A TALK TO THE VETERANS
BY MRS. J. STEVEN BROWN.

(Published by Request.)
After another year spent in the peaceful routine of our daily lives, we have met again today to celebrate the one hundred and eighth anniversary of Jefferson Davis, the only president of the Confederate States ever had. In the North the name of Jefferson Davis has been held up to ridicule and scorn as a traitor to his country and a fiend in his personal character, while in the South there has been too great tendency to criticize him because he failed to win success against the combined hosts of the world. But the quiet dignity with which he endured defeat and the indignities heaped upon him while in prison seemed to bring shame to his enemies and it certainly bound the hearts of his own people more closely to him as he suffered for them. His record as a citizen, a soldier and a senator is without a stain. In his daily life he was a regular and constant reader of the Holy Scriptures and an open confessor of the Christian religion; he was a loyal patriot and risked his life in defense of his country; and as a war secretary he was one of the greatest of the country has ever had. The youth of our land should be taught that Jefferson Davis was one of the greatest men of his day. When he was a prisoner in Fortress Monroe, Dr. Craven was appointed to give him medical aid. He entered upon his duties with bitter prejudice against him but as he saw more and more of his distinguished patient he became impressed with the remarkable quality of his mental powers, with the simplicity of his character, and with the purity of his daily Christian life. Because of the friendly interest manifested by Dr. Craven in his patient he was removed from his position as medical attendant. He afterwards wrote a remarkable book entitled, "The Prison Life of Jefferson Davis" in which the mental acquisitions of Mr. Davis as compared to Thomas Jefferson, Wm. W. Gladstone and Lord Salisbury. It can be truthfully said that Jefferson Davis was a loyal defender of the Confederate cause and a true Southern gentleman. What more honorable title could be bestowed upon any true Southerner? Billy Sunday while in his Boston campaign some months ago, paid a tribute to the South in his own unique way which is too good not to be repeated. He said: "Sixty-eight per cent of the men of the South are in the Church. Why? You may not like it but the bravest, the truest and the finest men and women in America are found South of the Mason and Dixon line. That is why it took thirty million people to lick eight million. There are more pure-blooded Americans south of the Mason and Dixon line than anywhere, in the country and that is why so many of those men are Christians. I say this even though my old daddy was one of the boys in blue and fought against them. They were hard to lick down there because they are real Americans. So I say, south of the Mason and Dixon line they have got the North licked to a frazzle in religion and in morals." It is pleasant to have such tributes paid to our Southland but those of you who are native North Carolinians should sing a little louder song of praise because you are born, "Tar Heels." The records of North Carolina are written high on the banner of fame. It is said of North Carolina that she was "first in battle and last at Appomattox,"—"first in battle" when Henry L. Wyatt was the first man killed in the war between the States; last at Appomattox" when the brigade of Gen. W. R. Cox of Grimes' division fired the last volley at Appomattox on April 9, 1865. At Chancellorsville where Jackson fell, North Carolina furnished 24 of the 120 regiments on the Confederate side but her loss was more than one third of the Confederates killed and more than one fourth of the wounded. At Gettysburg, in that world famous charge, J. M. Brooks and Daniel Thomas of the 26th North Carolina regiment planted the Confederate colors on the enemy's works. The heaviest loss in any regiment of that terrible battle was in the 26th North Carolina regiment which lost 90 per cent of its men. North Carolina furnished a number of men as commanders of ships in the Confederate navy. I mention but one—James Iredell Waddell of the Shenandoah which carried the Confederate flag entirely around the world and did not surrender till November 6, 1865. Gen. A. P. Hill said he preferred to command North Carolinians "not that they are braver where all are brave, but have as the bravest they are more obedient to command." North Carolina furnished the great war governor Zebulon B. Vance. Orrin Randolph Smith of Louisiana, was the designer of the Confederate flag. The last meeting of the full Confederate cabinet was held in Charlotte on April 6, 1865.
One could spend hours telling the possessions of North Carolina of her ambitions and her achievements but your time shall not be taken in this way today. But right here I want to tell you how glad the Daughters of the Confederacy are to greet each one of you today. We feel honored that you leave your homes and your business and give us this day's pleasure in meeting with us here. On these annual occasions it always saddens our hearts that there are some familiar faces absent and some voices do not answer when the roll is called. Irwin S. Cobb, the celebrated war correspondent and lecturer, himself the son of a veteran told the story of a man who at the close of the war, went back to his home in a little country village and began the practice of medicine. His means would not permit his furnishing a nice office, so he fixed up a musty little corner on the second floor of a very dilapidated old building and tacked a board on the hitching post reading "Dr. Jones upstairs." The poor and the needy loved him for they soon learned that behind the garbled hands that had fought faithfully for the four years of war there was a billy and beneath the tumbled hair there was a skilled brain. But one day his familiar figure was missed by his comrades. They searched for him and upon going to his office, they found that the busy hands were quiet and the tired head was at rest upon the pillow. Those who loved

