OBEDIENCE

"Honor thy father and thy mother that the days will be longer upon the land which thy God giveth thee." This is one of the commandments that we are all more or less familiar with. We should apply this to ourselves.

This is obedience in the home. Every child should obey their father and mother. A home is much happier where the children strive to obey their parents and the parents strive to better themselves and set a good example before their children.

One person suffers from the disobedience of another. If every person would follow the golden rule there would be no quarrels, no hideous crimes—just peace.

In school each and every one should obey their teachers. Some children will say that the teacher has absolutely nothing to do with them. They should be taught the necessity of obedience. A child will obey quicker if spoken to kindly than if beaten to obedience. Why not each of us bend our will to please the other and all of us be happy?

Men and women who will obey the laws of their land and country are citizens that will be proud to say "I was taught the lesson of obedience from childhood and I have obeyed."
