IDEAS OF A GOOD TIME.
What is your idea of a good time? Ideas on this subject seem to vary. One man's meat is another man's poison.
Now, you take an old wheel horse of a married man who has never missed a day from work in ten years and who has never failed to march up to friend wife and fork over his pay envelope and stay home every night, what is his idea of a good time?
Let me whisper. The very ears have walls.
His idea of a good time is: Way down in the depths of his innermost thoughts he is wishing a little quiet wish all to himself. It is simply a desire to fling aside the garment of conventionality and be a regular devil just for once.
He would like to hire a big touring car and burn large jagged holes in the circumambient atmosphere on a joy ride that would make Barney Oldfield look like a snail.
If there were a few painted women sitting on the hind seat singing foolish evatangwayish songs, why, he wouldn't opt to stop 'em.
He would rear up on his hind legs and whoop and holler himself and yell: "On with the dance—let joy be unrefined."
Then he would up and get as drunk as a billed owl and have to be carried home and put to bed, but he would turn over and sob himself to sleep and be happy, perfectly happy.
He says to himself he might die the next day but he would have lived for one night.
What is the pessimist's idea of a good time? Why, he would like to be a wet blanket and wrap himself around the whole world. That would tickle him nearly to death.
You young, innocent and modest little convent maid would like to be a dashing, heart-breaking widow or a serious woman with a past. That's her idea of a good time.
Every hard working old newspaper man wants to settle down somewhere to a quiet, peaceful life where he can have a little farm and potter around in his bare feet and smoke an old pipe of the vintage of '76.
A woman's idea of a good time is to have oodles and oodles and oodles of money and thousands and thousands of miles of department store aisles to wander through and no limit on her buying.
A small boy's idea of a good time is the whole world converted into a big circus and the ringmaster snapping a whip and making everything hop to his bidding, and when he tired of that to be the biggest baseball pitcher in the world.
A dog's idea is to have all the cats in the world up one tree and they doesn't come down.
My idea would be to go to work at 11 a. m., quit and noon and have an hour for lunch.—Florida Times-Union.

K. OF P. MEETING.
The installation of officers by the Knights of Pythias is scheduled for next Monday night, when all officers and members are requested to be present. The rank of Knight will be conferred.
Visitors in the city are invited to attend.

The Hendersonville Niagara.
W. A. Smith, proprietor of the park, has discovered among the many other interesting features of the popular play ground a young Niagara. To the rear of the soda fountain was placed a mirror several feet square and slightly tilted so as to give those standing in front of it a reflected view of the lake in the mirror. The size of the glass affords a view from nearly across the lake and by reason of the inclined position of the mirror, when the gasoline boat glides over the water, leaving a foaming trail behind, those in the boat glancing into the mirror will see a fair representation of a boat dashing at lightning speed up or down what appears to be a fairly steep waterfall.

ROAD WORK PROBABLY DELAYED IN GREENVILLE COUNTY, S. C.
The road question in Greenville county, S. C., where the authorities elected Preston F. Patton road supervisor, is now in the courts and it is not known when Mr. Patton will take hold actively.
The authorities were authorized to issue $950,000 in road bonds and they proceeded to issue $400,000. Road opponents protested and asked for an injunction from the court, the request being denied Monday. Notice of appeal was given to the supreme court, which, if the appeal is perfected, will mean that the road work will be held up for some time, at least until the legality of the bond issue is tested.
Mr. Patton has been giving some attention to the road situation in Greenville county, but has not moved there permanently and likely will not until the matter is definitely settled.

TWO GULF STREAMS.
The One of Air is What Creates the Deserts of the East.
The gulf stream, as every one knows, is a broad river of warm water which starts in the gulf of Mexico, wanders across the cold Atlantic ocean and bumps into the British Isles, giving them a warm climate and no end of fog and rain. But few people know that in the atmosphere above there is a second gulf stream of warm, moist air.
This slow, damp breeze strikes the British Isles and does not carry off like the gulf stream, but continues over Europe. As it passes over Sweden, Finland and northern Russia these cold lands chill the wind and cause it to drop its moisture in the form of rain. The lakes and rivers of these northern countries are all supplied by the moisture taken up from the gulf stream.
The rotation of the earth makes this wind veer gradually to the southward about the time it has given up the last of its moisture and warmth. As a mighty draft of dry, cold air, the gulf stream wind moves on across the plains of Russia. As it approaches the equator the wind warms again, but becomes ever drier.
At last, as it sweeps over Turkestan, Arabia and Sahara, it evaporates like a great sheet of blotting paper all water it meets, forming the deserts of Turkestan, Sahara and Arabia. Fortunately this devastating wind now leaves the continent, becomes the trade winds and returns to its starting point at the gulf of Mexico.
Several somewhat visionary schemes have been suggested for altering the course of the gulf stream. One of the immediate results of any such change would be the shifting of the present deserts to other parts of the world.—New York American.

