Governor Hughes Renominated

Saratoga, N. Y., Sept. 15.—Charles Evans Hughes, of New York, was nominated today by an overwhelming majority and on the first ballot to succeed himself as governor of the state of New York. He received 827 votes out of a possible 1,009, as against 151 for James W. Wadsworth, jr., of Livingston county, speaker of the state assembly, and 31 for former congressman John K. Stewart, of Montgomery.

The nomination was made unanimous upon motion of state committeeman W. A. Barnes, Jr., of Albany, who has been perhaps the bitterest and most outspoken opponent of the governor's renomination.

Senator White, who was chosen as a candidate for lieutenant-governor was "in the running" for the governorship until the early afternoon, when he requested his friends not to present his name.

Governor Hughes had aroused much opposition by his determined and successful efforts to suppress illegal race-track gambling; and it was therefore a dramatic moment when Saratoga, the famous home of racing, cast its eleven votes for Hughes.

The action of the convention in nominating Hughes is another proof that in the republican party "the people do rule." He was awarded that honor in response to strong public sentiment and his nomination places the republican party in New York fairly and squarely on the side of law and order.

Maine Goes Republican

Although Liquor Forces Help the Democrats

Maine has held its elections and has gone republican. It always goes republican, but this year on account of local issues the democrats confidently claimed that they would carry the state. But they didn't carry it. The republican plurality for governor, though less than 10,000, was greater than was expected. The democrats also claimed that they would carry two of the four congressional districts; they didn't carry any; all four went republican.

The anti-prohibition forces in Maine supported the democrats; but the republicans won in spite of that opposition.

Delaware Democrats

They Have No Use for the Temperance Men

Dover, Del., Sept. 15.—The democratic state convention this afternoon nominated a congressional and state ticket. The temperance element fought hard to prevent the nomination of Dr. Rowland G. Paynter for governor, but the anti-temperance element prevailed and Paynter was nominated. The temperance men met with another defeat in the nomination for attorney general. They made a hard fight to nominate Alexander Daly of Dover for that position, but they lost in that also.

The Delaware democrats apparently had no use for the temperance forces.

Grant at Franklin

The Henderson Man is Gaining Friends and Votes

Special Correspondence to THE TIMES
Franklin, Sept. 12.—This morning Crawford and Bickett spoke here; tonight Grant and Anderson spoke.

Crawford's speech was the same old thing, unless perhaps upon a still lower plane. Bickett's speech was upon a higher plane and showed more thought. No damage was done by either.

Franklin, conservative, broad-minded and liberal, listened, and waited for Grant. His speech was a revelation to our people. It unmasked democratic hypocrisy and inconsistency; it showed Crawford's incompetency and unfaithfulness. The audience awoke to the fact that Grant, misrepresented and abused as he has been, is really the man of the hour and each man present felt that he was listening to a personal friend. So great was the contrast between Grant as he had been represented, (or rather misrepresented), and as he really is, that as he progressed in his speech the applause became the wildest enthusiasm. Grant's speech was no harangue, but was a cool, deliberate argument based upon well known and indisputable facts, delivered to an audience of thoughtful and thinking people, and provoked applause and commendation from even the most rock-ribbed democrats.

It is seldom a political speech gains votes in this town, but tonight Grant has made votes and leaves our town without a single enemy.

Traveling into every precinct, speaking to all the people, he came here tired and worn, but smiling and confident that he has Crawford run into the tall timber; and as a result of his labors he has had democrats to come up tonight and shake his hands and speak words of cheer and encouragement in his great fight to preserve the people their property and their political rights as against the deliberate plans of the democratic leaders to cut down the value of our timber lands and disfranchise the white men.

After Mr. Grant had spoken O. L. Anderson, elector for this district, made a speech full of argument which took well with the audience. These men, traveling all over our district, bring words of cheer and hope.

Our county is well organized and the splendid citizenship of Franklin and Macon will give to Grant the largest majority ever given to a republican congressman by these counties. So mote it be. A.

The New York democratic convention has nominated L. S. Chandler for governor. The platform adopted attacks Hughes.
