With teeth set and newly sharpened ons, we set out for that last 100 miles. Some dogs had gone into the atomacha of their hungry companions, but there still remained a sufficient pull of well tried brute force for each sled, and, though their noisy vigor had lost in the long drag, they still

DR. COOK ON BOARD THE HANS ROEDR. broke the frigid allence with an occasional outburst. A little fresh enthusiasm from the drivers was quickly followed by canine activity.

We were in good trim to cover distance economically. The sledges were light; our bodies were thin. All the muscles had shriveled, but the dogs retained much of their strength. Thus stripped for the last lap, one horizon after another was lifted.

In the forced effort which followed we were frequently overheated. The temperature was steady at 44 degrees below zero F., but perspiration came with ease and a certain amount of easure. Later, however, there followed a train of suffering for many days. The delight of the birdski shirt was changed for the chill of the wet blanket. The mittens, the boots and the fur stockings became quite ss until dried out.

Furs Soon Dried.

Fortunately, at this time the sun was warm enough to dry the furs in about three days if lashed to the sun my side of the sled. In these last days we felt more keenly the pangs of per-

The amber colored goggles were per sistently used, and they afforded a protection to the eyes which was quite a revelation, but in spite of every preeaution our distorted, frozen, burned and withered faces lined a map of the hardships en route.

We were curious looking savages. The perpetual glitter induced a squint which distorted the face in a remarkable manner. The strong light reflected from the crystal surface threw the inuscles about the eye into a state of chronic contraction. The pupil was reduced to a mere pinhole. There was no end of trouble at hand in endeavoring to keep the windows of the soul open, and all of the effect was run together in a set expression of hardship and wrinkles which should be called the boreal squint.

Nearing the Pole.

This boreal squint is a part of the russet brouze physiognomy which falls to the lot of every arctic explorer. The early winds, with a piercing temperature, start a flush of scarlet, while frequent frostbites leave figures in black. Later the burning sun browns the skin; subsequently strong winds sop the moisture, barden the skin and leave open fissures.

The bard work and reduced nourish ment contract the muscles, dispel the fat and leave the skin to shrivel up in folds. The imprint of the geggles, the mental blank of the environment have oved all spiritual animation. 'We have the color and the lines of old russet apples and would easily pass for prehistoric progenitors of man. In the enforced effort to spread out the stiffened legs over the last reaches there was no longer sufficient energy at camping times to erect a snow shotter. The silk tent was then pressed into use.

Though the temperature was still very low when the sun was high, its ial rays pierced the allk fabric congenial rays pierced the alla fabric and rested softly on our brows closed in heavy slumber. In strong winds it was still necessary to creek a shelter-ing wall to shield the tent.

When the sun was low the eve ran over moving plains in brilliant waves of color to dancing horizons. The mirages turned things tory turvy. Inverted lands and quee, objects ever rose and fell in shrouds of mystery. but all of this was due to the atmopheric magic of the midnight sun.

With a lucky series of daily astro nomical observations our position was now accurately fixed for each stage of progress. As we neared the pole the imagination quickened, and a restless almost hysteric excitement came over us. The boys fancied they saw beaver and seals, and I had a new land unde observation frequently, but with change in the direction of light or an altered trend in our temperament the horizon cleared and we became eases only to push farther into the mystery From the eighty-eighth to the eightyninth the ice was in very large fields and the surface was less tregular, but in other respects it was about the same as below the eighty-seventh. We noticed here also an extension of the range of vision. We seemed to see longer distances and the ice along the horizon had a less angular outline.

The color of the sky and the ice also changed to deeper purple blues. We had no way of checking these impres sions by other observations. The eagerness to find something unusual may have fired the imagination, but since the earth is flattened at the pole perhaps a widened horizon should be

At 8 o'clock on the morning of April 19 we camped on a picturesque old field with convenient hummocks, to which we could easily rise for the fre quent outlook which we now maintain ed. The tent was pitched. The dogs were silenced by blocks of pemmican in us new enthusiasm was aroused by a liberal pot of pea soup and a few chips of frozen meat, and then we bathed in life giving sunbeams, serven ed from the piercing air by silk strands. It was a beautiful day, and had our sense of appreciation not been blunted by accumulated fatigue we would have greatly enjoyed the play of light and color in the ever changing scene of sparkle.

The Eskimos were soon tost in profound sleen, the only comfort in their hard lives, but I remained awake. as had been my habit on succeed days, to get martical observations. T operitude extenditions timed us at 2 degrees 3 minutes. At nown the son's ultitude was carefully set on this sex tant, and the latitude quickly reduced gave 80 degrees 31 mountes-twenty the miles from the tale.

sleep beyond it must be seen. I tried to explain that the pole was not visible to the eye; that its position was located only by a repeated use of the various instruments. This entirely satisfied their curiosity, and they burst out in hurrals of joy. For two hours they chanted and danced the passions of wild life.

