IN MEMORIAM.
Mrs. J. H. Freeman, wife of the late J. H. Freeman, departed this life on October —, 1913 in the 86th year of her age. She reared a large and respected family of children, only four of whom survive. Those are Hon. J. B. Freeman of Chimney Rock and A. B. Freeman of Hendersonville, and Mrs. R. Ashworth and Mrs. P. O. Freeman, both of Fairview, N. C. Mrs. Freeman had been a consistent and devoted member of the Baptist church since early in life. She was a devoted wife and affectionate mother and a kind neighbor. Since the death of her husband a few years ago, she has been under the immediate care of her son, J. B. Freeman, and his family. They did all in their power to make her declining years comfortable and pleasant.

The funeral service was held in the Fruitland Baptist church, after which the body was placed by the side of her husband and children in the Fruitland cemetery where it will quietly rest till the trumpet sounds which is to wake to life the slumbering dead who have died in Christ. Then it will come forth transformed and glorified to meet the Lord and dwell in his presence forever.

"How bright it will be in that beautiful land
So free from all sorrow and pain,
With crowns on our heads and harps in our hands
To meet one another again."

A. I. JUSTICE.

WORK OF SPECIAL SESSION, EDITORIAL.

On the whole, the special session of the Legislature, called by Governor Craig to receive the report of the Constitutional Commission and devise ways and means for a settlement of the freight rate controversy, did well. Nothing the people expected it to do was left undone. The proposition secured by the Corporation Commission from the railroads, relating to inter-state rates was accepted on the advice of the Governor. But the Assembly did not stop with this concession from the carriers. A stringent law was enacted for the regulation of intra-state rates, with necessary machinery to guarantee its enforcement. Governor Craig and a special commission to be selected by him will endeavor to correct any abuses that may appear to exist in the matter of intra-state shipments. To enumerate:

The recent session of the General Assembly was in session exactly twenty days. During this time 497 bills and nineteen resolutions were enrolled and ratified. The principal measures passed are: The bill submitting nine amendments to the constitution; (these will be voted on by the people at the next general election.) resolution accepting inter-State freight rate proposition offered by the carriers; bill reducing intra-state freight rates and providing a special commission to investigate the claims of the railroads that the rates proposed are confiscatory; an act to provide the Corporation Commission with a rate expert and other clerical assistance; the measure providing for the opening and maintenance, for a year, of the State school for the feeble-minded, located at Kinston; an act to work convicts on public roads instead of railroads; a supplementary omnibus appropriation bill carrying an allowance of $43,000 for improvements and maintenance of certain of the State's charitable institutions.

In addition to the above, various classes of local legislation was enacted. The charters of many towns were amended, justices of the peace appointed, churches incorporated, bond issues authorized, throwing saw dust in certain streams prohibited and mistakes made at the regular session corrected. The number of local laws enacted is greatly in excess of that of any previous short session convened in many years and the participants certainly have a brief record of activity to their credit. The seventeen working days were replete with interest and excitement. The members assembled in the capitol for action and there were few dull moments during their sojourn in the capital city.

The work of the special session is now history and time alone can reveal its value to the State. The public appears to be hopeful of the results accomplished and for this there is abundant cause.

We would advise the Waynesville Courier that Hendersonville has more than one street car as stated in last week's paper in giving an account of a street car accident in this city. We have two car lines, and Hendersonville extends Editor Wilson a cordial invitation to run over and acquaint himself with the finest and most rapidly growing town in Western North Carolina.
