From Friday's Daily.
The second primary yesterday afternoon for the nomination of a D ocratic caudidate for Mayor,necessary by a tie-vote between Mayor Powers and Mr. V. C. Bullard, resulted in the nomination of Mr. Bullard over Mayor Powers, by a majority of 24 votes.

To the surprise of most everyone the vote exceeded that of Monday by ninety, and this in face of the fact that at the first primary, there were the other candidates, all getting their friends to go to the polls. Yesterday the total vote cast was 734, as against 644, on Monday.

The vote yesterday by Wards was

As in Monday's primary, the First Ward, having the largest vote, it was the last heard from, and, as without her. Mr. Bullard had a majority of 177, it was practically certain before the final count of the First's vote was announced, that Mr. Bullard had the nomination, it being almost beyond the range of possibility that that strong Powers ward could overcome

As soon as the result was known there was great rejoicing in the Bullard camp, while the Powers men were surprised and disappointed. However, the Mayor took his defeat gracefully, and soon there was good feeling all round.

Mayor Powers will retire from of fice with his character unassailed and conscious of a faithful performance of his duty. During the entire two campaigns, not even a whisper was uttered against him personally, the people or a majority of them, simply wanted a change.

In the case of Mr. Bullard as in that of Mr. Powers, nothing personal was said against him, and he will enter upon his new duties young, fresh, vigorous, and with the heartiest wishof his administration. It is up to his pow to make good; we believe he will. However, results are better than speculations, so we will watch his course with interest, wishing for him a successful career as Mayor.

Let his motto, and the motto of all of us, be: "Fayetteville, first, last, and all the time."

V. C. BULLARD, ESQ.

V. C. Bullard, Esq., was born March 7th, 1873, in Beaver Dam township, in the extreme south eastern corner of Cumberland county near both the Sampson and Bladen county lines. He is a sen of Thomas I. Bullard, and a grandson (on his father's side) of the late Duncan Bullard, of Cumberland county, and a grandson (on his mother's side) of the late James Bullard, of Sampson county, who was a brother of the late Geo. W. Bullard former member of legislature from Cumberland county. His father Thos I. Bullard, is of the family of Bullards known as the Bladen Bullards, Beaver Dam township being originally a part of Bladen county, and his mother is of the family known as the Sampson Bullards-both families are a very sturdy and thrifty people—generally large in statue and of strong physique V. C. Bullard was raised on a farm but early in life took up sawmill business, which he followed in partnership with his brother, M. O. Bullard, until he began the practice of law in 1900. except the time he was in school.

He attended academy schools a Salemburg and Hayne and Oakhurst academies in Sampson county, the renter portion of the time under Prof. Street Brewer.

In the fall of 1898 he entered Wake Forest College, taking a select ed to the practice of law in 1900 since which time he has been follow ing his profession in Fayetteville where he has gained a reputation of essful practitioner and a law member of the House of Representatives from Camberland in 1903, h was an active member, and was a varia and active supporter of Hon.

TO-DAY. In Regard to Cape Fear River

From Friday's Daily.

A dispatch from Washington says. "The board of engineers of the War Department have over-ruled the last report for a survey of the upper Cape Fear between Fayetteville and Wilmington, which called for the construction of a channel four feet in depth. This report which was made by a local board was reversed by the general board on duty here in Washington. The general board recom mends to Congress the construction of a channel eight feet in depth.

"Senator Overman took the matte up with officials in the War Department and is very much gratified as to the result of this latest decision."

It will be remembered that the Board of Engineers eriginally recom mended an 8 foot channel; but two years ago, a commission of United States Engineers was sent down here by whom it has never been found out. to investigate the project. They went back to Washington and after months of waiting reported that a depth of four feet was all that was necessary. with a much ismaller expenditure than the million and a quarter at first rec ommended and adopted by Congress. Now comes the good news turning down of this report by the Genera Board of Engineers, and their reiteration of the original recommendation

THE FIDDLERS' CONVENTION.

A Success In Every Way.

The most popular entertainmen witnessed in Fayetteville in many years was the Fiddlers' Convention at the Armory on yesterday evening from 8 to 11 o'clock.

