MINX'S TRIAL.

If ever there was a spoiled dog it was Minx, and a proper name she had, too. Of course, she was very young when she did the dreadful thing which led to her trial and conviction, but youth is not always an excuse.

Minx was one of nine children, and came to the Hortons when she was small enough to be carried in Tom's pocket. She was a skye terrier, and she became so attached to Tom that I'm afraid Elsie held him responsible fer the whole affair.

The little girls had been busy dressmaking for a month, for Emmelina Horton, the big wax doll and Elsie's oldest daughter was about to be married. There was to be a grand wedding at Elsie's house, and all Emmelina's friends, with their mammas, were to be invited. So every afternoon they met in the Horton's nursery and spent a busy, happy time making wonderful garments for this occa-

One afternoon, unfortunately, Blsie left the nursery door open while she ran downstairs to say good-bye to some of her friends. Minx peeped in, saw something white lying on Elsie's little work table, as well as some pretty scraps on the floor, and entered to investigate. The result was the "ruination," as Elsie remarked of Emmelina's wedding gown and the shutting up of Minx in the cellar to await her trial. Of course, the wedding was postponed.

The trial took place in the nursery the very next day. There was a jury of half a dozen little girls, a half dozen being considered quite enough for a dog. Elsie was the judge, and You, the policeman, brought in poor Minx on her hind legs, looking very much ashamed of herself.

She listened to the whole story, with her head on one side and her right ear cocked, and one or twice her soft, pathetic eyes filled with tears. Sometimes she wagged her stump of a tail quite piteously and when the torn up white dress was shown to her she looked guilty indeed.

When the judge pronounced sentence Minx immediately rolled over and played "dead," so deep was the disgrace. She had to wear clothes like a doll for a whole week, and Tom had to take her out each day in a doll carriage. It was a good lesson to Minx, who had a terrible ordeal to go through every time she met her dog friends, Nowadays she never goes near the nursery, and if the faintest allusion is made to Emmelina's wedding dress the culprit will immediately put her tail between her legs and creep under Barbers Lean to Curios. A clock that had a certain value because of historic associations was lo-

There are dozens of barber shops in town that can boast pieces of furniture and bric-a-brac old enough and curious enough to make the collector's mouth water. In some cases the patrons of those shops realize the value of the ornaments provided for them to blink at while getting a shave or a haircut; in other cases, they don't; but the proprietor knows every time what a bonanza he has on hand, and it would take mighty sharp bargaining to get the things away from him.-New York Press.

WHAT WAS IT The Woman Feared?

What a comfort to find it is not "the awful thing" feared, but only chronic indigestion, which proper food can relieve.

A woman in Ohio says: "I was troubled for years with indigestion and chronic constipation. At times I would have such a gnawing in my stomach that I actually feared I had a-I dislike to write or even think of what I feared.

"Seeing an account of Grape-Nuts, I decided to try it. After a short time I was satisfied the trouble was not the awful thing I feared, but was still bad enough. However, I was relieved of a bad case of dyspepsia by changing from improper food to Grape-Nuts.

"Since that time my bowels have been as regular as a clock. I had also noticed before I began to eat Grape-Nuts that I was becoming forgetful of where I put little things about the house, which was very-annoying. Nuts, my memory is good and my mind as clear as when I was young, and I am thankful." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read the little booklet, "The Road to Wellville," in packages. "There's a Rea-

BABE SAVED IN WOMAN'S ARMS

Aroused by Dog, Oil Man at Tionesta. Pa, Saves Four of Family by Desperate Efforts in Flames-Exhausted Ere Task Ends.

Franklin, Pa .- Exhausted by desperate efforts to break through a barrier of flame and half-unconscious from smoke, Thomas Euver, one of the best known oil producers in this part of the State, lay in the road beside his house near Tionesta and saw his home, with five of his eight children in it, burn. Wilbur Vuver, seventeen years old, and Nelson, fourteen, were senseless beside him, having been burned terribly in attempts to rescue their two younger brothers and three little sisters. On the other side of Zuver, in a swoon, lay Mrs. Zuver, with her baby in her arms. The five children were burned in their beds. Either they were suffocated by smoke before the flames got to them or were paralyzed by fear, Any effort at escape they might have made would have been futile, for they were hemmed in a ring of fire. That the whole family did not meet death in the biaze was due to the barking of Zuver's dog, and to his own heroism. Zuver saved his wife and baby and his first and second sons before his strength failed.

Tragedy was piled on tragedy, for three hours after the flames had destroyed five of her children, Mrs. Zuver received a dispatch telling of the sudden death of her mother. Mrs. Martha Ive, in Van Buren, Ind., and saying the elder woman's body would arrive. It was decided that one funeral service would be held over Mrs. Ives and her five grandchildren. Nelson Zuver was burned so frightfully in trying to save his brothers and sisters that it is feared he cannot recover. Mrs. Zuver, already prostrated the loss of her children, was thrown into such a terrible condition by the news of her mother's death that much apprehension was felt for Zuver heard his dog barking at 5 o'clock. He was dizzy when he tried to rise from bed, and several seconds passed before he realized the room was thick with smoke. The man aroused his wife hastily and bade her flee with the baby. He tried to run up to the stairs to the second floor to awaken the seven children sleeping there, but flames beat-him back, singeing him cruelly. Then he dashed out of the house and climbed to the roof of the porch. He smashed a window pane, unfastened the sash and dragged out Wilbur and Nelson, both of whom were unconscious.

Must Raise the Price.

Must the dollar weekly increase the price to $1.50? asks the Almont (Mich.) Herald. This is a question being considered by a large majority of the weekly newspaper men, and without a doubt should be answered in the affirmative. Print paper, used for newspapers, took a jump about April 1 from $2.25 to $2.85 per hundred and this on top of a gradual rise during the past five years. Body type, also used for the newspaper could be purchased in 1889 at 29c per pound, but now 50c Practically every other article that goes into the making up of a newspaper, including labor, is higher, yet the old price of one dollar remains unchanged. This was made years ago, when prices were lower than those quoted above, and something must be done to meet the added expenses. For years subscribers have been getting these one-dollar-per-year papers for less than the cost of production, advertising paythe deficiency, thus leaving in the average print shop only the job department as a profit maker, and many times the profit in that source is used in meking the ends meet.-Harriman Observer.

CONTAGION A QUESTION OF PREVENTION.

Sinks, drains, eating and cooking utensils, sick room linen and clothing frequently carry the dreaded disease germ unnoticed by the household.

Thorough and hygienic cleansing is the best safeguard against infection. and such a safeguard is found in the universal household necessity-

This simple preventive carries in itself, disinfecting qualities which enter the fabric or act upon the article to be clearsed in a hygienic manner, eliminating every unwholesome property, rendering it contagion-proof, while at the same time Borax is of itself as harmless as salt.
