Six-Course Dinner.

Mr. D. D. Little entertained the stockholders of the Florence mill at a most elaborate six-course dinner at the Crowell House Thursday, June 15th. The dinner was planned by Miss Mayme Martin, which assures us that it was a success in every detail.

Birthday Celebration.

Boyce Covington, Jr., was six years old Friday, June 16th, and to celebrate the occasion he was host at a most delightful party. Mrs. P. D. Harrill, Jr., and Miss Bertha Jones were invited to entertain the children and this was done wonderfully well by playing various games on the pretty lawn of the Covington home. Before the little folks were weary they were invited into the dining room, where everything was dainty and pretty with pink and white decorations. No birthday party is complete without a birthday cake, so in the centre of the table was a beautiful birthday cake with six tiny candles, one for each happy year of the little host's life. Delicious refreshments so enjoyable to children were served by Mrs. Covington, assisted by Miss Helen Covington. The guests present were Hazel and Buster Horn, Ewell Jackson, Nell and Mary Leslie Thomas, John and Rudolph Blanton, Frances Carden, Margaret Meares, Mary Francis Harrill, Farmer and Helen Thomas, Billy McCall, Sue Francis Lattimore, Dorothy and Caroleen Green, Marjorie Padgett, Kenneth Bostic, Minnie Bell and Forest Barber, Lee Moss and Mary Roberts Reinhardt, Kathleen Alexander, Argyle and Dorothy Edwards, Annie Moore, Dorothy Turner, Nell and Francis Lowe.

Sometimes persons of advanced years enjoy boasting of the fact that they do not wear glasses.

Yet, if they happen to have imperfect vision, this neglect of the eyes may cause incalculable injury. Good eyesight is far more precious than false pride. And anyway, if after careful examination, it is found no glasses are needed, you will have the added satisfaction of knowing your judgment is vindicated.