MOLECULAR ATTRACTION.
That is What Permits a Needle to Float Upon Water.
A steel needle laid carefully on a still water surface will float, although the weight of steel or iron is greater than that of an equal volume of water.
Molecules of liquids cohere, but with a force far less than in solids or viscous substances. But the thin needle of metal gently placed horizontally on water has not quite weight enough to break the surface tension—that is, molecular attraction—of the water below it.
Attraction of molecules is a force that exerts great influence in nature. Thus this force draws particles of water in fogs into drops of water which are heavy enough to fall as rain. Dew is a formation of minute particles of water into drops at rest on surfaces.
The molecular attraction of the heavy liquid—mercury—is intense, else this heavy liquid could not be drawn by it into spheres or drops. Melted lead forms into minute globes when let fall in high shot towers.
There is a great difference in the intensity of molecular attraction, as may be observed in alcohol, gasoline, sulphuric ether and similar limpid liquids and oil, sirup, glycerin and other viscous liquids.
Soap bubbles could not be blown in alcohol or benzine, but they form readily in water. And the molecules in the thin films really attract with some force, else the bubbles would burst before they become so large. The most elaborate mathematics are required to handle molecular forces, fit only for technical journals.—New York American.

Working the Morse Code.
Easefulness of the telegraph code has sometimes facilitated evil practices. Charles Galbraith, formerly chief superintendent of telegraphs at Bombay, described one notable case. Messages used to be brought by mail steamer from Suez to Point de Galle and telegraphed thence overland to Bombay. Native operators found it profitable, especially during the cotton famine, to communicate the tenor of dispatches to outside confederates. At first the method employed was to write a copy of the telegram, roll it up tightly and drop it out of the window. But this was soon detected and stopped. Then the operator would lean his head on his hand as if musing and drum with his fingers. Knowledge of the Morse code by the man outside did the rest.

An Inch of Rain.
An inch of rainfall is equivalent to 600 barrels of forty-five gallons each to the acre. This amount of water weighs over 113 tons. Think of hauling it to the farms in wagons holding a ton each! That seemingly light air and clouds are capable of handling this enormous amount of water is one of the marvels of meteorology. One inch of rain is not such a heavy rainfall, either.—Farm and Fireside.

MR. LESTER BUYS HOUSE OF HER OLD CAKE RECIPE.
It Has Never Failed, It is Claimed, to Give Satisfaction.
Sarah Knowlton is a woman who has made cakes all her life and always has used the same recipe, wedding cakes, special cakes, holiday cakes, party cakes and everyday cakes, simply because the cake which she made for her own wedding in 1862 was so delicious that all the guests wanted one like it, and this desire has been passed on to their children and friends. She keeps many cakes on hand, so that her customers may have their cake a day, a week or a month old, as they like. Each cake weighs about one lb., a half pounds and is labeled with the date of its baking. They are kept in stone jars wrapped in waxed paper. Here is the recipe:
One cupful each of sugar, butter and molasses; one cupful homemade jelly or strawberry preserves, one cupful buttermilk, half a cupful strong coffee, two eggs, one grated nutmeg, two teaspoonfuls cinnamon, one teaspoonful cloves, two teaspoonfuls saleratus (dissolved in half a cupful boiling water), two pounds raisins, one pound cleaned currants, one pound chopped candied fruit (lemon, orange, citron), six cupfuls flour measured before sifting.
Mix the fruit thoroughly in the flour. Cream butter and sugar, add the eggs, milk and coffee, then the flour containing the fruit. Beat thoroughly and add the spices.
Turn into well buttered pans and bake at least one hour in a slow oven.—New York Post.

Japan's Troublesome Volcano.
Sakurajima is one of the volcanoes created, according to the old Japanese calendar, in a single night. A specific date—718 A. D.—has even been assigned for the event, but it is quite evident from its appearance that the cone is really a very ancient one. Sakurajima's form is rugged and weather beaten. Time has furrowed its sides, and the forces of denudation have perceptibly increased the steepness of the upper part of the cone by the removal of all the light ejected materials. This circumstance has given rise to the legend that the northern peak of the island—separated from the rest of the summit ridge by a slight depression—is inaccessible. As a matter of fact, it presents no serious difficulty.—London Graphic.
