Magistrate's Court.

From Friday's Daily.
This was Carver's Creek day in 'Squire Overby's court. There were cases and counter cases, all revolving around three people; the court room was crowded with Carver's Creek folks. The first case was that against Mrs. Susan Lucas, charged with as sault and battery on Mr. D. B. Ray with a stick. After hearing the evidence, the case was dismissed. The next case was that of Mr. Julius Lucas, charged with an assault with a gun on D. B. Ray. He was bound over to court in the sum of $100 which he gave. Mrs. Susan Lucas then indictted Mr. Ray for trespass on her prop erty. The hearing in this case was con tinued until March 30th. Mr. Ray was then placed on trial, charged with an assault on Mrs. Lucas with an axe. The Magistrate reserved his decision until the hearing of the second install ment of this affair on March 30th. The whole matter grows out of a dis pute about the possession of certain land in Carver's Creek.

AN INTERESTING MEETING.

For the 20th of June Celebration.

A very interesting meeting was held in the Civic Hall vesterday (Thursday) at 4:30 p. m., to make arrangements for the celebration of the Liberty Point Declaration of Independence on June 20th. Since the 20th falls on Sunday, it was decided to have the celebration on Monday the 21st Capt. J. D. McNeill met the ladies by invitation to assist them in their their invitation to act as Master of Ceremonies for the occasion. The ladies feel that his acceptance assures success of their undertaking coupled with the fact that Chief Justice Walter Clark, of Raleigh, has accepted their invitation to deliver the address. the ladies are doubly sure of a cele bration that will go down to history a day that every man and woman in Cumberland County will remember with pride. Let the county and town put forward every effort to make this land county should not only feel proud to help build a monument at Liberty Point, but should feel it a sacred duty to perpetuate to coming generations the fact that here on this spot their forefathers met, and under the mos trying circumstances that could surround human lives, and signed in the face of dangers untold,, an instrument calculated to make the National Inindence a certainty. Come all, and help the women in this effort. .

In years to come such a monun will be pointed to with pride, not only by our children, but by the thousands who visit this place. Every one will than realize that here was laid one hundred and forty years ago the corner stone of liberty.

A STATEMENT.

Fayetteville, N. C., March 17, 1909 .-The Cross Creek and Seventy-First Stock Law Commissioners held a meeting to-day to decide what to do in regard to the claims being presented to the Chairman for a refund of the taxes paid for 1908 by those citizens of Havnount who were so unfortunate as to be taken in by the extension of the city limits. After much discussion and a careful consideration , it was decided unanimously that this Board had no funds of the 1907 tax, the same having been applied to the fence notes made by the preceeding board and this amount was still not enough to pay the original debt contracted by them, so a part of the tax collected for 1908 was applied to complete payment of

In addition to this we find that the ence, in order to save money, has not included a large body of land in Seventy-First and Carver's Creek, owned by Mr. Holt and others, who now say that we must include them and build the fence in accordance with the law. This board feels that the citizens of Haymount were parties to the contraction of this debt, and at any rate, secured the protection of this fence, and should pay this tax assessed before they were citizens of the town. This is the decision of the Fence Commissioners, but we consider that we are the servants of the Honorable Board of County Commissioners, and they alone have the entire right to refund or relieve taxes, and if so ordered, we will take such steps as we are ordered to do by hem. This board does not think this matter comes within their province. There is one thing further: An inrestigation of our finances convinces us and will convince others that we cannot build the new fence, keep up repairs on the line, and refund this oney, as the tax books show about $226.42 fence tax still due and uncol ected in this territory.

Nothing in the way or a Couga-nite so annoying as a tickling, to an, wheeting bronchial Cough. To ulckost relief comes perhaps from rescription known to Druggiets eve-there as Dr. Shoop's Cough Dema-ind bealdes, it is so thoroughly has that mothers give it with perish communications which come through the malls unsigned, or, if not clock, just after the shattered leg had ever without publishing also the name of the writer. Others, following the (really obsolets) precedent of newsthe freedom of the press is abridged, take the chances, publish the commun-ication signed only by a pen name, and rely upon the real name sent with it in case of being held accountable for publishing something that satisfies a private as distinguished from a public object or grievance. Anonymous communications often embody highly meritorious sentiments and propositions for the general good, and the editor is sorely tempted to give them the sanction which the mere publishing of them in his paper bestows. But not infrequently a close examination reveals an allusion to persons as well as things. If such an alfusion should contain particulars which iden tify the person alluded to among those cognizant of the facts-though imparting no such identification to the editor then the editor, by publishing the great weight of his established publication to the promotion of one side of a private contention about which he knows nothing.

It has been a long time since we have had occasion to recite the foregoing trite rules of newspaper life, so great has been the spread of general intellignce. Remarking, then, that anonymou communications are held to suggest a want of good faith, we have to say that, within the bounds indicated above, the Observer is ever ready to exploit the views of its readers.

"Hand Book:" ." The development of the trucking industry in South Caro-lin has been one of the most conspicu-ous of all the developments in the South in recent years. * "The Char-leaton district acrease is action to leaton district acreage is estimated at 24,200 acres, and the value of the truck produced has been estimated at 33,717,000, against $212,700 six years ago.

Over in Horry county the growing of strawberries and fruits be ploneers, has developed into a splen-did industry." The Homewood colony of Horry and the adjacent colony of ross the State line, were settled in 1898 by Michiganders, who, when they saw the farmers of Carolina working their fields in mid-February, exclaim ed: "We are done shoveling snow in Michigan," and forthwith moved down, bag and baggage, to take possession of some 12,000 acres of old, worn-out savannah lands, which they bought for few dollars an acre. Mr. J. Lewis colony, seems to have been the "De-con Pym" of the colony, for he held it together through the first year of hardship, which came with the lack land. Within three years, however, the average gross yield from these old savannah lands was $300 per acre. One man made $1494.76 on three acres of strawberries. Cucumbers, radishes and beans were grown also with phenomenal success and profit. From one neighborhood at Conway, Horry coun-ty, in 1904 there were shipped 31 cars of strawberries that netted the growers $25,000. "This," says the report of one of the colonists to the commissioners, "is not a bad showing for a lew men in an off year." Further on in the same report quoted above the leader of the colony says: "The truckers have all had exception ally good health since their arrival in South Carolina. There has not been a single case of serious illness among em, and they are all satisfied and even enthulastic over the advantages of their adopted home. It is but fair to say that these first colonists settled on worn-out savannahs or in the woods, as did most of their brethren in North Carolina, and that in the pace of four years they were indep dent, and despite a severe drought this When it is considered that four years ago there were scarcely any strawperries grown in this section, and that he present trucking crop from a terwithin 40 miles of Chadbourn, along the main line, will exceed $3,000,000, and may go to $5,000, 000, some idea can be had of the enor ers without capital. "All places within this zone have quick connection with New York city and other Northern points by refrigerhe cars at Chadbourn, where they keep a large ice storage plant with a mous strides made by scattered farmcapacity of 12,000 tons.

Going on, the same report says: "The market here comes midway be tween Florida and Norfolk, thus giving a clear field for growers to get in vithout opposition. The climate is nild and equable, the Gulf stream be ng only 50 miles off shore and the en ire region pierced by large rivers Winters are noted for mildne ummers are never excessively hot. The region has a special advantage in irish potato culture, and very large yields are recorded.
