

SOME DON'TS For Stomach and Liver Sufferers

Don't take medicine for your Stomach ailments morning, noon and night, as usually such medicine only give temporary relief and simply disarrange the food that has to be in the stomach. Don't permit a surgical operation. There is always serious danger in operations, and in many cases of Stomach, Liver and Intestinal ailments the knife can be avoided if the right remedy is taken in time. Don't go around with a foul smelling breath caused by disordered Stomach and Liver, to the discomfort of those you come in contact with. If you are a Stomach Sufferer don't think you cannot be helped, probably worse cases than yours have been restored by Mayr's Wonderful Stomach Remedy. Most stomach ailments are mainly caused by a catarrh condition. Mayr's Wonderful Stomach Remedy not only removes the catarrhal mucous, but allays the chronic inflammation and assists in rendering the entire alimentary and intestinal tract antiseptic, and this is the secret of its marvellous success. Don't suffer constant pain and agony and allow your stomach ailments to physically undermine your health. No matter how severe your case may be or how long you have suffered—one dose of Mayr's Wonderful Stomach Remedy should convince you that you can be restored to health again. Mayr's Wonderful Stomach Remedy has been taken and is highly recommended by Members of Congress, Justice of the Supreme Court, Educators, Lawyers, Merchants, Bankers, Doctors, Druggists, Nurses, Manufacturers, Priests, Ministers. Farmers and people in all walks of life. Send for FREE valuable booklet on Stomach ailments to Geo. H. Mayr, 154-156 Whiting St., Chicago, Ill.

CROW FARMERS' FRIEND SAY GOVERNMENT EXPERTS

Consumes Enough Grasshoppers, Cut Worms, White Grubs and Other Insects to Make Him Valuable. Washington, D. C.—Condemned, despised and slaughtered for decades as a bird destructive in agricultural fields, the crow is about to come into its own and be given everlasting recognition as the farmers' friend. The case of the crow was recently reopened by the department of agriculture, and as a result of an investigation by the biological survey it has been decided that the bird is of great value to the farmers. Instead of being persecuted and frightened by divers means, the farmers should encourage the crow, according to the experts of the biological survey. The scarecrows that adorn the farms and gardens should be stripped and the idea of thus frightening the crow abandoned for all time. After a careful study of the habits and an examination of a large number of stomachs, the department experts have reached the conclusion that the crow consumes enough grasshoppers, cut worms, white grubs and other injurious insects to make him highly valuable to the farmers.

One Bad Habit. There is, however, one bad habit which the crow has, and that is the destruction of young birds and birds' eggs; but this trait, in the opinion of experts, is outweighed by the good the bird is doing the farmer in the destruction of worms and insects. "The one danger from the crow," says the department of agriculture in a report, "lies in large numbers. If the crow population can be kept down so that its normal food is sufficient, there is every reason why the farmer should encourage the bird to remain about their farms. "Not long ago an agent of the department was watching a crow feeding in a corn field. It seemed that the bird was pulling the young corn and carrying it to a nearby nest to feed its young. After the crow had left the nest, the agent climbed the tree and secured the young birds. An examination showed that instead of young corn, the older bird had been feeding the young ones with cut worms gathered from around the corn plants.

Notoriously Clannish. "Crows are notoriously clannish birds, and except during a few weeks at nesting time are usually seen in flocks. Moreover, even while nesting, they are more or less gregarious, for, although two nests are seldom built in the same tree, yet half a dozen pairs often build within easy hearing distance of each other, and if one is disturbed all the likely to unite for common protection or protest. "When the young are able to fly, the parents accompany them, forming little family parties of six or eight, and these soon associate with similar parties. They commonly travel in flocks and often congregate in large numbers, but only during winter do they unite to roost in immense communities. Many roosts are known where not less than 10,000 crows spend the night during this season of the year, and most of these roosting places have been used year after year."

Where a Governor is Buried. Pocket Cemetery, one of the oldest burying places in this section of the state, was recently cleaned off by people who have relatives buried there. Large trees had grown up over some of the graves and these with the weeds and briars had hidden from view the old tombstones which were placed in the cemetery many years ago. A few miles above Pocket Cemetery is another old burying ground just across the line in Moore county which contains the grave of Benjamin Williams, once governor of North Carolina. By his side sleeps his wife and nearby are the graves of former slaves. Williams was chief executive of the state for two terms during the closing years of the Eighteenth century. Records in the University library show that he was one of the founders of the state's chief institution of learning.—Sanford Express.

