Death of An Old Confederate Soldier.
From Friday's Daily.
Mr. Wiley Rayner, a Confederate veteran, died this morning at 11:30 o'clock at his home in Beverly-First, aged 89 years. He had a stroke of paralysis Monday afternoon about 5 o'clock. He is survived by a widow, five sons and five daughters. His wife, Mrs. Mary, is in the city. His sons are Messrs. Elton and William, one daughter, Miss Nellie, and granddaughters, Miss Gertrude Rayner were with him at the time of his death. The funeral services will be conducted by Rev. Mr. Royall at 11 o'clock at Camp Grand church.

Pleased With His Old Home.
Mr. W. E. Shreve, now a prosperous business man of Washington, D. C., whose recent visit here gave so much pleasure to his friends and relatives, in a letter to a member of his family he says:
"Congratulations then for me on their success in the parade. I call that something of which to feel proud. And your street railway is running too. Well, I would just like to see the cars pulling up and down Old Hay Street. I was a little too soon, wasn't I? I think Fayetteville has Wilmington beaten on a mile. Fayetteville looked mighty good to me, and I think all the people there have to do is to get together and push, and they'll have one of the very best towns in the state."

A Little Girl's Bright Sayings.
A prominent citizen was telling a crowd of friends to-day of a bright saying his little daughter got at last night. The little girl, an usual grad for the afternoon Observer as soon as it reached the house, and after reading the lesson her eyes lighted on the dispatch from Washington giving the President's attitude in regard to his order, having the motto "In God We Trust" left off the coin. She carefully read this through, and then got this off:
"The motto on the coin has got to go. Teddy intends to be the whole show. In God We May Trust."
So in Teddy we must.
"Go to hell the whole country will go." Good, very good, and especially for a small girl.

Stems from Facts and Figures.
"To improve the Cape Fear river so large steamers can ply between Fayetteville and the sea means to save money for every citizen who sets or wears anything in this part of the State."
"We have confidence in our bank and bankers in Raeford, one of the best of all the banks of Fayetteville, hope Mills, Parkton, Red Springs, Lumberton, in fact, all around over the State were never in better condition."

A REMARKABLE MAN.
Resides at Dundarrack.
We find the following in Facts and Figures:
"One of the most remarkable men we know is Mr. W. J. Sandy, who lives down on the Little Marsh, below Dundarrack. Mr. Sandy was one of a family of 18, is 82 years old, served four years and seven months in the Confederate Army, and was never sick in his life. He has used tobacco since childhood, and his remedy for all his manly life is coffee. He drinks two cups of coffee soon as he can make it on arising in the morning. He again takes coffee with his meals. He uses spirituous liquors, or used to, to a certain degree, but was never drunk. He is a Christian, a member of the Baptist church, and thinks the Lord is speaking him for a wise purpose. He tries to do right, and says no harm of any one. Except a little deafness, and want of activity, he is alight for life's pleasure, and is as sound as a dollar; he never had an ache or pain."

THE PASSING OF THE "ONE-GALLUS MAN."
Baltimore, Md.
In an interview the other day Hon. Champ Clark, of Missouri, made use of an expression which has almost become obsolete. He characterized a certain class of the American electorate as "one-gallus men." Probably the type is not extinct yet, but numerically "one-gallus" Americans are not as strong as they used to be. The fact is Uncle Sam is fast outgrowing the "one-gallus" period. Everybody with industry and thrift has been prospering of late years, and everybody who was willing to work has been able to equip himself with a complete and comfortable device for holding up his trousers. No "one-gallus" man ever enjoyed life fully. If he had only one-half of a pair of suspenders, existence was never so grand, sweet song to him. In material prosperity the American people are ahead of all the nations of the globe. They are able to clothe themselves on the "two-gallus" basis—and we have every reason to believe that few of them derive any pleasure now from the "one-gallus" of our forefathers. Mr. Clark used the term to indicate a class distinction, but this distinction is as obsolete politically as it is in respect to clothes. The "one-gallus man" at present is largely a myth. Uncle Sam will abide no tears when he no longer exists either as the victim of demagogues or as an object lesson in the discomforts of primitive attire.

VALUABLE OF THE NEW YORK WORLD'S PREDICTIONS.
Greenwich Record.
The New York World declares if the Democrats nominate Bryan he will not only be defeated, but that it will be the last of the party. The World said four years ago that if Bryan was nominated he would be elected. It has been so in every election since. The World is the balance of success. It is a delirious thing about

COLORED LIFE INSURANCE.
Officers Elected—The Sun Mutual Life Insurance Co.
The leading colored citizens of Fayetteville recently got together and organized a life insurance company, and the Secretary of State has granted it a charter after it had been approved by the Insurance Commission. The new company is named The Sun Mutual Life Insurance Company, and the following officers have been elected: Dr. E. E. Smith, president; Rev. J. B. Smith, vice-president; Dr. R. H. Bondurant, secretary; Thos. H. McNeill, treasurer; Rev. J. S. Bell, general manager; W. T. Hunt, assistant general manager and superintendent of agencies; H. H. J. W. Hood, Dennis Taylor, R. W. Thaggard and J. G. Smith were elected as an executive committee. The company is now engaged in getting the required 200 applications before the State. It will issue sick, accident and death benefit policies. The colored people are proud of their institution, and it promises to be a great success.

