FIRST PRIZE TO MACON MAN.

Citizen of Highlands, Macon County, Won First Carnegie Hero Medal.

Charles N. Wright, of Macon county, won first award of the $100,000 disbursed to heroes or their relatives by the Carnegie Hero Fund commission. The report of the commission follows:

The commission distributes immediately $91,000 in awards of $2,000 and $1,000. There are 16 awards of $2,000 and 29 of $1,000. The remainder are in awards consisting of pensions ranging from $20 to $65 a month, and in cash sums under $1,000. In every award a medal is given, either bronze, silver or gold. In a few instances only a medal was awarded.

The highest award, consisting of a gold medal and $2,000 in cash money, goes to Charles N. Wright, a merchant, 38 years old, of Highlands, N. C., who with William L. Dillard, a liveryman, 33 years old, of the same place, helped to save R. Augustus Baty, a carpenter, 26 years old, from a fall down a precipice at that place May 14, 1911. Dillard receives a silver medal and $2,000.

Baty had fallen from the summit of Whiteside mountain at Fool's Rock and rolled 150 feet down an almost vertical cliff, and lodged against a small bush, two inches from the brink of a precipice 2,000 feet deep, part of his body dangling over the edge.

Wright and Dillard descended the vertical ledge, their only handholds or footholds being ridges and hollows not more than an inch in height or depth. Wright's wife saw him and began to scream. He was unnerved, but pushed on. Stopping at a tiny bush six feet above Baty, he let his feet down to a ledge two feet above the brink and then grasped Baty's coat collar. Baty gave a sudden jerk, but became quiet when Wright threatened him.

Pinning his legs around the bush, Wright drew Baty up a place of comparative safety, where Dillard, who had lost his nerve in the final stages of the rescue, was waiting. The two men took Baty, who was delirious 15 feet across the bare face of the cliff, within 18 inches of the brink. Then they moved Baty to the foot of the vertical ledge at the summit, from which point he was hoisted by means of a line. He recovered. The rescue took two hours and 30 minutes.

DISTRIBUTING RED SEALS.

Southern Express Company to Carry Red Cross Seals Free.

The Southern Express company has granted free carriage for red cross Christmas seals to all parts of North Carolina. This is a special concession to the Red Cross Seal committee of the State, but the same favor has been granted some other states. This is not only a contribution of several hundred dollars to the anti-tuberculosis work of these states but is also a recognition on the part of the express company of the value of the sale of the Red cross Christmas stamps in arousing sentiment that will help eradicate this disease which destroys 6,000 lives in North Carolina every year.

It probably realizes the enormous economic value of the fight against tuberculosis. Every untimely death is estimated to be an economic loss of $5,000 to the State or community. At this rate tuberculosis costs the State $30,000,000. To combat with this disease the State is spending a mere pittance. The Red Cross Seal committee hopes to raise $10,000 this year by selling 1,000,000 red cross seals. These seals or stamps are used as decorative stickers on letters and packages during several weeks before Christmas. They will be sold in nearly every section of the State and can be secured of the Red Cross Seal committee at Charlotte.

The action of the express company as indicated above will help a great deal in distributing the seals and literature.

RAILROADS TAKE EXCEPTION.

Say That Proposed Rates Would Be Unreasonable.

The Southern, the Atlantic Coast Line, the Seaboard Air Line and six other railroads operating in North Carolina have filed with Governor Locke Craig exceptions to the act of the recent legislature making radical reductions in intra-state freight rates. The railroads claim that the rates prescribed in the act are unreasonable and confiscatory and ask the governor to appoint the special commission of three men to investigate the facts, pending the putting into effect of the new rates, as provided for in the act. It is claimed by the railroads that the reductions proposed average 29 per cent and they undertake to show that the rates are much lower in many instances than the Minnesota rates, which were used as the basis for reductions in this state.

TRINITY WITHOUT FOOTBALL.

400 Students Parade and Declare no Athletics Without Football.

Following a mass meeting in the interest of football, 400 Trinity students paraded the streets of the up district in single file led by torch bearers and yelled for football. More enthusiasm showed than ever exhibited here.

Dean Crawford appeared before a bunch of students congregating for parade and ordered the crowd to disperse. "Every man of you who does not wish to willingly disobey orders and who will be treated accordingly go to your room," he commanded. The crowd dispersed, but later practically every man in college got together and marched like madmen uptown. On the postoffice steps, the cheer leaders took stand and the city resounded with clamor. Some one suggested an interview with Mr. Beu Duke. The mob headed for his mansion and demanded his sentiments. Mr. Duke was in bed and would not come down stairs. Miss Mary Duke, however, came out with a personal message. "Everybody in this house," she said, is for football all the time." The students stayed calling for Mr. Duke, who sent down the message "I have nothing to do with running college affairs, but personally am not against football."

Resolutions have been drawn up and will be signed by all varsity men that there will be no more athletics at Trinity, neither class nor inter-collegiate games until the authorities accede to the demands for class football.

STINGS IN YOUR ARMS.

Jersey Woman Warns of Danger That Lurks in City Crowds.

In mingling the subjects of votes for women and danger to girls, Mrs. Simon Morris has startled society in New Brunswick, N. J., where she lives. She talked before the Political Study club there on Monday.

She dwelt largely on "white slaves" and told a startling story of what had happened to a young girl in a New York department store.

Mrs. Morris said that a mother and her daughter, belonging to a prominent family of Jersey City, went to New York on a shopping trip. Arriving there, they separated, on agreement to meet in a Sixth avenue department store.

The daughter was the first to finish her shopping and was on her way to the place of meeting when she stopped to look in the windows of a store she had not visited. While standing in the crowd she felt a stinging sensation in her arm, as though some one had pinched her.

She wheeled sharply, saw no man close to her and dismissed the incident from her mind.

On entering the store she fell and became unconscious. At once a well-dressed man rushed up and said she was his wife, that she was subject to such spells, and that he would take charge of her. He was carrying her to a taxicab when her mother appeared. The man disappeared.

It was found that the girl's arm had been punctured by a hypodermic needle, with a powerful opiate in it.

Mrs. Morris asserted she knew of several other cases where the hypodermic needle had been used in that way, and warned all young girls to keep a lookout when alone in the cities.
