"reasonable preparation." He said that the American navy should be equal to that of Germany. Not the size of England's he said, because of Great Britain's "habit of arbitration for a hundred years and because it has no standing army." He said American coast defenses were as good as any in the world, but that the navy needed a thirty per cent increase, including 18,000 men and 900 officers. The national guard should be increased to 125,000 men and the standing army to 75,000, with a volunteer reserve of 300,000 men.

Speaking of the administration's defense plans, he said: "The board of inventors is as impractical as a board of opera singers." A board of naval experts was needed.

RAISE THINGS.

There should be something more than money in raising things. Money is an essential in every enterprise of civilization but no business should be carried on for money alone. Some businesses are so conducted but they are not the glory of any community or the strength of any commonwealth. Along with money-making should go the satisfaction of producing something useful to mankind, the sense of having rendered a service to the public, the knowledge that something worthy has been achieved, some wealth created, some men helped to earn homes for their families. More money-making is a barren thing compared with money-making in some useful work or business. A gambler or a swindler may make money but he loses something better and can't feel so good over it as does the man who digs it out of the ground. Farmers have the satisfaction of knowing, when they raise things, that they have performed a service to humanity, added something to the country's wealth, honestly earned what they got. If they are men of understanding they know that they have raised more than bushels or dollars.—National Stockman and Farmer.

WILL WATCH LOBBYISTS.

Washington, Nov. 11.—Careful watch will be kept on lobbyists during the coming session of congress, according to Senator Overman, chairman of the senate's special lobby committee. "The committee is still alive," said Mr. Overman today, "and will be kept alive for the purpose of inquiring into any insidious lobbying that may be attempted during the next congress as a result of problems growing out of the European war."

He mentioned proposals to prohibit sales of war munitions to belligerents and the national defense program as issues likely to draw all kinds of outside pressure upon members of congress.

EARNING A LIVING.

Every man owes himself a living—a clean, honest, upright living that shall be a credit to him and a help to others. It is useless to sit down and whine about what the world owes him. Whining never did any good, and besides it demeans a man. Whoever goes manfully out and makes good the debt that he owes to himself and to his fellow men will never have cause to complain that he finds the world a defaulter.

The North Carolina School for the Blind celebrated its 70th anniversary Thursday with just one person present who attended the opening exercises in April of 1845. She was Mrs. Annie Perry, mother of the boys' matron and the one person in Raleigh who has seen the school run without break since its opening.

INTERNATIONAL HARVESTER MACHINES

We Take on the Low Corn King Spreader

JUST to prove that we are always on the lookout for the best interests of our customers, we have made a contract for the Low Corn King, the best manure spreader we ever saw. There are two great features about this spreader, the value of which every farmer around here will recognize at sight.
The first of these features is this—The Low Corn King spreads a strip ten feet wide, cutting squarely in two the time required to spread a load of manure and doing the best job of breaking up and spreading that we ever saw.
Think of it—a ten-foot wide spread from a 45-inch box. In our next ad we'll remind you of a few of the advantages of this. Drop in and see the sample we have set up and get a catalogue that tells all about it.