THE UPPER CAPE FEAR RIVER PROJECT.
In Report of Chief Engineer of United States Army.
The annual report of General MacKenzie, chief of engineer of the War Department, which was issued yesterday, details at some length the work accomplished in the way of river and harbor improvements in North Carolina. The report states that a survey of all the sites for locks and dams on the Upper Cape Fear from Wilmington to Fayetteville has been completed. A number of locks have been made at each site, the locations approved, and prices obtained on all the lands necessary. Owing probably to defective records, the purchase of other land has been delayed, and in some cases it may be necessary to resort to condemnation proceedings. The entire project is to be obtained by constructing a low water depth of 9 feet to Fayetteville, at an estimated cost of $1,250,000. There has been expended on this project up to the present time $123,234. There was an unexpended balance available July 1, 1907, a total of $218,000.

As to Balance Due Spanish Pensioners.
No doubt the publication of the following letter from our former esteemed county man, Mr. James Marsh, now practicing law in Oklahoma, will elicit a reply of value to Spanish war veterans.
Raeford, N. C., Oct. 30, 1907.
Mr. Editor:
I am in the Observer of the 29th at article headed "Cotton and Cattle," and knowing we had similar prices here down here, I want to say to the farmer here, or you may take less than 20 cents for your cotton. In the fall of 1906 cotton was selling for 18 and 20 cents. I was taking the proceeds of my cotton and selling it in Fayetteville and paid storage, insurance and interest. On Monday cotton went down. I sold in July for 12 1/2. Low about $1,000. Again in 1907 I sold 10 cents. Sold in February at about what I could have gotten when it was bid and ready to market. So I lost again. I had the bulk of my 1906 crop, 97 bales, and sold on the 5th of July, 1906, at near one cent less per pound than I could have gotten one time. So I lost again. In figuring up my losses by holding cotton, I find that in short something like $1,000. The cotton was 100 bales. Does it pay to hold cotton? I say, no, backed up by my experience and that experience of two-thirds of the farmers that have held cotton. There is none of us who knows what cotton is going to do. It probably may go up and probably may go down. Probabilities, as a rule, don't make money for the farmer. 10 cents is a good price for cotton. Raising 10-cent cotton is profitable business; and if the farmer can't do well at it, he had better leave his occupation and try something else. The best posted men on the cotton market are those who make their living dealing in cotton futures, and if you will notice the prices for futures, it can't do much better.

COTTON.
I heard a few drummers say that he invested in cotton when he thought the prospects for an advance were exceedingly bright, but cotton went down and he lost money. He said cotton was a fool and it was hard to keep up with a fall. That, with a fall, the unexpected always happens. Webster's old blue back says: "Experience keeps a fool quiet, but fools with learn in no other." I experienced three times holding cotton. I have, I think, learned now to sell when I can get 10 cents for it. I simply wish this trying to save some farmer money.

A PALPABLE HIT.
Durham Herald.
If we really believe that the attitude of Mr. Roosevelt towards the trusts is responsible for it and are disposed to hold him to account, then we should not the anti-trust plank from our platforms and say no more about it.

DIXIE VS. YANKEE DOODLE.
News Item.
Mr. J. H. Hardie, who went to England on a visit some weeks ago, writes back that he had a pleasant voyage and that he had a pleasant stay in England. He says that the English cotton spinners who have been touring America were showed the same vessel and spoke in high terms of their treatment while over here. Mr. Hardie got next to the band on board ship and had them play Dixie every day. The Englishman on the boat could not understand why they never played Yankee Doodle. Mr. Hardie will return in a month and Mrs. Hardie will come back with him.

Trinity College Notes.
Dear Mr. Editor:
It was my duty to define Trinity College as consisting of the campus, the dormitories and the grounds, and I am glad that it remains about as it was four years ago when the writer came to college. Notwithstanding there are some improvements now under way.
But on the other hand, it was my duty to define Trinity College as consisting of the campus, the dormitories and the grounds, and I am glad that it remains about as it was four years ago when the writer came to college. Notwithstanding there are some improvements now under way.

At Present the Low-water Depth are 1 foot to Kings Bluff, 33 miles above Wilmington; 2 1/2 feet to Elizabethtown, 73 miles above Wilmington; and 2 feet to Fayetteville, 115 miles above Wilmington. Low-water stages prevail from two to four months during each summer, and freshets, which raise the water level from 15 to 20 feet at Fayetteville, usually occur as often as once a month during the rest of the year.

SALMAGUNDI'S COMMENTS.
Dear Old Observer:
Wm. J. Bryan's cantigation of the "divided party," is his master stroke directed to those who would suppress the truth. How will the teachers be held to account while the teachers are held to account to their pupils? The "divided party" is the world as it is. Many columns in newspapers are given to the "divided party" while important truths are held to account to their pupils. The "divided party" is the world as it is.