THE GREAT HENDERSONVILLE-CHARLOTTE HIGHWAY

North Carolina's Leading Motor Road to the Mountains of Western North Carolina.

(Contributed.)

The great storm of July 16, 1916, damaging as it did all sections of Western North Carolina, reeked its especial vengeance on Hickory Nut Gap. The damage amounted to tens of thousands of dollars in that vicinity alone;—damage to roads, bridges, houses, loss of crops, even to loss of human lives! Henderson county was the first to open up her highway to Bat Cave and to construct a substantial bridge across Broad river. This highway has therefore been in excellent travel condition for many months.

Rutherford county has now completed its work to the Henderson line (3-4 mile below Bat Cave) and cars can easily make the trip.

The road not only not yet completed, but not yet begun is what is known as the "Hickory Nut Gap Highway," that splendid road through Hickory Nut Gap, 8 miles being in the direction of Asheville, built by the State convicts at great expense, the road that was close to the heart of our recent governor, Locke Craig, that it has appropriately been called by some the "Craig Highway." Efforts are yet being made to get this great thoroughfare rebuilt, but the outlook is not encouraging. What the future may hold remains to be seen.

Hendersonville The Gateway City. Owing to the damaged condition of the Hickory Nut Gap highway, it settles at once the statewide, far-reaching importance of the Charlotte-Hendersonville Highway. Hendersonville thus becomes literally the gateway city to the Southern Appalachian mountains for all west bound motor travel from all North Carolina points. It is the only auto road from Charlotte to the mountains and citizens here should spread very wide the change that has been wrought by the great storm for the route is now in truth the Charlotte-Hendersonville highway.

A Courageous People.
Notwithstanding the unprecedented devastation of Hickory Nut Gap, the people of that section have shown the greatest possible courage. Mountain View Inn, a hotel of some 125 capacity has been completed at an expense of $15,000. Esmeralda Inn has since the flood, burned to the ground, and a much finer three-story structure is now nearing completion. In both of these hotels every room has bath connections. The Chimney Rock company which suffered great damage in the loss of bridges and roads has put everything in perfect repair and their new concrete pier doubletrack bridge is a model in bridge architecture.

Road Repairing Necessary.
There is only one short stretch of road that is yet in bad condition, viz: that lying just below Bat Cave. There are several places that are very narrow and in bad shape, and if not repaired will keep hundreds of people from reaching our city. A very few days work with the chain gang would rectify this, the only bad place in the Hendersonville-Charlotte highway. Can this not be accomplished, and it so at once?

There is evidence that Copenhagen Market cabbage will become the leading early variety grown in the United States. The fact that the heads seldom burst is a strong point in its favor.

him were not wealthy but they buried him with honor. Then began the search for funds with which to put a monument at his grave. No funds were found among them, however. Then one of them had an inspiration. It was to get the old hitching post from his front door and put it at his grave. This was done and there until winds and rains and sun had faded the lettering, stood the monument reading "Dr. Jones, upstairs." And that is how I like to think of all the Confederate soldiers who have gone on before—they are all upstairs.

