THE WOOING OF THE WOMEN.

(By Lila Hupley Barnwell, of Hendersonville, N. C.)

The election is over, and in explanation of the result we hear on all sides, "The women did it." Marvellous attention was paid to the women by campaign managers on both sides, special literature for women was sent out by Republicans and Democrats alike giving most urgent reasons why they should support Mr. Hughes or Mr. Wilson.

Women were entreated and persuaded, promised and flattered, they were petitioned to speak, they were heard respectfully, and their influence was eagerly solicited. For many years we eastern suffrage workers have heard the unflinching complimentary talk about our indirect influence.

What did the men consider it worth in the recent election? In the states where women have the vote Democrats and Republicans both sent some of their strongest and best speakers, money was freely used, attentions of every description were literally showered upon the women, not omitting the time-honored persuasions of candy, flowers and drives!

How many speakers were sent to urge women for their direct influence? How much campaign money, or attentions of any sort were given to women in the states where they have no ball lot?

If indirect influence is really so powerful why did campaign managers so studiously avoid any effort to obtain it? In effect, eastern women were told: "We have neither time nor attention to waste upon you. We want votes, you have none to give us, so we concentrate our efforts upon the women with the ballot."

More endeavor was made to win the women in the enfranchised states than in all the rest of the country. Power commands respect. Surely the women of the eastern states have learned much by the campaign of 1916.

Not only so, but men, too, have increased their wisdom, many of them having come out boldly in favor of equal suffrage because they have seen that women are neither demoralized nor unsexed by exercising the rights accorded them in the equal suffrage states.

Judge Thomas Scully, of Chicago, says: "Within the last three years a different atmosphere has pervaded our polling places and our political gatherings. Politics has become a part of the home life; issues are discussed in the family, intelligent voting has increased, our elections have become more an expression of real democracy, and less a manifestation of strength between petty factions and rival organizations. As judges and clerks the women are efficient and adept. We have fewer mistakes in precincts where women are on the job than where men alone do the work. The women are conscientious and insist that everything at the polling places shall be done properly."

Dennis J. Egan, chief clerk of the Chicago election board, says: "Do you remember how it used to be a few years ago at ward meetings? All the boys smoking black cheroots; the air blue with smoke and sulphurous with profanity, and then the audience would adjourn to Mike's place with candidates, and proceed to get half shot, if they weren't so already. Well, a change has come over the spirit of our dreams. The rough stuff has been cut out. Why? Because the women are in politics. Believe me it's tided politics up. At the polling places we know from cold, plain facts, that the entrance of women as judges and clerks has increased the efficiency of our election machinery in a phenomenal way."

In a recent address from Dr. Charles Dabney he declares that the desire of a woman to take part in civic life is not a desire to escape from the home, but a desire to defend the home; to advance the interests of the home, including the larger home, the city and state. In such a complicated civilization as ours public questions of all kinds are forced into the home, not only economic and political questions, but those of health, sanitation, education and morals, and concerning all of these woman will be most helpful, because she is profoundly interested in everything that touches the lives of the family. Dr. Dabney goes on to say that the opportunity to participate in public affairs will tremendously stimulate the interest of women in all higher education, and we ought to be preparing institutions for them. For this the new woman's college will be vocational as well as cultural, it will train women to work as well as think, giving them the same opportunities as are given to men. The census shows that women already work in all but three of the three hundred occupations listed. Most of these occupations require the same training that men receive. The woman physician, pharmacist, chemist, architect, sanitary engineer and teacher require practically the same training as men. Eighty per cent. of all teachers in the land are women. Nearly all of the trained nursing, and most of the social service institutional management are in the hands of women. Are not these sufficient reasons for giving her opportunity for getting the best training for her work?

If we suffraists stand together to make "a long pull, a strong pull, and all pull together," it will not be so long as some may suppose, for the goal is almost in sight. All political parties are watching us, all are bidding for our favor, and none dare slight us. We are organized for a purpose which, while occasionally delayed, can never be defeated. Some years ago a friend of mine was traveling in a buggy over a country road. The driver a young colored man of exuberant spirits, tapped with his whip the bushes alongside, the stones or whatever his arm could

FLAT ROCK SCHOOL MATTER HAS PASSED STATE SENATE.