As predicted in this paper for sev eral days before the Convention as sembled, the people came from far and near, by rail and through the country, in private conveyances to be present at the greatest social event of the season

The Armory Opera House crowded as never before until all the space in the galleries and aisles was taken. The sale of tickets was unprecedented, and many who intended going failed to purchase their tickets in time to secure good seats and missed

When the curtain went up, the large audience, who were patiently waiting were thrilled to their very souls when about thirty-five fiddlers, banjo pick ers, etc seated on the stage, in a semicircle, with their violing and banio: tuned to perfect harmony, led by Mr. W. Frank Blount with his violin played in concert an old familia une, "Fisher's Horn Pipe."

The fun began and there was no dull moment from start to finish Mr. D. P. McEachern, of Red Springs had charge of the programme and added much to the success of the entertainment.

Capt. J. J. Maloney and his lovely daughter, Miss Anna Maloney, cap tured the audience by their gracefu! novement on the stage, when they danced together and were encored time and time again, but the judges would not allow any response to encores for want of time. Mr. Maloney's singing was an enjoyable feature of the programme, and brought forth much applause.

There were three contestants for the prize in dancing, and while Mr. Small did not win this prize, he had the honor of reaching the climax of the centre of the stage and standing on his head with his feet straight up which was considered quite a feat for a man of his age. Capt. N. H. Mc-Beachy took a few rounds of country dancing to the delight of his many friends.

The old Virginia Reel was the last and one of the best of the many good hings of the evening, in which the ollowing popular young people of he city participated:

Mr. James S. McNeill with Miss Mary Fuller Robeson; Mr. N. H. Mc Jeachy with Miss Grace McMillan; dr. Claude Rankin with Miss Mary McNelll; Mr. John Thomson with Miss Laura Allen: Mr. Sam Tillinghast with Miss Louise Huske; Mr. Flody Souders with Miss Jean Pemberton.

Dressed as they were in the style which was so popular in Colonial times, it was hard for even the closes friends to identify them as they made their politest bow to their gal-lant escorts, but it was not hard to looking people as far back as Martha Washington's day. The judges were not able to decide who was the most graceful lady dancer, so they gave them each a box of candy.

The ladies wish to express their appreciation for the noble work done by Mr. Blount in making the enter tainment a success. THE PRIZES. The first prize and championship for the best Old Time Fiddler, an $80,00 organ, was awarded J. D. Collins, of Bunn's Level, N. C. Mr. Collins played the Arkansaw traveller. . Second best fiddler was T. J. Lett, of Laurinburg, N. C., who played Old Dan Tucker, and was awarded $5.00 in gold and a $5,00 fliddle bow. The third best fiddler was W. W. Wallace, of Hope Mills, who played Lorsley. Mr. Wallace is a left-handed fiddler, playing on the fiddle strung right-handed, and accompanied by his 5-year-old so who beat straws and kept splendle time. The prize for the best banjo licker was awarded W. R. Bedsole, of Laurinburg, who played Yankee Doo-die. The first prise was $10.00 in gold. The second best banjo picker, Miss

VON C. BULLARD, ESQ., 70 BE Miss Mary Kyle, daughter of Capt. Briver, of Fayetteville. The best oldtime singer was John J. Maloney, who sang an Irish song, and wore an Irish costume. Special mention should be made of the assistance of Mr. Eugleston, who played the bass fiddle admirably through the entire performance His services were very much appreciated by the ladies of the Woman's

Civic Association. The receipts amounted to about

Master John Whitted, of Blades ounty, a boy only 11 years old, charmed the audience by his music when he played the Italian Waltz with his violin in a manner that was exquisite. He received two boxes of fine candy as an evidence of appreciation which is very complimentary for one so young.

Special to the Ovserver. Charlotte, N. C., April 23.-The North Carolina Press Association today unanimously adopted resolutions, offered by Editor Josephus Daniels, of the Raleigh News and Observer, pledging its heartiest support to the promotion of the immediate completion of the project for eight feet of water from Wilmington to Fayetteville as the evident solution of the problem of discriminatory freight

THE NAVY AND THE MERCHANT MARINE.

E. J. HALE.

Norfolk Virginian 1 The creation of a mighty navy and the upbuilding of a merchant marin manifestly should go hand in hand The two are largely interdependent. In theory, at least, the principal reason for the existence of a big navy is to furnish protection to commerce un-der the American flag; while, on the other hand, the existence of a mer chant marine is essential to the efficiency of the navy. chant ships flying the American flag obviously there can be no foreign commerce to protect, and with no merchant marine from which to draw reasels to serve as colliers and trans ports the usefulness of a navy be comes limited, in great measure, to coast defense purposes.