IT TAKES TIME.

If anybody is disposed to think that the government is slow in legislating and making war preparations, it will do him good to remember that this country has to do what other nations have taken years and decades to do. It is impossible to properly appreciate the endless number of details and the magnitude of the job before the authorities. The building up of big armies, the gathering of war material and supplies, the construction of thousands of ships of various kinds, the raising of the biggest tax budget by far the world has ever seen, the complex and perplexing foreign relations, the work in connection with the spy system, there and various other things are all to be considered at the same time and much of the work is without precedent or experience or consequence to go by. The administration is up to its ears in work and is going as rapidly as circumstances permit. Among the most pressing need, for making is relative to food speculators. They need attention as quickly as the government can get to them. —Er.

Forethought.
People are learning that a little forethought often saves them a big expense. Here is an instance: E. W. Archer, Caldwell, Ohio, writes: "I do not believe that our family has been without Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy since we commenced keeping house years ago. When we go on an extended visit we take it with us." Obtainable everywhere.

Boston Woman Recommending it to Her Friends

Popular Boston Lady Says Tonline Has Proven as Godsend to Her.

It is always interesting to listen to the statements of our friends, and especially when you know they are sincere and honest in what they say. Added interest is created in a statement coming from one who has spent a lifetime in Boston, where she is well known socially.

Such a person is Annie Stewart, who resides in Boston, and is possessed of the respect and confidence of her associates, and is willing for anyone to call on her to verify the following signed testimonial.

"I have suffered with stomach trouble for the past seven years. It took the form of indigestion and dyspepsia. I had dizzy spells and headaches, and after I ate a little food it would ferment and cause gas to form in my stomach. I had pains all over my body, and was chronically constipated. My liver was torpid and I felt generally miserable. I had doctored and had been in the hospital, but received no permanent relief. I was so nervous and restless that at night I could scarcely sleep. The gas pressing under my heart caused palpitation, and when I arose in the morning I was just as tired as when I retired. About two weeks ago I began to take Tonline, and I can truthfully state that it has done wonders in my case. I am feeling like a new woman and can eat any kind of food. I sleep the night through and have no more aches or pains; in fact it has cured me, and I am recommending it to all of my friends, as it has been a Godsend to me."

Hunter's Pharmacy sell and guarantee Tonline.

Would you mix your cattle-feed with cotton?

YOU know that such a combination would be carried through the digestive tract without giving the milk-producing and fat-producing food a chance to be assimilated. The lint on old style hulls acts the same way. It forms a pad or cushion-like covering around the concentrates that prevents the digestive juices from extracting the full amount of protein.

BUCKEYE HULLS

contain no lint to clog or flux the digestive tract. They are digested and they allow the other forage to be digested the same as hay or any other roughage. When you mix your feed with Buckeye Hulls you know that you are using roughage that will help—not hinder—the meal, corn, oats, or whatever concentrate you prefer.

Other Advantages
2000 pounds of real roughage to the ton—not 1500. Cost much less per ton. Go much farther. No trash or dust. Easy to handle because sacked. They mix well with other forage. They take less space in the barn.

Mr. C. K. Henderson, Aiken, S. C., says: that he would rather have Buckeye Hulls than any others. He uses Buckeye Hulls altogether—says they are cheaper and better.

To secure the best results and to develop the ensilage odor, wet the hulls thoroughly twelve hours before feeding. It is easy to do this by wetting them down night and morning for the next feeding. If at any time this cannot be done, wet down at least thirty minutes. If you prefer to feed the hulls dry, use only half as much by bulk as of old style hulls.

Book of Mixed Feeds Free
Gives the right formula for every combination of feeds used in the South. Tells how much to feed for maintenance, for milk, for fattening, for work. Describes Buckeye Hulls and gives directions for using them properly. Send for your copy to the nearest mill.