Sleep Is Impossible.

It was the first real sign of pleasure or rational emotion which they had shown for several weeks. For some time I had entertained the fear that we no longer possessed the strength to return to land, but the unbridled flow of vigor dispelled that idea.

More sleep was quite impossible. brewed an extra pot of tea, prepared a favorite broth of pemmican, dug up s surprise of fancy biscuits and filled up on good things to the limit of the allowance for our final feast days. The dogs, which had joined the chorus of gladness, were given an extra lump of pemmican. A few hours more were agreeably speut in the tent, and then we started with a new spirit for the attermost north.

We were excited to a fever heat The feet were light on this run. Even the dogs caught the infectious enthusiasm and rushed along at a pace which made it difficult for me to keep a sufficlent advance to set a good course. The horison was still searched for mething to mark the approaching boreal center, but nothing unusual was seen. It was the same expanse of lived for 500 miles.

But, looking through gladdened eyes the scene assumed a new glory. There were plains of gold fenced in purple walls, with glided crests. It was one of the few days on the stormy pack when all nature smiled with cheering

Through this see of color the dega came with a spirited tread, noses down, tails up and shoulders braced to the straps like chariot horses. The young Eshimoa chanting songs of love, came with easy step. The long whip was awang with a brisk crack, and all over there rose a cloud of frosted breath.

Camp was pitched early in the morning of April 20. The sun was northeast; the pack glowed in tones of lilar;

east; the pack glowed in tones of Mac; the normal westerly air of shivers brushed our frosty faces. The surpris-ing burst of enthusiasm had been nursed to its limits, and under it a long march was made over average ice with the usual result of overbearing fatigue. Too tired and sleepy to wait for a cup of tea, melted snows were poured down and the penmican was pounded with the ax to ease the task of the jaws. The eyes closed before the meal was finished, and the world was lost to us for eight hours. The observation gave latitude 89 degrees 46.5 minutes, longitude 94 degrees 52

With the boys singing and the dogs wiing we started off after midnight on April 21. The dogs looked large and noble as they came along that day, while Etukishuk and Ahwelah, though thin and ragged, had a dignity as heroes of the greatest human bat tle which had ever seen fought with remarkable success We were all lifted to the paradise of winners as we stepped over the snows of a destiny for which we had risked life and willingly suffered the tortures of an icy hell.

The ice under us seemed almost sacred. When the pedometer registered fourteen and a half miles we camped and calmly went to sleep, feeling that we were turning on the earth's axis. The observations, however, gave 89 legrees 50 minutes 45 seconds. We therefore had the pole, or the exact spot where it should be, within sight. We advanced the fifteen seconds made supplementary observations, pitched the tent, built a snow igloo and prepared to make ourselves comfortable for a stay long enough for two rounds of observations.

Our position was thus doubly assured, and a necessary day of rest was gained. Etukishuk and Ahwelah enjoyed the day in quiet repose, but I dept very little. My goal was reached; the ambition of my life had been fulfilled. How could I sleep away such overwhelming moments of ela

The Dream Realized.

At last we had reached the boreal center. The dream of nations had been realized. The race of centuries was ours. The flag was pinned to the coveted pole. The year was 1968, the day April 21.

The sun indicated local noon, but time was a negative problem, for here all meridians meet. With a step it was possible to go from one part of the globe to the opposite side-from the hour of midnight to that of midday. Here there are but one day and one night in each year. The latitude was 90 degrees, the temperature -- 38.7, the atmospheric pressure 29.83. North.

east and west had vapished. It was south in every direction, but the compass, pointing to the magnetic pole, was as useful as ever.

Though overjoyed with the success of the conquest our spirits began to change on the next day after all the observations had been taken and the local conditions were studied. A sense of intense loneliness came with a careful scrutiny of the horizon. What a cheerless spot to have aroused the ambition of man for so many ages! Endless fields of purple snows! No life, no land, no spot, to relieve the monotony of frost! We were the only pulsating creatures in a dead world of ice.

On April 23, 1908, Dr. Cook began the long return march. With fair weather, good ice and the inspiration of the home run long distances were at first quickly covered.