So it stands with the United States We are spending something like a hundred million dollars a year to build and maintain a navy. this there is no objection to be rais ed. Money expended for such purpose if wisely and judiciously spent, is wel expended. War is the most costly hing known to humanity, and, in the case of this country, the surest way to prevent war lies in the maintenance of a large, powerful and efficient navy But where is the merchant marin which is admittedly so essential to th efficiency of the navy and the protect tion of which is, theoretically at least, one of the chief reasons for the existence of the navy? It is conspicuous chiefly by its absence. So far as forsign trade is concerned, the American merchant flag is a rarity on the high seas. In all the Pacific ocean, for instance there are we are told. only eight merchant vessels flying this On the Atlantic side conditions are not much better. And yet we tablets, etc. Cures con have now in the Pacific nineteen bat. Duffle Drug Store (Co.

tleships, ten cruisers and six topedodestroyers, aggregating in nage three or four times that of the vessels which they are supposedly there to protect. Obviously, in the time of war, this magnificent fleet of naval vessels would be almost powship is almost as useless as it would be without guns or ammunition, and, when away from home, there is no way for it to keep supplied with coal save through colliers. And would the colliers come from? For eign vessels would not be obtainable to time of hostilities, and manifestly the eight American bottoms would be grossly inadequate. The navy is all right as far as it goes, but there must be a merchant marine to serve as an auxillary to support it. On this point there is room for neither doubt nor-discussion

But how shall this merchant ma the honor of reaching the climax of rine be secured? Certainly not by the Convention by placing a table in the payment of subsidies and subventions. Such policy might avail to ef fect the establishment and mainte nance of a few regular lines, and, in a limited degree, to add to the bottoms flying the American flag. But it would in no wise furnish an adequate solution of the problem, while the expens would be enormous and fall upon the great body of citizens for the benefit of a small class of ship owners. The combined experience of the world has abundantly and conclusively demon-strated the ineffectiveness of government aid as a means of upbuilding and promoting shipping. The mari-time nations which to-day enjoy the largest shares of the over-seas trade are those which extend the helping hand of the government to none, or to only a small percentage, of their shipping—Great Britain and Germany. On the other hand, France, which heavily subsidizes all its shipping, ping, has made no gain in securing the carrying trade of the world in the last twenty years, even if it has not suffered an actual decline. But the United States does not have to go to other countries to find out why its merchant marine has dwindled almost to the vanishing point or to learn what is needed to restore it discover that there were some good to its one-time supremacy on the high seas. All that is needed is to and apply the lesson of its own experience. In the first half of the last century, before we had embarked upon a policy of high protection and surrounded thea country with an al-American merchant marine was the most insurmountable tariff wall, the excepting even that of Great Britain. Its decline dates from the very time that we began to shackle commerce and to erect artificial barriers against and to erect artificial barriers against trade. Its revival will begth when we take off these shackles and bring some measure of sense and equity into our antiquated navigation laws. All that is needed to restore the American merchant flag to its former supremacy on the high seas, and so to provide an essential auxiliary to our navy, is to knock down our tariff walls and to permit American flag under conditions as liberal as those enjoyed by the shipping interests of Great Britain and Germany. With this done, subsidies would be unnecessary; unless it is done, subsidies will be nacless and valueless.

NORTH CAROLINA EDITORS IN CHARLOTTE.

From Thursday's Daily. The North Carolina Press Associa tion convened in annual session in Charlotte vesterday.

The first day of the editorial cor vention was one of the most delight ful in the history of the association. Addresses of welcome were made by Mayor Franklin, Editor Dowd and E. R. Preston, president of the Greater Charlotte Club. Their words of welcome were eloquent and fitting and an eloquent response was made by Maj. H. A. London, of Pittsboro. Several interesting addresses were made during the day. The address of Third Assistant Postmaster General Lawshe was very interesting and the association is in hearty sympathy with his purpose to exclude unworthy publications from the second class rate. Mai. E. J. Hale to-day addressed the convention on "How to Prevent Freight Discrimination Against North Carolina." The address will be found in full on the editorial page. At the conclusion of his address, a most important resolution was adopted, as will be seen by a special dispatch from Charlotte this afternoon.
