We trust that the reported sale of the Jackson County fair property at Sylva to summer school promoters does not mean that Jackson will not have a fair next year. This would be a sad blow to Jackson farmers.

COAXING HEN TO TWO EGGS

Uncle Sam's Experts Trying to Find Way to Meet Demand.
Judging from statistics collected by the Department of Agriculture and the market price of eggs in big cities now, there is going to be a golden opportunity for North Carolina egg sellers this Winter if their hens do not go back on them.

The Tar heel State now ranks well with the best poultry producing States. Within the last 10 years much has been done to improve poultry in North Carolina. The only trouble now is the lack of quantity, as the demand for eggs and chickens is greater than ever before.

Two things Uncle Sam's experts are hunting for:
(1) A hen that lays every day in the year; (2) a container to ship eggs in by parcel post.

These finds made, the cost of living can be reduced.
The decision of animal husbandry of the Bureau of Animal Industry says, "Cut out the middle man and bring the producer and the consumer together through the parcel post." But Dr. A. D. Melvin, chief of that bureau, says that is easier said than done. How to get the egg from the farmer, or the poultryman, to the consumer without the employment of the middleman is the problem.

The softness of the egg shell is the great obstacle in the way. No container that exactly fills the bill has been found. If the container is secure it weighs too much; if light enough: it is not secure, and not only is there a loss of eggs but of other things in the mail bag when the egg basket gives way.

A hen that lays every day in the year would be worth her weight in gold. Eggs sold for 5 cents a piece in Washington and 6-1-4 in New York this week.

There were laid in the United States last year 1,700,000,000 dozen eggs, worth $350,000,000.

The price of eggs has gradually increased for 20 years. In 1900 New York paid for the average best fresh eggs: Low 12 cents; high, 29 cents.

In 1912 the figures were: Low, 20 1-2; high, 60.

At the same time New York has been consuming more eggs each succeeding year.

In 1900 2,799,737 cases of eggs were received by New York; last year the number increased to 4,723,558.

In 1891 Boston, Chicago, Cincinnati, Milwaukee, New York, St. Louis, San Francisco, received 5,040,888 cases of eggs, last year 13,696,401.

"The quickest way to arouse a desire in the producer to raise better chickens and supply better eggs is to show him that good quality poultry and eggs are worth more than those of poor quality," said H. C. Pierce, of the food research laboratory, of the Bureau of Chemistry.

In the Southern States this has been done. At one time the North Carolina egg was considered the poorest on the market. The meat was lean. When the producers found that fat eggs weighed more than poor ones they began to take better care of their hens and got better eggs. Soon the North Carolina eggs ranked with the Tennessee and Kentucky eggs.

Mr. Pierce says that $45,000,000 worth of eggs are lost annually in this country between the producer and the consumer.

"In marketing eggs there is an enormous loss," said Mr. Pierce. "Much of this is preventable. While this loss falls upon all who handle eggs it is borne chiefly by the producer and the consumer. The producers' loss, caused by a decrease in price, under present conditions represents that due to spoilage or poor quality. The consumers' loss is due to a curtailed supply because of the dozens of eggs that are either of poor quality or a total loss. Hence the consumer has to pay higher prices for that which finally reaches him."

"While these losses are increased at all stages of handling by the producer, the country storekeeper, the producer dealer, the railroad, the commission man, and jobber, and the retailer, the greatest preventable loss occurs before the producer dealer obtains the goods, that is, while the eggs are still on the farm or in the hands of the small country storekeeper, who takes eggs in exchange for supplies."

CRAPS VS. RELIGION.

We would suggest to the editor of Sylvan Valley News at Brevard that there are many things of much more importance to the people of Transylvania county than the teachings of either Pastor Russell or the Catholic church.—Waynesville Courier.
Quite true. "Craps," for instance.—Sylvan Valley News.

Henderson county farmers could not spend two hours more profitably than by listening to the timely lectures of Farm Demonstrator Perkins in his tours over the county.

JUDGES FERGUSON AND BOYD CLASH IN THEIR JURISDICTION.

Judge Ferguson Ignores Orders of Judge Boyd in Cherokee Tanning Company Case.

Judge Ferguson of the Superior court of Cherokee county, has refused to recognize the orders recently issued by Judge James E. Boyd, of the United States district court, appointing a permanent receiver for the Cherokee Tanning Extract company and ordering that the temporary and permanent receivers appointed by the superior court, the Bank of Andrews and all other parties having funds of the bankrupt company, to turn all money and property of the company over to the receiver of the United States court.

Judge Ferguson admits that the courts are of different jurisdiction, but maintains that they are equal dignity, and on this ground he refused to allow the orders of the district court to be carried into effect. He has been followed in this stand by A. F. Fain permanent receiver for the Superior court, and the Bank of Andrews.