With a good deal of anxiety Cook watched the dally reduction of the food supply. It now became evident that the crucial stage of the campaign was to be transferred from the taking of the pole to a final battle for life against famine and frost. Early in July farther southward progress be-came impossible, and in quest of food he crossed the Firth of Devon into Jones sound. On Feb. 18, 1909, the start was made for Annootok. With a newly prepared equipment the Green-land shores were reached on April 15. Here Dr. Cook was greeted by Harry Whitney and anxious Eskimo friends To facilitate an early return he moved southward to the Danish settlement and reached Upernavik on May 21, 1509.

THE NEEDS OF THE CHURCH.

odence of the Observer.] Mr. Editor:—
While each church of Christ has its earthly leader, each one professing to be under the control and guidance of One upon whose shoulder the whole government of heaven and earth has been laid and who is well able to carry it, for he is "Wonderful, Counselor, the Mighty God, the everlasting Father, the Prince of Peace.", yet the general complaint from the ministry is "that the church does not command."

"that the church does not committee interest, attendance and sug of the people as it should," and the is complaint also "of-the evangelle neffectiveness of the preaching of the supreme question of the hour, now upon the tongues of tens of thousands dy for the unbelief, spiritual powerless ness and evangelistic inefficiency of the Church of our dear Lord?"

There are many who seem to think hat the Church's power and greatness

will be according to the abundance of money which she is able to collect, and there are many who suppose that a tenth of their income is the rental noney which they owe to the Lord or the use of his land and other bless ings, without which, we could not live: and after that debt is paid the other ametenths may be spent for whatever the sour desires according to "the just of the flesh and just of the eyes, and the pride of life." apparent. orgetting that "the world passeth away, and the lust thereof; out he that doeth the will of God abideth forever." John 2:16, 17; and there are yet others who realize that they are only stewards, and that when heir Lord calls upon them they must ender an account of their stewardhip. To them the injunction of John Baptist (Luke 3:11), which says, "He that hath two coats, let him im-part to him that hath none; and he that hath meat, let him do likewise," is still in force. But it is often argued and that by church members too, that "God loves a cheerful giver," and unless they can give cheerfully, their gifts will not be accepted. But the psalmist says, "Thy people shall be willing in the day of thy power." Psa. 110:3. Those who have been "endowed with power from on high," give with such hearty good will that they, like ne Joses, might be surnamed "Sons of Consolation." They are "rich" in good works, ready to distribute, willing to communicate, laying up in store for themselves a good fou tion against the time to come, that ney may lay hold on eternal life." see 1 Tim. 6:17, 18, 19. They are well utted to be leaders in the churches of Christ, for "a bishop must be blame ess, the husband of one wife, vigilant, over, of good behavior, given to hos ... ality, apt to teach; not given to .ne, no striker, not greedy of filthy acre; but patient, not a brawler, not ovetous; one that ruleth well his own house, having his children in subection with all gravity." 1 Tim. 3:2-4. hey are those who "visit the fatheress and widows in their affliction and keep themselves unspotted from the world." See James 1:27. Their connlence is in that one Physician that is wie to conquer death, the One that ays, "O Israei, thou hast destroyed nyself; but in me is thine heip. U neath, I will be thy piagues; O grave will be thy destruction, repentance hall be hid from mine eyes;" Hos. 13:9, 14; who "came unto his own and nis own received him not," although in him was life; and the life was the names, some substitutes which the Nadabs and Abihus are offering God instead of his own sacred fire, some gatherers of sticks to lay on the aitars of Baal, some trying to feast on the rotten manna of selfrighteousness, and some crying "Peace peace," when here is "no peace to the wicked;" so all these churches are lacking in power and evangelistic efficiency, and they must be "sifted" until every error and aise doctrine has been sifted out. God's holy word is the sifter. By it shall every thought and word and deed be sifted; "yet not the least grain shall fall upon the earth." Amos 9:9. For the word of God is quick and powerful, and sharper than any two-edged sword, piercing even to the dividing asunder of soul and spirit, and of the joints and marrow, and is a discerner of the thoughts and in-tents of the heart": Heb. 4:12. "Is not my word like as a fire? saith the Lord; and like a hammer that breakoth the rock in pices?" Jer. 23:29. "Every man's work shall be made manffest, for the day shall declare it, because it shall be revealed by fire; and the fire shall try every man's work of what sort it is. If any man's work abide he shall receive a reward," but "if any man's work shall be burned he shall suffer loss: but he himself shall be saved; yet so as by fire." 1 Cor. 2: 13-15. But when the sirting is com-pleted and the fire has done its work then every grain of solid wheat, every particle of pure gold and silver, every precious stone will be found in the tower of salvation," within the for tress of truth, the city that "lieth four square," whose four walls are knowledge, wisdom, holiness and love: that city whose length and breadth
