Things You Should Know

Tuberculosis Germs Not Inherited.

Most anybody nowadays can write or speak intelligently of tuberculosis. My little neighbor, a lad of ten, not yet in the "Junior High" refers gravely to "T-B" when conversing with his play-fellows; the learned scientists and statistician bewilder us with technical facts. What to do with the disease however—to combat it successfully—remains a dark and unfathomable secret. We have found out to a certainty that its cause is a definite bacillus, a living, virile organism, shaped like a rod, multiplying by dividing itself into shorter sections when each individual reaches maturity. Colonies assembled produce peculiar tissue-growth—tubercles,—nature trying to ward off the intruder. When the bacilli develop destructive power within the tubercle, its walls break down, and general tuberculosis results.

The outstanding fact to be remembered in tuberculosis is, it is communicable. People do not inherit germs—they are acquired. A child may be infected, and harbor the bacteria for years without symptoms. Let him get influenza, or pneumonia or even a severe "cold" and the tubercle bacilli awaken to do serious mischief. This brings up a positive conclusion: All tubercular patients should be subjected to the rules of quarantine. They should be taught to save and burn all expectorated matter, and should sleep alone, using individual bed-linen. Their towels should be kept separate and sterilized by boiling.

The germs when dry, blow everywhere! A dozen school children racing along in their glee inhaling millions of these deadly germs! If there is an ordinance in YOUR town against spitting on the sidewalk, make it include the entire street at your next meeting.

MARVELS OF MODERN AUTOS SHOWN IN PICTURES

Series of Photographs Showing Production Of Chevrolet Cars To Be Seen At Forest City Motor Co.

The marvels of modern automotive precision and production methods are depicted in a series of 42 enlarged photographs now being shown to the public at the salesrooms of the Forest City Motor Co., Chevrolet dealers.

The photographic series covers the same interesting operations in the manufacture of Chevrolet cars which would be shown a visitor at the factories.

One of the most spectacular pictures shows a huge drop forge hammer weighing 140,000 pounds. Hammers of this type are used to make the Chevrolet crankshaft. The falling weight is a three-ton block of steel which is lifted by steam. It is so responsive to the touch of the skilled operators that they are able to place a watch on the bottom die block and strike it with the hammer so delicately that the crystal remains unbroken. Each hammer will forge 880 crankshafts during a 10-hour day.

Other striking features of the exhibit are pictures of a monster machine which uses 300,000 amperes of electricity to weld the Chevrolet one-piece banjo-type rear axle housing; a machine which drills 32 holes simultaneously in the bottom of the Chevrolet cylinder block; a rotary milling machine which finishes at one operation of the lower sides of six cylinder blocks, and a 62-ton press which forms a Chevrolet fender at one stroke.

The individual grinding of valves, the delicate blanching of pistons so that every piston in each motor weighs the same and many interesting and micrometric inspections also are illustrated in the remarkable exhibit.
