the Southside revival. The speaker said that one must first find out what God wants him to do, and then be willing to do it. The unsaved people of the congregation were pictured as being on trial, and Jesus council, who could win the case and guarantee to each individual an everlasting heavenly home.

Implicit faith was pictured by graphic and simple illustrations from actual experiences in the life of this great preacher. "Will you do God's will," was the invitation; and "Doing God's was the consummation. When the invitation was given several came forward and laid their lives upon the altar.
