and Mr. Entzinger went fishing Wednesday afternoon and caught a nice lot of trout.

Mr. McK. Culbreth, formerly of McHenry has moved to Sancier, Miss., to Rice's turpentine still.

Mr. W. W. Thompson has accepted a temporary position with the Rice Turpentine Co.

Quite a number of our young people are looking forward with pleasure to a dance at Miss Ollie Evans' Friday night.

The wedding bells certainly must keep ringing around the good old town of Fayetteville, judging by the report of the Register of Deeds. Hurrah for Fayetteville, may the grandchildren of all these young couples, be as proud of Fayetteville as their forefathers.

With best wishes to the OBSERVER and many readers.

IMMIGRATION MOVEMENT THREATENED.

We are requested to publish the following from the Atlanta Constitution:

Just as the States of the South are preparing to push immigration movements in the hope of supplying the raw and muscle in which they are now sadly lacking, there hovers over them the imminent danger of adverse legislation which would seriously hamper, if not in a great measure, defeat their efforts.

The Constitution has called urgent attention to the status of the immigration restriction bill which is now in conference committee, awaiting only agreement between the two Houses of Congress to finally enact it and send it to the President.

If this inimical measure becomes a law, it will place such additional restrictions upon immigration as to make it next to impossible for the States of the South to accomplish anything along this line. Already there are restrictions enough, for, as every one interested is aware, it was with the greatest difficulty under the present law that South Carolina recently succeeded in getting a meager handful of foreign immigrants safely and permanently within the borders of that State.

What if a dozen or so additional restrictions had been put upon those immigrants? Probably South Carolina would have been put to the expense and mortification of deporting the majority of them, even though there were all of a class calculated to make good citizens.

Now the report comes from Washington that this immigration restriction bill is about to go through.

If it is to be stopped, as it should be in the interest of the States of the South at least, some immediate action must be taken.

The matter must be taken hold of now by commercial, industrial and transportation bodies throughout the South, and an emphatic protest raised against a law which, if enacted, is sure to seriously