Biltmore to London. For the purpose of showing the residents of England just what North Carolina is doing in truck farming, the Southern Railway company, through its and industrial department, will send the truck farm exhibit of the Biltmore estate, which was on exhibition at the Western North Carolina fair at Asheville to London. The exhibit has attracted a great deal of attention, and it is believed that it will make a good showing in competition with similar exhibit from many parts of the world which will be on exhibition at London.

A MESSAGE TO WOMEN Who Are "Just Ready to Drop." When you are "just ready to drop," when you feel so weak that you can hardly drag yourself about—and because you have not slept well, you get up as tired-out next morning as when you went to bed, you need help. Miss Lea Dumas writes from Malone, N. Y., saying: "I was in a badly run-down condition for several weeks but two bottles of Vinol put me on my feet again and made me strong and well. Vinol has done me more good than all the other medicines I ever took." If the careworn, run-down women, the pale, sickly children and feeble old folks around here would follow Miss Dumas' example, they, too, would soon be able to say that Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron remedy, had built them up and made them strong.

WILLSON LUMBER CO. ENLARGES BUSINESS

The J. R. Willson Lumber company of this city has been incorporated with a capital stock of $25,000 with the following officers: President, Frank E. Willson of Pittsburg, Pa.; vice president, Alex Willson of Pittsburg; secretary, treasurer and general manager, J. R. Willson of Hendersonville. The new company has purchased the business, machinery and equipment of the F. S. Thomas interests and is now erecting a planing mill in its yard at the corner of First avenue and Church street. The machinery will be installed within a few days. J. R. Willson upon coming to Hendersonville a little over five years ago from Pittsburg, where he had been in the lumber business, resumed this line of work and during the past five years has experienced most gratifying results by reason of his thorough business methods. The firm will do a wholesale and retail business in lumber and builders' supplies and thereby meet the growing demands of Hendersonville and surrounding territory along all building lines.

Nursing the Baby. A baby should always be nursed by its mother, unless the mother has tuberculosis or some other grave disease. The mother saves herself trouble by nursing her baby. When she figures up the saving from diminished illness on dadd's to it the trouble of fixing the baby's bottle during the night as well as the day, she finds that she nets a gain by nursing her baby. During the first two days the baby should be nursed four times a day and once at night. From the third day to six weeks the baby should be nursed every two hours during the day and twice at night; from six weeks to six months every three hours and once at night; from six months to a year, six times between 6 o'clock a. m. and 10 o'clock p. m., and not at all during the night.

In addition to milk, babies require water from the very first. The old granny who gave the baby teas was a pretty good scientist, though she did not know it. Of course, the herbs which she used to make the tea had no particular effect, but she was giving the baby sterilized, warmed water, and that was as it should be. After about the second month the baby should have some orange juice every day. The juice should be given freed from pulp. The amount should begin with two teaspoonfuls a day and should be gradually increased to four tablespoonfuls, especially where there is a tendency to constipation. It is much better to relieve constipation with orange juice than by enemas, and certainly than by medicine, since babies need a little fruit juice to correct any tendency to scurvy and rickets.

That the mother may give enough milk to supply the baby, it is necessary that she be free from worry and not called upon to do a great amount of physical labor. Emotion has more effect on the secretion of milk than does the food taken. Occasionally a woman will overeat until she becomes obese trying to give milk enough for her baby, and then worry so, fearing her milk will fail, that she gains nothing for her trouble.

There are no special foods which make milk. Beer does not; neither does milk. Some women have the idea that milk taken as a food runs without much change into milk for the baby. This is not correct. A mother should eat good, nutritious, simple, staple food containing a good deal of fluids. That which she eats does not go directly to milk. It is digested and changed chemically thereby. It is absorbed and still further changed. Eventually it is changed into milk. She should increase the quantity of food eaten, since, for her own use, she needs more than she usually does, and, in addition, she is eating for the baby. The average woman nursing one baby can supply the child with food out of her surplus if she will keep her mind calm, her rest unbroken, and not have too much work to do. The average woman who thinks she cannot nurse her baby can do so if she will try.—Dr. W. A. Evans in Chicago Tribune.

Poor Old Murphy! The law says that the statement of the receipts and disbursements of any town or city shall be published annually. The reason given us for not having done so was a lack of funds to pay the printer. This is given out in answer to those who have asked us so frequently why the statement had not been published.—Murphy Scout.
