THE GOVERNOR'S LETTER.

The open letter issued by Governor Glenn to the people of the State announcing his decision not to become a candidate for United States Senator against Senator Overman was received with surprise by the numerous admirers of the Governor throughout North Carolina.

"I have given the matter careful and prayerful consideration, and feel that I am doing right, and in coming to my conclusion, two things have actuated me. First, to serve the state by preventing a bitter contest. Second, and I hope is a still higher motive to help humanity. With hostile papers saying I was making this canvas for prohibition as a stepping stone for my own political advancement, or hoping on the crest of a big temperance victory to ride into the office of Senator, the effects of my campaign would be weakened, and my sincerity doubted.

Every good man will hesitate on picking up a ballot authorizing the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors before putting it in the box. Keeping intoxicants in reach of boys and young men is a serious proposition to consider and many a man who weighs the matter rightly, by taking time for the proper consideration of it, will see the dangers attending such action and vote for temperance, the only safe course to pursue for the protection of present and future generations.

As an admirer of both Governor Glenn and Senator Overman, we are gratified that there is to be no conflict between them at this time. The Governor says he will support the Senator and this settles the matter. Both are good men and of senatorial size.

One of our republican exchanges "smilingly" says that "the only argument the republicans will need this fall will be to read the articles the democratic candidates have published on each other." Yes, and vice versa. But even this will not be convincing enough to cause any fair-minded man to vote the radical ticket in North Carolina, who has been a democrat from principle.

Butler's Caucasian is still handing out some hot stuff to Republican State Chairman Adams and there is likely to be some more fun when their state convention meets. And yet the radical organs talk about "peace, harmony and good government." They would not know good state government if they should meet it in the road, or county government either, for that matter.

Governor Glenn has been a much maligned man at the hands of certain influences since the passenger controversy started early last summer, which was augmented by the reference to prohibition in his message to the Special session of the General Assembly this year. The railroads and whiskey advocates have no love for him, but "the corn-stalk" folks are generally Glenn men, so far as we have been able to ascertain.

The North Carolina Press Association is holding its annual session in Charlotte this week. The Queen City has made all necessary preparations to give the "quill drivers" a good time and "this is enough said." Charlotte never does things by halves.

Pay your poll tax on or before next Thursday, else there will be "nothing doing" for you, either at the May or November elections. Do not take any chances. Fix it today. Republicans are doing this.

Who Owns West Of Pigeon River Asheville, April 11.—Papers in a test suit have been filed here by United States District Attorney A. E. Holton for the purpose of establishing the ownership of the United States to all land in North Carolina west of Pigeon river and southwest of the mountain, extending from the source of this river to the South Carolina line. The territory includes eight counties, with a population of 100,000.

Only a week remains in which you may settle your poll tax before the first day of May. Don't neglect this important matter.

The Johnson Press Syndicate is sending out pages of matter, to newspapers that want to use it, free of charge. It is now evident that a systematic effort is being made to defeat Bryan for the democratic nomination for president and his friends may as well be on the alert from this time until the convention meets.

Have you paid your poll tax for 1907? If not you should do so at once. May first is the limit and there remains only one week more in which to qualify yourself. Attend to this if you have not already done so and ask any friend who may have overlooked the matter to settle this tax before the time expires so that he may be enabled to cast his vote for prohibition at the May election and also for good government this fall.

Five counties of this district were represented as follows: Haywood, W. T. Lee, chairman of the committee; Henderson, M. L. Shipman; Rutherford, J. C. Mills; Buncombe, Charles A. Webb; Polk, J. C. Fisher. Other counties of the district were represented by proxy. Mr. Webb acted as proxy for Mr. Kerr, member of the committee from this county.

The meeting was called to order by Chairman Lee and Mr. Shipman was elected secretary. Dr. Sevier, chairman of the Buncombe county executive committee, representing the city of Asheville, urged that the convention be held here. Mr. Webb also made a speech urging that the convention meet here. Upon motion of J. C. Mills, seconded by J. C. Fisher, Asheville was selected as the place to hold the convention.

Mr. Shipman made a motion that the convention be held at such time as would allow delegates of the western part of the state to go from the district to the state convention without having to return home between meetings. Upon this suggestion Mr. Mills moved that the convention meet at 4 p. m., June 22, which was adopted by the committee. The chairman was authorized to issue a call to that effect.

Favorable conditions for democracy were reported from all sections of the district and a sweeping victory predicted. The chances of Locke Craig were discussed, and it was the unanimous opinion of the committee that the tenth district will go solid for Mr. Craig. Each reported that he is the choice of his section.—Citizen

The first time you walk into a bar room that means "Death" for the first damn call for another and on and on, until the first thing you know the young man is lying around the corners of the streets with red eyes, worn out clothes and his wife and children at home starving and crying for papa to come home. Oh! where is he.

Young men how can you bear the thought of a home like this. I am pleading with the young men because the older ones shall pass away and the young ones must fill their places.

In conclusion I will say to the young girls to talk and plead with the young men of your settlement to vote the prohibition ticket. If you are corresponding with a young man and he don't vote a dry ticket let him alone for you will never be happy with him until the day comes to vote. My prayers shall be that a prohibition law shall reign throughout North Carolina.

Prohibition.

Dear Editor—will you please print in your paper a few lines from an orphan girl on the great subject of prohibition. I would like to say to the young men of North Carolina, not to let the precious opportunity of voting the whiskey out of North Carolina pass without voting a dry ticket. Dear young men I plead with you gentlemen should and vote for a prohibition law, and you shall be rewarded at the judgement day.

It has caused the death of many a person. Young men first think of the many unhappy homes all caused by the filthy substance called whiskey. The first time you walk into a bar room that means "Death" for the first damn call for another and on and on, until the first thing you know the young man is lying around the corners of the streets with red eyes, worn out clothes and his wife and children at home starving and crying for papa to come home. To the Commander and members of Watt Bryson Camp: Your committee are again called upon to record the crossing of the cold stream of death by another comrade. In February, 1908, Wesley M. Justus, so long and well known in Hendersonville, died and was buried, age 79 years.

He had long been in business in Hendersonville, and was recognized as among our best and safest business men and of unquestioned integrity, measuring up to the high standard of former days, when men's confidence in each other was well founded.

He served the Southern cause in the sixties as a mechanic in an armory. He was twice married, was a widower at the time of his death. Thus our county and town have lost forever another of their old land marks.

Your committee recommend the reading and publication of this report. S. V. PICKENS, Ch'm.
