HELP CRIPPLED YANKS

To make the number of returned citizens equal to the number of returned soldiers is the problem that is now before the federal board for vocational education.

About 2,000,000 American soldiers have been returned to civil life. Two hundred thousand have been wounded, but many of these will soon be physically fit to take up their duties again, while it is estimated that at least ten per cent of them have handicaps which must be overcome.

From the latest reports tuberculosis is responsible for 22 per cent of the disabilities incurred, wounds not necessitating amputation and miscellaneous wounds for 31 per cent, nerve diseases for 8.3 per cent and wounds requiring amputation 5 per cent.

To make these 20,000 disabled soldiers the equal of 20,000 citizens contributing economically and socially to their community life, is the duty delegated to the federal board by the government.

Four Hundred Schools Enrolled—More than 100 different courses are already being given under the direction of the federal board, in almost 400 institutions of learning scattered throughout the country from Florida to the great Northwest.

In the few months that have elapsed since the boys began their homeward journey, nearly 5,000 of these disabled soldiers, after conferring with the federal board, have started life again; some placed by the board and others self-placed; some in the old jobs, others in new and better ones.

CONGRESS SAVING FUNDS

Approximately $1,350,000,000 has been saved to the taxpayers of the United States by the action of Congress in cutting appropriation estimates of the government departments. Of this amount $450,000,000 was cut by the House committee by reducing the United States army to 300,000 men. The War Department has asked for a personnel of 509,000.

Another big saving was made on the navy bill on which $300,000,000 was cut from the estimates of Secretary Daniels, and from which more may be cut before the bill gets through the Senate and the House.

The railroad bill, from which $450,000,000 was cut by the House, will go through at its present figure. It is estimated that before all the measures now before the Senate and the House have been handled the saving effected will amount to $1,500,000,000. This is taken to indicate that the program of economy will make itself felt in lower taxes during the next fiscal year.

BAKER FOR LARGE ARMY

Secretary of War Baker, appearing before the Senate military affairs committee, insisted that Congress make provision for a force of 509,000 men until a permanent military policy can be adopted. He declared that a force of 300,000 proposed in the annual army appropriation bill, as passed by the House, is "inadequate."

General March, chief of staff, informed the Senators that failure to provide for a force of 509,000 would only mean requests for deficiency appropriations later.

While before the Senate committee Secretary Baker stated that in addition to the army of occupation in Germany, the United States must maintain a large force on the Mexican border and a substantial unit in France where the government has military supplies worth $1,500,000,000.

AMERICAN KILLED IN SIBERIA

Associated Press dispatches state that Walter Kellerman, of Chicago, was killed, and C. H. Bachelor, of Kansas City, and Chester Burt of Antigo, Wis., were captured in a fight between 25 troops and 200 Bolsheviks June 12, 100 miles to the north of Vladivostok. Burt later was released, having been given a note saying that Bachelor would be freed only upon the release of all Bolshevik prisoners. Kellerman met his death on the fighting line, while Burt and Bachelor were taken to the

PREACHER QUILTS MINISTRY TO LIVE A CHRISTIAN LIFE

Can a man be a "successful minister" of the gospel in these days and at the same time practice and preach the principles of human brotherhood as proclaimed in the Sermon on the Mount?

The Rev. I. Paul Taylor, minister of the Highland Park Congregational church, of Detroit, Mich., raises the question and answers it in the negative in his letter of resignation and announcement of his intention to leave the ministry.

The Rev. Taylor is a "Christian Socialist." During the years of his ministry in Detroit he has been unwavering in his proclamation of the Christian fundamentals.

"I leave the church in order that I may live a less cramped and stifled life," the Rev. Taylor said. "I desire to live a Christian life, and that is impossible for me to do and at the same time be a 'successful minister.'"

It is an intricate, and, on its face, an insoluble problem. But "may we not" suggest a possible way around it? Why not compromise? Why not make Herron the Turkish Mandatory? Herron's matrimonial views are broad and comprehensive. His poultry yard standard of morals might possibly be a little looser than the Turkish, but he would doubtless conform himself in theory and practice to the narrower Turkish matrimonial prejudices. The fact that he is only a titular Reverend should not identify him offensively as a Christian.

Indeed, if it came to that, he could produce the record of his dismissal from the ministry, supported by the records of numerous Christian organizations condemning the President for appointing such a man to office. It is hardly too much to say that Herron could bring strong testimonials in the form of officially expressed loathing for him and his views from most of the religious organizations in the United States. Neither in Herron's morals nor his religious principles, then, is there anything which should make him objectionable to the Turks. We unhesitatingly nominate the constructively Reverend Herron as Mandatory of the late Turkish empire.

MOB KILLS PRISONER

Frank Fokall, charged with the murder of Robere Bishop, was shot and killed by a mob at Bay Minnette, Ala., late Sunday while he was asleep in his cell at the Baldwin county jail. The mob overpowered the sheriff and several deputies, secured the keys, swarmed into the jail and made good their escape in a few minutes. Seven bullets were fired into Fokall's body.

LET'S SEE IT

Senator Pomerene, Democrat, of Ohio, complains that the country has never had a statement of the expenses of conducting the office of the director general of railroads. Well, then, why doesn't he urge an investigation? Why do Democrats so universally frown upon efforts to disclose the real facts of this administration to the taxpayers of the country?

WHY NOT HERRON?

(Harvey's Weekly.) We seem to have struck a snag in the matter of our taking mandatory charge of Turkey. It raises awkward alternatives. We must either recognize polygamy as a national institution, or begin a Holy War and fight all Mohammedandom.

for the free and unlimited coinage of wives at a standard not even restricted to the 16 to 1 basis? The Mormons are numerically weak. The difficulty of enforcing upon them the generally accepted proposition that marriage means a home and not a swine style did not present insuperable difficulties, although it was not precisely an easy task at that. With both the Mormon and the Turk, polygamy is interwoven with religious convictions. The Mormons were as stubborn in opposition to interference with their religious beliefs as the Turks. The only difference is that the Mormons number only tens of thousands, whereas the Mohammedans number hundreds of millions, and furthermore, most of these hundreds of millions would plunge into Holy War against us if we endeavored to force any large group of them to abandon their religious faith.

It is an intricate, and, on its face, an insoluble problem. But "may we not" suggest a possible way around it? Why not compromise? Why not make Herron the Turkish Mandatory? Herron's matrimonial views are broad and comprehensive. His poultry yard standard of morals might possibly be a little looser than the Turkish, but he would doubtless conform himself in theory and practice to the narrower Turkish matrimonial prejudices. The fact that he is only a titular Reverend should not identify him offensively as a Christian.