Senator Justice Explains His Position in Reference to the Fight on Trustees by Patrons.

What seems to be a lively issue in the Flat Rock school district has come to a head when a bill was passed by the Senate asking for the appointment of the trustees by the county board of education as in other special tax districts of the county. Senator Justice has written the editor of the Hustler his position in the matter in which he states he feels justifiable in doing what he has. Editor of the Hustler: A bill passed the senate last week relative to the Flat Rock school, under which it ratified by the house, the school trustees will hereafter be appointed by the County Board of Education as in other special tax districts. This is the only change contemplated by the passage of the bill and was introduced by me on petition of more than sixty patrons of the district. In fact, I was informed that practically every patron in the district had signed the petition except members of the families of the present board. The men who constitute this present board at Flat Rock are all high minded, patriotic citizens who have the welfare of the community at heart, but the majority have spoken and in so far as I may have anything to do with the matter the majority will rule not only because of the principal involved but for the sake of a united community spirit to which the children of the district have the right for their own welfare.

Yours very truly, JAMES FOY JUSTICE.

EDITOR WILSON APPOINTED CON. WEAVER'S SECRETARY. Wayneville Man Rewarded for Services in Recent Campaign. It is Said.

Rumors out of Asheville and verified by the last issue of the Wayneville Courier which shows a change in the editorship indicate that Ronald B. Wilson, a newspaper man of wide experience will become the private secretary of Congressman Zebulon Weaver. Mr. Wilson has at various times been editor of the Sylvan Valley News of Brevard, telegraph editor of the Asheville Citizen, editor of a newspaper in Black Mountain and for the past few years owner and editor of the Wayneville Courier. He is still owner of the Courier.

ICE CREAM FAMINE IS LIKELY TO MATERIALIZE Consumption Last Year Almost Two Gallons Per Capita; But Materials Now Are Too High. The people of the United States spent $291,648,000 for ice cream in 1916, according to the editor of the International Confectioner. Figuring the population of the United States at 100,000,000, the per capita expenditure for the national delicacy was almost $3 in the 12 months. The total quantity of ice cream consumed was 208,320,000 gallons or a little more than two gallons for each man, woman and child. Two-thirds of all the ice cream eaten in this country is eaten in the territory east of Illinois and north of the Mason and Dixon line, according to the editor. The International Confectioner quotes figures to show that although a gain of 16 per cent was shown in the consumption of ice cream in 1916, the year was a bad one for manufacturers and retailers, because of the high price of raw materials. The publication sounds a warning that ice cream probably will be scarce this year, as "it will be only by good luck that the manufacturer can get necessary supplies and when he gets them he will find them 50 per cent higher than they were in 1915."

THE "GAD FLIES OF LIFE." The man who can see no good in his fellow-man ought to fall off this earth and go to his place. There is no guess work about where he ought to be and where he will go when he leaves here. The milk of human kindness has soured in him, his better nature has become perverted, his yes inverted and his whole moral being turned awry. He has lost confidence in men, has no real respect for women, looks on God as a tyrant and death as an escape from thralldom. He is too cowardly to destroy himself, too abject to be honorable, too small intellectually to bother about the weightier problems of life, too contemptible to be noticed and too apt to live out all his days. Such men may be classed the "gad flies of life," calculated to annoy their betters, foment strife, run discord and bring misery on mankind. —Marshall News-Record.

Lime and Sulphur Solution

The safest and most reliable preparation for spraying all kinds of fruit trees in the dormant season

There are many substitutes put out under fancy names for which exaggerated claims are made. The basis of most of these is "soluble oil." While these are very effective for a few applications, they are injurious to the trees and if used repeatedly will kill them.

Lime sulphur solution is the only safe remedy for San Jose scale. Spray in February and March before the buds swell.
