Chase
The Ghost
From your car

Many a motoring party touring through the country, is haunted by an unseen passenger—FEAR—DREAD that a tire will blow out, like a blast—

And land the motor car at the road side, a helpless thing.

But if you have faith in the tires on your car, Contented Security is the invisible passenger riding with you

And if you have ridden on Goodrich Tires, you have faith in their big husky bodies, and thick BLACK SAFETY TREADS, extra wide, softening the sidewall against rut grinding.

You have faith in their dependability everywhere, and the durability which rounds out the Service Value of all Goodrich Tires.

"OLD TIMERS"

(By Patsy O'Brien)

"My heart's in the Highlands where-
ever I go.
Farewell to the Highlands, farewell to the North.
The birthplace of valour, the country of worth;
Wherever I wander, wherever I rove, The hills of the Highlands forever I love.
Farewell to the mountains high covered with snow;
Farewell to the straths and the green valleys below;
Farewell to the forests and wild-hanging woods;
Farewell to the torrents and loud-pouring floods.
ever I go.

—Robert Burns.
As the "fount of eternal youth" wooded Ponce de Leon to the new world, so the price and quantity of land has wooed many a Britisher to America. The possession of land is a consuming passion with "Old England's" sons. They think in hundreds of acres while the American laughs at his brother's eccentricities and is content with enough ground to bury him.
When we stop to think of it we are no longer astonished at finding so many Scotch names through these mountains, where but in the mountains would the "canny Scotchman" feel at home? It needs but very little scratching of the surface to bring forth many interesting tales of these im-igrants. Among the old settlers that have come and gone we find in the group of Scotch names MacLaughlin: as the first.

In 1845 Mr. MacLaughlin came from Cleveland, Ohio, down through the valleys of the Alleghany Mountains, over the Great Smokies, until on the southern slope with the Blue Ridge towering on all sides he came to a halt. It is said the great brawny Scotchman wept like a baby when he looked around and saw to the East and the West, the North and the South, the blue of the mountains merging into the blue of the sky. "Ah, he is reported to have said, "they are just like the braw hielands of bonnie Scotland.

He stayed and the place that is now owned by Mrs. Seigling was his home. Fashioned after the Scottish castles it resembled the homes of the feudal lords in the "old country." It is much changed and modernized now.
With Mr. McLaughlin came Mrs.
Baird a true Scotch woman. She lived for a time in the little house on Main street on the property of the Pine Grove Lodge, later came Mr.
Baird, who bought a place near where Osceola Inn stands today. Mrs.
Baird's last years were spent with a nephew Mr. John Waddel on the Willow road, she was well known and loved in this community and mourned by many when she died.

One Scotchman in a place will act as a magnet, and so we are not surprised to find that in 1858, another Scotchman, by the name of Connell, came to this valley straight from Stirling Scotland, which is at the head of the Firth of Forth not very far from Glasgow. Mr. Connell became the manager of Mr. Mineux beautiful place called Brooklands, and twelve years later brought out his fiancée and thus established himself here. A few years later he left Brooklands and went up the Davidson River but in 1889 he came back and bought the Singleton place known as Hillside where he lived until his feeble health necessitated a change of life, when he went to live with one of his sons. Mrs.
Connell is still living a delightful little Scotch lady who loves these mountains as she did the mountains of her childhood home.

The next few years rolled by without any more additions to the little colony, but in 1871 Mr. Finnily came out with his thirteen children and bought a thousand acres on the Willow road. On the place stands the ruins of the double log cabin where he lived, and before the door stand two Laburnum trees which he brought with him from Scotland. On the side of the mountain where a rushing stream tumbles headlong into the valley below stands an old mill; moss covers the roof and hangs in long ropes from the wheel. It is dark under the pines and the desolate place holds an air of mystery. Some of his children still live on parts of the big place, but the gruff hard-featured old Scotchman has long been gathered to his forefathers.

About the same time that Mr. Finnily came out, the call of the land sounded in the ears of a Mr. Calhoun, and he packed his belongings and came out to the new world. His place adjoined Mr. Finnily's and the two Scotchmen spent much time together over their cups telling tales of long ago. Mr. Calhoun did not stay many years, as his health failed and was forced to retire to "bonnie Scotland."

The siren next sounded to Mrs.
Dorothy Morris, a wealthy Scotch widow whose home was in Cleveland.
She with her parents, Squire Price and his wife, came down. Mrs. Morris bought in 1875 the two beautiful estates known as Piedmont and Beaumont on the Little River Road. The big stone house of Piedmont with its back against the mountain commands a wonderful view while the winding drive slips in and out of the woods.
The place was built by Mr. C. C.
Pinkney and is now owned by Mrs.
H. I. Middleton who has improved it a great deal. The quaint old house of Beaumont has seen troublesome days. Many refugees were harbored there during the war, and a Mr.
Johnston was killed at dinner by bushwhackers. But gay and happy folks have since danced through the wide doors and Scotch lads and lasses have watched the great logs burning in the huge fireplaces. The spiral stairs, the odd little windows, and the tiny court in the center of the house are reminiscent of the times when the house was built. It is picturesque if not convenient. When Mrs. Morris owned Beaumont it was a rugged place, and great gnarled trunks of trees obstructed the view of the mountains.
Mrs. Frank Haynes who owns it now has changed the Scottish atmosphere that brooded over the place and made it the finest show place here with its formal paths and sunken Italian Gardens. Mrs. Barrows on the Clear Creek road is a niece of Mrs. Morris, but the rest now live in Cleveland. A few of the descendants of these Scots still live in the neighborhood but the old folks have all gone, some back to the "bonnie" fatherland but most of them lie in the land of their adoption.
They were hard working souls and left no monument but their well tilled acres behind them.

Married Men, Read This.

A translator of the Bible into the New Guinea tongue wanted a proper idiom for the phrase, "Far be it from me to do this thing." He consulted a learned native, who replied, "I understand. We have the precise idiom; we say: 'May I speak to my mother-in-law before I will do this thing.' That sounded rather like a joke to the translator, but it wasn't, for in that land of strange taboos, one of the unpardon-able sins is for a man to open his lips to his wife's mother.—Boston Transcript.

Editor's Joke.

A budding author sent a humorous paragraph to the editor of a daily paper. Not finding it printed within a reasonable time or hearing from the editorial department, he wrote to inquire about it. "I sent you a joke about ten days ago. I have heard nothing respecting its safe receipt and should be glad to hear whether you have seen it." The editor's reply was as follows: "Your joke arrived safely, but up to the present we have not seen it."

'Daddy, what is that 'queer-looking crack' in your g'lasses?'

Observing daughter is not the only one who notices that "queer looking crack" in Daddy's glasses. Everybody notices it.
It mars his appearance; it makes him look old.

KRYPTOK
THE INVISIBLE BIFOCALS

Kryptoks (pronounced Crip-tocks), without that conspicuous age-revealing "crack" or seam, give the convenience of NEAR and FAR vision in one pair of glasses. There is not the slightest trace of a seam or hump. The two powers (the lower for close work, and the upper for distance) are joined together in one solid, smooth, crystal-clear piece. Not withstanding the fact that Kryptoks look exactly like single-vision glasses, they enable you to see both near and far with equally keen vision. That's why they are known everywhere as the "invisible bifocals."

Call and let us give you further information concerning these universally approved bifocals.