A report to this effect dated November 18 has been submitted to Judge James E. Boyd by Vonno L. Gudger, the payment received named by him, and Judge Boyd has signed an order citing Mr. Fain and the Bank of Andrews to appear before him in chambers on the morning of November 26 and show cause, if any, why the orders of the court shall not be put into effect. In the meantime they are restrained and enjoined from disposing of any of the property of the company or of the fund of $11,274.29 held in the Bank of Andrews. The present situation has grown out of the cause entitled Kanawa Valley Bank, et al. vs. Cherokee Tanning Extract Company. The respondent company was adjudged bankrupt by Judge Boyd several days ago and Receiver Gudger appointed prior to this time. In May J. K. Barker had been named by the Cherokee Superior court as temporary receiver of the company and after the order of the company district court was issued declaring the company bankrupt.

FAMOUS TROWEL SECURED FOR WORK BY INDIANS.
Used in Laying Corner Stone of Whittier Collegiate and Industrial

For some months now the town of Whittier, in Swain county, has had a large sized problem in the shape of an embryonic industrial school planned on generous lines, but rather limp on account of the departure to parts unknown of the guiding genius, James Lattimore Himrod, says the Waynesville, Courier. The Whittier Collegiate and Industrial Institute promised to become one of the leading institutions of the country, according to its promoter, but following the arrest and conviction on charges of fraud of Himrod in Asheville interest in the school waned. There remained as ever present reminder, however, the corner stone of the institution which was laid with imposing ceremonies on the 4th of July, a day most appropriate for such an event.

The folks round about Whittier in the course of the past few months have become somewhat "toughy" on the subject of this school and they have been content to let the matter drop right where it was. A corner stone was all right as a monument to a monumental fraud, and they were letting it go at that.
Last week, however, Superintendent James Henderson of the Cherokee Indian School at Yellow Hill decided that something of good might come of the proposition after all. So while in Bryson City he procured the famous trowel with which Rt. Rev. Junius M. Horner, Bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Western North Carolina, laid the cement in the corner stone. This trowel he has taken back with him to Yellow Hill, and it will go into service in the hands of some energetic Indian buck for the purpose of laying cement sidewalks around the agency buildings and for other utilitarian purposes.

SOUTH NEEDS NEW PARTY.

A. J. Beveridge Makes Call for Southern Progressive Party.

Arguing that the South's stilted adherence to one political party kept her from her rightful place in the nation's activities, former United States Senator Albert J. Beveridge sounded the keynote in New Orleans last week at the first progressive rally in the South since the last presidential election. He said:

"The call of patriotism of today is for a new party which will enable the South to have two parties and, thus, to come into its own. The progressive party is here to answer that call."

Mr. Beveridge said until the Progressive party was formed Southerners could hardly be blamed for voting the Democratic ticket as to do otherwise would be disregarding their self-respect. But because of such conditions, he said, "the South itself is in the hands of professional politicians who run political machines that really rule the Southern people."

"If Southern men hesitate for fear the Progressive party will unite with the Republicans the action of the Progressive, National committee only last week to begin right now for next year's battle pledges you our honor that there will be no merger, no compromise, no amalgamation of any kind with any other party whatever."

DAUGHTERS ELECT OFFICERS.

North Carolinians Come in for Honors at Annual Election.

In sessions enlivened by acrimonious debate and charges that "gag rules" was being invoked, the Daughters of the Confederacy in session at New Orleans elected officers and hurried through much routine work in time to adjourn tonight. Mrs. Daisy McLaurin Stevens, of Brandon, Miss., was elected president-general by a unanimous vote after Mrs. Nathan D. Ella, of Virginia, had withdrawn. Charges that a caucus pledge of the Louisiana delegation had been broken during the reelection of Mrs. E. C. Schanabel, of Louisiana, as recording secretary-general, brought confusion in the convention. After it had been voted to have the secretary cast the entire convention vote for Mrs. Schanabel, a member of the Louisiana delegation said the delegation was not aware what was going on and that the delegation had 22 votes against Mrs. Schanabel. When the election was declared closed and no explanation allowed the "gag rule" charge was made. Finally, however, one of the delegates was allowed to make a statement of her side of the case. Other officers elected were: Honorary president-general, Mrs. Cornelia Branch Stone, Texas; first vice-president, Mrs. B. B. Ross, of Alabama; second vice-president, Mrs. W. T. Culbertson, of Oklahoma; third vice-president, Mrs. I. W. Faison, of North Carolina; recording secretary-general, Mrs. Fannie R. Williams, of North Carolina; treasurer-general, Mrs. C. B. Tate, of Virginia; register-general, Mrs. Orlando Halliburton, of Arkansas; historian-general, Mrs. Mildred Rutherford, of Georgia; custodian of the crosses, Mrs. John W. Tench, of Florida; custodian of flags and pennants, Mrs. Frank A. Walker, of Virginia.
