To Correspondents.

The editor of the Observer has been absent so much of late attending to the matter of Improvement of the Cape Fear, and, lately, attending political conventions-that he has not been able to review the manuscripts of correspondents, which have accumulated in large numbers. As these often require much time to decipher and put into shape for the printer, they cannot be used until this is done. As soon as possible they will be taken in hand and published.

Dr. R. J. Willingham at Hope Mills.

It was a rare treat which the citi zens of Hope Mills had Monday night in listening to a splendid address from the Rev. R. J. Willingham, D. D., secretary of the Foreign Mission Board of Southern Baptists. Dr. Willingham has recently returned from a long tour to the different mission fields in Japan, China and India. He is a magnetic speaker, devoted to his work and has a charming delivery.

He came to Hope Mills to see hi son and wife, the people learned he was coming and requested of him an address. He had a large audience, and thrilled his hearers as he took them from country to country. He mingled pathos with humor. Undoubt edly he is one of the greatest men of the South, and raised last year more than $500,000 for this great work. He left to-day for Georgia.

Everything was done for him that could be thought of by loving parents, fond sister and brothers under the direction of a skilled physician, but nothing could arrest the disease until it had done its work. He was a deacon in the Presbyte

YESTERDAY A GREAT DAY FOR FAYETTEVILLE METHODISTS.

Everybody is Proud of the Splendid Church.

From Monday's Daily.

The Methodists of Fayetteville worshipped in their new and beautiful church yesterday for the first time. No doubt it felt good to return home after an absence of nearly twelve months. Large congregations were present at both morning and evening service, including a number of out of own visitors, and words of admira tion were heard on every hand for the stately and beautiful building, which indeed seems almost ideal both for beauty and utility.

The church and Sunday School auditoriums were thrown into one, and comfortably seated an audience at each service of about 800 or more. with seats to spare. The accoustic properties are all that could be desired, and the bowl or "incline" floor permits a full view of the speaker by every one present. The building fully meets the requirements of a modern house of worship, and would do credit to any city in the State. Those well posted say there are few finer church buildings in the State.

The Sunday School marched in a body from the Armory at 9 o'clock to the new Sunday School room, the profit types of youth and old age, which work together side by side in the Sunday School.

The morning sermon was delivered by the pastor, Rev. G. F. Smith, while Dr. Gibbs, the presiding elder, preached at night. The Presbyterian and Baptist churches omitted night service, and the two congregations united with the Methodists, both Dr. Hall and Mr. Fairley occupying seats in the

A collection was taken on the church debt and $7,000 or more was pledged.

A special musical programme was ded much to the enjoyment of the

The pastor announced a protracted meeting to continue during the week, with Rev. Mr. Humble to assist in the meeting, who will arrive from Weldon this afternon, and preach his first sermon to-night, at 8:30 o'clock.

The people from the Western part of the State are there in grenumbers to work for Craig. They claim that they have not had a governor in 46 years. The people from the eastern part of the State are fighting equally hard to nominate Kitchin, while Mr. Horne's friends think his chances are getting better all the time. There will be no factions after the convention, but all will go to work to roll up the largest majority ever given in the State. Following is a letter which caused a sensation among the delegates. which we find in the Raleigh News and Observer:

"The western section of North Carolina has made up its mind to have something from this convention', said a man from a far western county yesterday. At present the State officers are as follows:

There will be trouble if the East tries to hog all the offices this year. The West will make a vigorous protest. In the event that Mr. Craig is defeated for the first place on the ticket a candidate for Secretary of State and one for State Treasurer will be run out. These are developments of the last few days. Mr. Craig's friends declare that he will be nominated, but they are prepared to offer other candidates for one or more of the more cherished State offices."
